Homes, Aircraft Damaged
Mortars Hit Major U.S. Base

By Harry Grant, Special to The Oklahoma Journal

In a pre-dawn attack early yesterday morning, U.S. military installations near Bagdad, Iraq, were hit by a series of mortar rounds fired by Iraqi forces. The attack, which occurred at about 0330 hours, resulted in the deaths of at least 15 American soldiers and the destruction of several aircraft. The attack was the latest in a series of attacks against U.S. military targets in the region.

In Washington, D.C., President George W. Bush issued a statement condemning the attack and expressing condolences to the families of the victims. He called for an immediate and robust response to the attack, and urged the international community to do more to support the U.S. military in its efforts to maintain stability in the region.

The attack is the latest in a series of attacks against U.S. military targets in the region, including the December 11th attack on an American military complex in Fallujah. The United States has been increasing its military presence in the region in recent months, in response to the growing threat posed by insurgent groups in Iraq.

The attack has sparked a diplomatic crisis, with many countries expressing concern about the security situation in the region. The United States has been working to build international support for its military efforts, and has been seeking to increase international engagement in the region.

In other news, a nationwide search is underway for a missing person believed to be in the area of the attack. The person was last seen in the vicinity of the military base earlier yesterday morning.

County Lawmakers Lead Battle
Last-Ditch Fight Loses On Remap

By Jack Miller, Special to The Oklahoma Journal

In a last-ditch effort to prevent the passage of a new political map, county lawmakers in Oklahoma have been leading a battle against the proposed changes. The proposal, which was introduced by the state legislature, would have greatly altered the boundaries of many county districts, potentially affecting the power dynamics of local governments.

The battle has been fierce, with county leaders and residents from across the state mobilizing to oppose the changes. The legislation has been met with widespread concern, with many local officials expressing concern about the impact it could have on their ability to serve their communities.

The proposal was met with widespread concern, with many local officials expressing concern about the impact it could have on their ability to serve their communities.

Taking That

Good Government efforts to resist map changes are a significant threat to the success of the proposal. The map changes could lead to significant changes in representation, potentially affecting the ability of local officials to serve their communities.

Design Spreads, Kills In Tree Roads

By Ray Johnson, Special to The Oklahoma Journal

A design spread yesterday that hit a tree and destroyed a large section of a road, killing a young child and injuring several others. The child died at the scene, while several others were taken to the hospital with serious injuries.

The incident occurred on the outskirts of a small town, when a design spread struck a tree and caused the tree to fall onto the road. Emergency responders were quickly on the scene, but the child died before they could be taken to the hospital.

The incident has sparked a debate about the safety of design spreads, with some calling for greater regulation and oversight of the industry. The incident has also raised questions about the impact of design spreads on the environment, and the potential for further incidents to occur.

In other news, a major new design spread has been approved by the state, freeing up a significant amount of land for development.

Bears Lvet To Unfreeze Roof Damage

By John Smith, Special to The Oklahoma Journal

A bear was found yesterday that has been trapped on a roof for several days. The bear was discovered by a passerby who spotted it on the roof of a house in a residential area.

The bear has been causing problems for the residents, who have been unable to use their roof for several days due to the bear's presence. The city has been working to remove the bear, but it has proven difficult due to the bear's mobility.

The incident has sparked a debate about the safety of bears in urban areas, with some calling for greater efforts to protect residents and prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.
