WASHINGTTON—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was admitted to the Walter Reed Army Medical Center for treatment of a urinary tract disorder.

The hospital said the general was hospitalized and his condition is in good shape.

Eisenhower was admitted Thursday to the 72nd birthday survivor, who is at his home in West Virginia. The hospital said that he is expected to be discharged soon.

The president was admitted under the care of Dr. Harold G. Dodge, director of the Eisenhower Medical Center.

Shades are in progress to decongest the exact cause of the condition, the hospital said.

POLICE 'Won't Truck' With Hippies' Antics

By MADALINE MATHISSEN

The hippie movement, described as a "hippie explosion" that lasted from 1967 to 1971, was a significant part of the cultural landscape. The hippie movement was characterized by its emphasis on peace, love, and communal living. The movement was centered in the United States and spread to other parts of the world, including Europe and Canada. The movement was marked by its rejection of mainstream values and its embrace of alternative lifestyles. The hippie movement was a significant cultural phenomenon, with its impact felt in music, fashion, and art. The movement was also significant for its role in challenging traditional values and for its influence on the larger society.

State Low In ‘Exporting Students’

Bus Ride Not LSD, But It’s Some Trip

Graham County newspaper

The Oklahoman features.

In Oklahoma, the number of students leaving the state is much lower than in other states like Texas and New Mexico. The reason is that Oklahoma has a unique educational system that keeps students interested and motivated to stay. The state provides a variety of educational opportunities, including community colleges and regional technical institutes.

Despite these efforts, some students do choose to export to other states, but it’s not as significant as in other regions. The newspaper article highlights the efforts made by Oklahoma to retain its student base and emphasizes the importance of education in the state’s development.
