WITNESS IN SPECK TRIAL TELLS COURT OF HORRORS

Nurse Points:
This Is The Man

Phyllis Collier, the nursing assistant for the Speck household, testified Tuesday that the man holding her back was the same man who had held the head of the woman from whose mouth a bloodstained message had escaped.

Phyllis Collier was led from the witness stand by two police officers as she walked from the courtroom. Her voice was husky and strained, and her hands were clasped tightly in front of her. She wore a white nurse's uniform and carried a small purse.

The witness stood before the jury as they listened to her testimony. Her face was pale and she looked drawn. Her eyes were red and puffy from crying.

"He was the one who held me back," she said. "He was the one who prevented me from speaking."

League of Women Voters Keeps Eye On Politicians

By FERRIS WATSON

The League of Women Voters, a women’s political group, has been keeping a close eye on politicians across the United States. The organization seeks to inform and educate women about political issues and to encourage them to participate in the democratic process. League members believe that important decisions are made at the state level, and they work to ensure that their voices are heard.

In the coming months, the League plans to focus on several key issues, such as education funding, healthcare, and climate change. Members will be attending local meetings and organizing events to discuss these topics and promote their views. They hope to mobilize women to vote and support candidates who share their values.

The League of Women Voters was founded in 1920 and has a long history of advocacy and activism. It has played a significant role in influencing U.S. politics, particularly in the early 20th century. Today, the organization continues to be a powerful force in the political landscape, with chapters in all 50 states.

Sergeants Reach Top Rank

Many members report that they have recently reached the top rank of their respective organizations. The League is proud of the achievements of its members and continues to support their efforts. Members are encouraged to continue their work and to explore new opportunities to make a difference.

In addition to its political activities, the League of Women Voters also engages in community service and outreach initiatives. Members participate in volunteering, mentoring, and educational programs to promote civic engagement and social justice.

The League of Women Voters is committed to empowering women and improving the quality of life for all Americans. They encourage women to join and support their efforts to make a lasting impact on the political landscape.
