Dear Editor,

I have been a subscriber of The Oklahoma Journal for several years. I enjoy reading your paper every day. However, I recently noticed that the real estate section seems to be dominated by the same advertisers, which makes it difficult to find new properties.

Sincerely,

Dear John

Dear John,

How is it possible that time has passed so quickly? It feels like just yesterday that we were holding hands and planning our future together. The memories of those days bring a smile to my face, even though they are bittersweet.

Despite the challenges we've faced, our love has only grown stronger. I miss our conversations, our walks in the park, and the moments we spent just enjoying each other's company.

I hope this letter finds you well. Please take care of yourself and remember to call me soon.

Yours, [Name]

Dear John

Dear John,

As I sit here, staring at the empty space where my heart used to be, I can't help but miss you. Your smile, your laugh, your touch... they are all gone now, leaving a hole that nothing can fill.

I know I shouldn't be so weak, but I can't help it. I still love you, even though you're gone. The memories of our love are too strong to ignore.

I don't know if you're listening, but I just wanted to say... I love you. Even though you're not here, you'll always be in my heart.

SPONSORED & PROMOTED ENTIRELY BY NOBLES OF INDIAN TEMPLE SHRINE
A Page From History...

This is an exact reproduction copy of the New York Herald published Thursday, April 14, 1865.

The assassination of President Lincoln, the still burning Rebel War, and the Civil War are covered in the reporting style of the 1860s. The increasing hatred, "Emancipation Proclamation," is not in the mood.

The language used in reporting the story reflects the factual nature of the event.

It is interesting to note the "Raw" in the middle of the page, something almost unheard of today.

Another interesting headline refers to Jeff Davis and his "Loyalty Against His Defeated Followers" which would be called subversive or subversing the nation.

Lincoln's mood and appearance is described as being in a "daze" during a meeting with the Cabinet. He appeared to have been looked at and not the same man.

The front page of the New York Herald is filled with black lines, representing "blackened" with the passing of the events.

History's best summary shows the newspaper, as a report for a political and economic purpose, was used to frame the events of the day.

The page from history is presented with the obvious marks of age. The black mourning strips are over the faces of those who passed and held it together from the start and end of the war. Other foreign markings reproduced on the page are anachronistic and not in use.

The original copy made by Mrs. Robert F. Harrick, of Meriden, Conn., for sharing the historical page with the public.
