MODERN PATTERNS

by STEVE ELLINGTON

In a child's world, "to play" means to be occupied, active, doing something. Through play, children's imaginations are enriched as endless ideas of activities are developed. Play develops personal- ity and character. This is why it's so important for young people to play with each other. To be a good playmate requires a strong sense of feeling of privacy, and in this case, a sense of being in a private environment in which one can feel safe and protected. A good playmate can understand this, and will never make fun of another person who is playing alone. A good playmate will never make fun of another person who is playing alone, and will always be there to help. It's important for young people to play with each other, to learn from each other, and to make new friends.

Chronic Atherosclerosis

A person with chronic atherosclerosis is always in pain. They experience pain in the chest, arm, and leg muscles. The pain is usually relieved by exercise, but can be made worse by cold and lack of sleep. The disease is usually found in people over the age of 40.

Teachers Love Dr. Smith's TV Diction

Jonathan Breite in his role as Dr. Baruch Scholz on the television series "The Bionic Man" has recently been a guest on Dr. Smith's "TV Diction" program on ABC. The show is a forum for discussing the moral and social implications of television programs.

Breite, who is also a teacher at a local high school, was impressed with Dr. Smith's insight and passion for the subject. "It's great to see someone who is dedicated to teaching and promoting good discussion about television," he said. "I now have a better understanding of the importance of good television and the role it plays in our society."

Breite said he hopes to use Dr. Smith's lessons in his own classes and encourage his students to think critically about the programs they watch.

And teacher's like Dr. Breite are just one example of how Dr. Smith's "TV Diction" program is reaching teachers across the country.

The program is broadcast on ABC every Wednesday at 9:00 PM and has become a popular resource for educators looking to enhance their students' understanding of television and its impact on society.
Trees Cut Heat

One of the questions often asked by lawn owners is, "What kind of tree should I plant?" There are many factors to consider when choosing the right tree for your lawn. Here are some points to keep in mind:

1. Examine the sun exposure of the site. Trees that receive afternoon shade heat up less than those in full sun. If you choose to plant a tree in full sun, consider using a variety that is more drought-tolerant.

2. Evaluate the soil type. Certain types of trees prefer specific soil conditions. For example, some trees grow best in sandy soil, while others thrive in clay soil.

3. Consider the mature size of the tree. Be sure to choose a tree that is appropriate for the space available.

4. Look at the health of the tree. Avoid planting trees that are visibly stressed or damaged.

5. Enter your zip code into the USDA Plant Hardiness Zone Finder to determine your specific climate zone.

Remember, the aim is to minimize the energy required to maintain your lawn. By choosing the right tree, you can create a beautiful, healthy lawn while reducing your energy consumption.

Use Fertilizer Now On Lawns

Now is the time to fertilize your lawn. Here are a few tips to keep in mind:

1. Use a slow-release fertilizer. This type of fertilizer releases nutrients slowly, allowing the grass to absorb them gradually.

2. Apply the fertilizer according to the package instructions. Too much fertilizer can burn the grass.

3. Water the lawn after fertilizing. Watering helps distribute the fertilizer evenly and promotes soil moisture.

4. Avoid fertilizing during extremely hot or cold weather conditions. Fertilizing under these conditions can stress the grass and reduce its ability to absorb nutrients.

By fertilizing your lawn now, you'll be setting your grass up for a healthy start in the new growing season. Remember, a well-fertilized lawn is a healthy lawn.

Plan Yard Areas

The natural landscape can serve as a design inspiration, helping you create a beautiful, functional outdoor space. Here are a few ideas to get you started:

1. Use native plants. Native plants are well-adapted to your local climate and require less maintenance than exotic species.

2. Incorporate water features. A pond, fountain, or waterfall can add visual interest and decrease air conditioning needs.

3. Create a shade garden. A shade garden can provide a relaxing atmosphere and reduce the need for artificial lighting.

4. Use hardscape elements. Pathways, patios, and decks can provide functional areas for outdoor living.

By planning your yard areas thoughtfully, you can create a beautiful, functional outdoor space that enhances the overall aesthetics of your property.
