Plane Rams Loaded Convair

Alert Cityan Averts Tragedy

by JOE CARTER

Oklahoma City averted disaster yesterday when Lt. Col. William S. Meadows, Oklahoma City Air National Guard, had the opportunity to save the lives of the Convair CV-580 that crashed at Shreveport, La. A 50-passenger Convair CV-580 was damaged and could not land in Oklahoma City.

Meadows was piloting a C-130J from Oklahoma City Air National Guard Base when he spotted the Convair CV-580, which was coming from Jackson, Miss., and was making an emergency landing.

"I was flying in the area and saw the Convair CV-580," Meadows said. "I immediately began to descend and landed at Shreveport International Airport." Meadows then reported the situation to Air National Guard leaders, who confirmed that the Convair CV-580 had crashed.

"I was able to land safely and reach the Convair CV-580," Meadows said. "I was able to help the passengers and crew members escape from the plane." Meadows then coordinated with local authorities to ensure that the passengers and crew members were safely transported to the hospital.

Once upon a time, maybe two years ago, high school girls were cold-shouldering each other and holding hands while frantically Frenchying at the same time. It was the height of the chain reaction. The most popular girl in the school was the one who was Frenching, and the rest of the girls were trying to catch on. The girls would spread their influence beyond their own school, and the Frenching craze would take over the entire school in a matter of weeks, with all the boys labeled as hopeless. Total embarrassment! When their rules were broken, the girls would immediately gather around and shamelessly discuss the offenders, often by the girl who had been Frenched. But they were never caught. The Frenching craze lasted for two weeks, then it ended as suddenly as it had started. The girls went back to normal, and the Frenching craze was over.

COMMERCIAL FUSION

Commercial fusion is the current trend, and it involves a steady stream of experiments in sound and light. It has been going on for the last few years, but it has only started to gain popularity recently. The sound of the fusion is a combination of electronic and acoustic instruments, creating a unique and exciting sound. The visual aspect of the fusion is equally interesting, with colorful lights and dramatic projections adding to the overall experience. The fusion is a perfect blend of sound and light, creating a memorable and unforgettable experience.

MUSIC IN THE AIR

Boy and girls alike are правило to new dance clubs. These new clubs have emerged in the last year and are becoming increasingly popular among the youth. The music played at these clubs is a mix of popular and underground genres, creating a lively atmosphere. The clubs are housed in various locations, from old warehouses to modern buildings, offering a unique and exciting experience.

Childish: girls in psychedelic costumes add to the total fun atmosphere.

Hollywood GADABOUT

By SHERILAN GRABER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Gabor, Maria #1, is a little girl who is returning to Los Angeles after a long and temporary residence in St. Tropez, for at least a month, where she will tend to her new business, which is the purchase of a new man for the very wealthy George W. Goodheart.

The affluent society, the wife of the swimsuit manufacturer, has a reputation for being a bit of a masochist, which is probably why she has been unable to find a man for so long. She is said to have a taste for the finer things in life, and her new man is reported to be a millionaire from St. Tropez.

Gabor is expected to return to her home in Hollywood at the end of the month, where she will resume her duties as a society hostess.

Gayle and David To Wait a Year To Wed

By SHERILAN GRABER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Gayle Anderson and David To have decided to wait a year before tying the knot. The couple, who have been together for almost two years, have decided to take some time to travel and enjoy each other's company before making the commitment.

"We want to make sure we're ready," Gayle said. "We're both young and have a lot of fun ahead of us. We don't want to rush into anything." David agreed, "We want to make sure we're both on the same page before we make a big decision like getting married."
WISPY MIA MASTERS
Deaf-Mute TV Role

BY VIRGINIA HART/MILL VAIL

Mia, the quietly-changed starlet who recently starred in "Johnny Belinda," was using the sign language of the deaf-mute in her new TV series, "The Deaf-Mute," on the NBC network. The show is about the life of a deaf-mute girl, and Mia, of course, plays the role. The series is being produced by the same studio that made "Johnny Belinda." Mia, who is also deaf, said that she was happy with her role in the show. "I think it's a great way to bring attention to the deaf community," she said. "And it's also a great way to show what it's like to be deaf." The show has been well-received by critics, who have praised Mia's performance. "She's a wonderful actress," said one critic. "She really brings the character to life." The show airs on NBC on Monday nights at 8:00 PM. It's a must-see for anyone interested in the deaf community or simply good acting.
