County 'Pike Trust' 'Illegal'

City Must Have Reins, Legal Officer Says

Oklahoma City legally cannot enter a billboard trust deal with the county where billboards are not allowed by the county ordinance.

This is the opinion of County Atty.
Jay P. Kaynor, who said in the opinion that if the trust is not allowed in the County, city attorneys cannot enter on the billboards.

The attorney general said if the trust is not allowed in the County, the city officials can plan, construct and operate the sign system in the County.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER R. J. AXER held out a new olive branch to his critics this week. He agreed to meet with and discuss the problems of the billboard trust.

City Attorney W. M. BURGESS asked the commissioner to meet with him and to discuss the proposed billboards.

"We would suggest," Burgess said,
"that we consider the proposal for a legislative, regulatory, or other method to make the billboard operation legal and feasible."

"It is determined," Burgess said,
"that the City of Oklahoma City is not consulted with the State legislature about the matter."

"We would like to work with you,"
Axe said.

"The city attorney has met with the commissioners and has been helpful,
"But the citizens of Oklahoma City do need to be consulted before any

HY do stores start Christmas before Thanksgiving?

That's a question that's often asked and it deserves a sincere answer.

We appreciate the spirit that promotes some of the objectives to early Christmas shopping promotions.

However, when the reason for the urge to "Shop Early" is examined, the most logical answer is MONTY, then a problem for many stores.

So we're happy to take this opportunity of presenting some of the problems that exist to all stores at Holiday time.

Every successful store directs its best effort toward perfecting a helpful service to ALL its customers. And since many customers (25-28%) ask stores to make it easier for them to complete their gift shopping before the critical post-Thanksgiving period, Christmas merchants and displays are brought forward to accommodate them.

And, naturally, a store in the nation could cope with the traffic that would be generated if any part of early Christmas shopping was postponed until after Thanksgiving. Even under present circumstances, most stores are strained to capacity during the week of the event, to maintain the kind of store traffic that would be generated if any part of early Christmas shopping was postponed until after Thanksgiving. Even under present circumstances, most stores are strained to capacity during the week of the event, to maintain the kind of store traffic that would be generated if any part of early Christmas shopping was postponed until after Thanksgiving.

When you recall the extremely crowded conditions of stores the first two or three weeks before Christmas, the problem becomes evident.

If early Christmas shopping were done, this condition would be multiplied many fold. Actually three would not be enough room left over for enough sales people to serve shoppers during this period between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

These are the store business men that an extremely large percentage of the Christmas gifts that are selected are those that are in plentiful supply the entire year.

(The Brown's stock is complete and customers can do all of their shopping NOW or conventional budget terms, have it all done and practically paid for when January 1st lifts come around. And if all of Brown's stores, you get 5% on Green Shoppers, which add up fast to extra gifts, but also help customers save money at a time when it is most needed.)

Customers and retail employees often agree that much of the stress and strain of Christmas would be relieved if everyone would anticipate Christmas shopping throughout the year. Yes, we know, it is wishful thinking. . . . but have you ever seen a Christmas tree topped down by my knees by Christmas Eve?

Granted that the problem is not a one-sided one, it should be recognized that stores are faced with the problems of extended service to customers, of maintaining helpful employee relations, of providing a place where those of the public who can, or do not, plan ahead may select the traditional gifts for their families and friends.

We are sure that if everyone everywhere dealt with you, personally and sincerely, that you would be verveloped of their sincerity, and that this is true spirit of Christmas they would be recognized by their efforts to perform a helpful service to their shopping public.
