NATIONAL

Chances are slim that Secretary of State John Rogers said Monday he will quickly process the "right to work" petition which will be filed by midnight, which would make it too late to be processed. The Secretary said he will not delay the petition because he felt the voters would drive the vote to a decision on the issue. Rogers said he could not be forced to sign the petition because he was gathering names and "not an applicant to be Secretary of State." Rogers, who failed to receive a minimum of 10,000 signatures in the 120 election, said he felt of office competed to be quick to act. He said he did not have a deadline for the mail-in ballots to be processed and the mail-in ballots to be counted. He said he had not made a decision on the issue. The Secretary, who was speaking to the executive committee of the Oklahoma Labor Union, said he would sign the petition in a "timely manner." He said he did not have a deadline for the petition to be processed. He said he felt the voters would drive the vote to a decision on the issue.

Soviet Note Blasts
British 'Intimidation'

A letter written by a Soviet scientist criticizing British scientists for using "intimidation" tactics in a scientific dispute has been leaked.

The letter, which was written by Dr. Ivanov of the Moscow Institute of Physics, was reportedly sent to the Royal Society in London. It alleges that British scientists have been using "intimidation" tactics in their criticism of Dr. Ivanov's work.

Dr. Ivanov's letter states: "We are not afraid to argue with anyone, but we are not afraid to use the best scientific evidence to support our views. We believe that the truth will prevail, and we will not be intimidated by anyone."

The letter goes on to say that Dr. Ivanov's research has been misrepresented by the British scientists, and that they have been using "intimidation" tactics to try to silence him.

Dr. Ivanov's letter has caused a storm of controversy in the scientific community, with many calling for the Royal Society to investigate the allegations.

The Royal Society has not yet commented on the letter, but many scientists are calling for a full investigation into the charges.

Every weekend in the football world at games, the color blue is a banner that flies over the field. In New York City, it is a sight to behold. The New York Giants, clad in their blue uniforms, are the only team in the league with a perfect record this season. They have won all six of their games, and they look to continue their winning streak against the Philadelphia Eagles this weekend.
