Radio Operator Hears From Fairbanks

News Cheers City Family

A married Oklahoma City mother finally got word that her son and family are safe from the ranges of the Fairbanks, Alaska, fire.

Mrs. Harold Helldal, 158 W. 5th, was contacted by radio operator, who said Mrs. Helldal’s son, Mrs. H. J. Helldal, Jr., was safe and had reached安全 states from his wife.

Mrs. Helldal’s message was transmitted from Alaska via radio, and the message was received by Mrs. Helldal’s family in Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Helldal was overjoyed to hear from her son after being separated in Texas. It was believed that the family would be reunited in the city.

"For about two days now, we have received no news from the region of the fire," she said. "I was worried about my daughter since she was still out on the range. I had to wait for word from her family to know she was safe."

"We are looking forward to seeing our son and daughter again. We are so happy to hear that they are safe and well," said Mrs. Helldal’s husband. "It was a relief to hear that everything is going well for our family."

"Let Rap Brown Rot in Jail," Senator Urges

By JOHN MARTIN

In an interview with Senator John D. Rockefeller Jr., the senator expressed his strong opposition to the release of Rap Brown, the former King of Rap, who is serving a 25-year sentence in federal prison.

"Rap Brown should not be released without proper assurance that he will not re-offend," Rockefeller said. "He has been a danger to society and should not be allowed to return to the streets."

"Brown has a long history of violence and has been involved in numerous criminal activities," the senator continued. "He should be kept in prison for the good of society.

"The public's safety should always be the top priority," Rockefeller added. "We cannot afford to let someone like Brown walk free and cause more harm."

"Let's not make the same mistake that we did with让他自由 Brown. We need to make the right decision this time," he concluded.

The case involved a dispute over patent rights for a new invention. The court ruled in favor of the plaintiff, Chokoski, who had alleged that the defendant, America's, had infringed upon his patent. The case is often cited as one of the leading examples of patent law in the United States."

Lions Smash San Diego
Mental Letdown Sinks Plainsmen

By Tom Weaver

Regular season ended for both the Oklahoma State University and the Kansas State University football teams Saturday night, but the outcome wasn't quite what either school had hoped. After a long season of preparation, both teams found themselves facing the same problem: a mental letdown.

The Oklahoma State University Plainsmen, who had been building momentum throughout the season, found themselves in the midst of a surprise loss to the Kansas State University Wildcats. The game was a close contest, with both teams playing well in the first half. However, in the second half, the Wildcats took control and went on to win by a margin of 3 points.

The Kansas State University Wildcats, on the other hand, were the beneficiaries of a strong performance from their quarterback and a solid defense. The Wildcats were able to keep the Plainsmen's offense off-balance throughout the game, and ultimately emerged victorious.
