Time To End Nepotism

The word "nepotism" has been under spoken in recent years. It has originated with the ancient Greeks who described the practice of appointing relatives to important positions.

Nepotism is not only a problem in politics, but also in business and the media. It occurs when a person is appointed to a position based on their relationship to another person rather than on their qualifications.

Corporal Anderson, a member of the 1st Division, was serving as a rifleman in a combat unit when enemy forces opened fire on his unit. Despite being severely wounded, he continued to engage the enemy, single-handedly driving off the attacking force. His actions saved the lives of several of his comrades.
