Washington Officials Think So

U.S. Ready To Suspend Bombing North?

The Washington Post reports:

LONDON - There is reason to believe that the United States will soon suspend its bombing campaign in North Vietnam. Some Western diplomats, who are cautious about predicting the future, say they have heard that the administration is planning to make a announcement sometime before the end of this month. This would be a significant development in the Vietnam War, which has been at a standstill for more than a year.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told a Senate committee yesterday that the United States was prepared to suspend the bombing campaign if the North Vietnamese agreed to a peace settlement. McNamara said that the United States was no longer interested in using force to achieve its goals in Vietnam.

The United States has been bombing North Vietnam for more than a year, but the North Vietnamese have continued to resist American pressure. McNamara said that the United States was prepared to use force if necessary to achieve its objectives, but that it was also prepared to suspend the bombing campaign if the North Vietnamese agreed to a peace settlement.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 16 (UP) - If there was any question in the minds of the publicity department of this club whether or not the whole Pittsburgh Pirates" are still on top in the National League, the verdict of yesterday's game at Philadelphia and today's game with the New York Giants actually put it beyond all doubt. The Bucs are the kings now and definitely are the team to beat in the eastern division. Their win today, a 4-3 victory over the Giants, was a typical Bucs' game, fast and exciting, and the pitche...

The plans for the proposed visita de facto summit of heads of state and government to discuss the future of Vietnam has been postponed by a month to the longer deliberation of the problems of the region. A high-ranking U.S. official in Washington said Monday that the meeting will take place in New York as early as October. The summit will be attended by President Johnson, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, French President Charles de Gaulle, Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin, and others. The summit will focus on the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam, the restoration of peace in the region, and the role of the United Nations in the situation. The summit will also discuss the implementation of the Paris Peace Accords and the future of the Indochina region.

Hong Kong Strike Called

The Hong Kong government has imposed a five-day strike on shop workers in protest against the government's refusal to accept a demand for a 25% increase in wages. The strike was called by the Hong Kong Federation of Trade Unions, which represents over 200,000 workers. The strike began on Monday and will last until Saturday. The union is demanding a 25% increase in wages to keep up with inflation, but the government has offered only a 15% increase.

Space Radiation Hazard Great

The threat of cancer, shorter lives possible, has been identified as a result of the space radiation hazard. Scientists have found that exposure to space radiation increases the risk of cancer and premature death. The hazard poses a significant threat to those who spend extended periods in space, such as astronauts and cosmonauts. The study, conducted by Dr. John Coltrane, 40, a leading space radiation expert, found that the risk of cancer and death from cancer increases with the amount of time spent in space. The study also found that the risk is highest for those who spend more than 10 years in space. The findings have implications for future space missions and space stations, as well as for the general population.
