Oldland Urges 'Pike Decision"

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The last chance at the White House for a man who has long been a major figure in the American political landscape was briefly considered yesterday.

President Gerald R. Ford met in the Oval Office with prominent political figures from different states. Among those present were Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., the ranking Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee; Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; and Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn.

The meeting was held to discuss the pending Senate vote on whether to confirm the nomination of Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn., for Secretary of Transportation. Oberstar is a key player in civil rights issues and has been a critic of President Ford's policies.

Reds Aiming At Victory By Default

The Committee on Un-American Activities, headed by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., has found evidence that Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn., is sympathetic to Soviet interests. This has raised questions about Oberstar's loyalty and ability to serve effectively.

Exodus Police Take Bets, City Boggles, Too

Police in Oklahoma City have announced that they will take bets on the outcome of the Oklahoma City police strike. The police union has stated that they will strike if their demands for better wages and working conditions are not met.

Hippies

A group of young people, known as the "hippies," have gathered in Oklahoma City to protest against the Vietnam War and the U.S. government's policies. They are demanding that the government end its involvement in the war and support peaceful solutions.

Critics

Critics of the Oklahoma City police strike have argued that the police union's demands are unrealistic and that the government should not be subjected to such pressures.

James Plunk To Open Soon

James Plunk, a prominent civil rights leader, has announced that he will open a new restaurant soon in Oklahoma City. The restaurant will feature Southern-style cuisine and will be located near the site of the OKC bombing.

Drug Addiction And Abuse

In the last year, the number of drug addicts in the United States has increased dramatically. This has led to a crisis in the health care system and a skyrocketing cost of treatment. The problem is so severe that many cities have declared a state of emergency.

In an attempt to address the crisis, the government is considering new legislation to increase penalties for drug dealers. However, some critics argue that this will only make the problem worse by driving up prices and creating a black market.

Second In A Series

The United States began its war on drugs in the 1970s, but despite decades of effort, the problem remains unsolved. The government has spent billions of dollars on drug enforcement, but the number of addicts continues to rise.

Downtown Rebuilding Linked To Solving Parking Problems

In downtown, a new parking structure is being built to accommodate the growing number of businesses. It is hoped that this will help to alleviate the problem of parking shortages.

Planners Favor New Sign Bill

The city council is considering a new sign bill that would strengthen regulations on the placement and design of signs. It is hoped that this will help to improve the city's aesthetic appeal.

Informers Told Of Slowing

In an attempt to combat the problem of crime, the government is offering rewards for informers. However, some critics argue that this is an ineffective policy and that it can lead to false accusations.

Negro Actor Lends Aid To Young Performers

By THOMAS PARK

NEW YORK (AP) — An African-American actor lectured high school students on Saturday about the craft of acting in his newly launched program to help young performers. Roderick Wright, who has appeared in dozens of Broadway and off-Broadway plays, told students they should enter summer theater camps to hone their acting skills. While many students said they would enter the theater, they also said they would continue to focus on their go outside on weekends. Wright said that a play is a kind of art, and that the way you interpret a script can affect the way a character is portrayed. Wright, who is a graduate of the Juilliard School, said he has been teaching acting workshops for the past 10 years. He said he was inspired to help young people by seeing how much enjoyment they get from acting. Wright said he is excited about the program, and that he hopes it will help young people pursue their dreams.

A PRIMER OF PERMANENT PRESS

LET YOUR DRYER DO THE IRONING

JUST WHAT IS PERMANENT PRESS?

It's a easy-to-iron fabric that requires no starching, no ironing. No for-the-next-generation laundry. It's a fabric that can be washed and dried in any ordinary laundry equipment - even a standard clothes washer and dryer.

The secret? The fibers in permanent press fabrics are heat set so the wrinkles are permanently set in. No starching or ironing is necessary. You can wash them in your regular clothes washer, hang them up, and wear them.

SOLID-STATE WASHER OFFERS INFINITE SPEED

Solid-state washers not only provide infinite speed control, but they also offer a variety of wash cycles that can be selected to suit the needs of the fabric being washed.

NOW DOES PERMANENT PRESS EROSE FROM WASHING AND DRYING?

Studies have shown that permanent press fabrics are not affected by washing and drying. The fibers are heat set and will not unravel or shred when exposed to normal laundry conditions.

IF I CAN'T TELL, IT'S NOT PERMANENT PRESS. WHAT THEN?

The Norge Permanent Press fabrics are designed to be machine washable. They can be washed and dried in any ordinary laundry equipment.
