Began 50 Years Ago

First Of A Series Of Three

First of a series of three articles on the Russian Revolution, which began 50 years ago this week. The second will appear tomorrow and the third after the opening of the Peace and Freedom Party convention in Los Angeles today. These will present the views of members of the party, which has been criticized for being pro-Stalin.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Russian cruiser Aurora has arrived at the harbor of New York. The ship, which is a monument to the memory of the heroic sailors who carried out the revolution, is en route to the Soviet Union.

The Aurora, which was launched in 1908, played a key role in the October Revolution of 1917. It was one of the first ships to arrive in Petrograd after the revolution and played a vital role in the defense of the city.

The ship has been restored and is now a museum ship in St. Petersburg. It is a symbol of the Soviet past and is visited by thousands of tourists each year.

The Aurora is a symbol of the struggle of the working class to overthrow the czarist regime and establish a socialist society. Its arrival in New York is a reminder of the importance of this struggle and the need to continue the fight for a socialist society today.

The Aurora is also a symbol of the power and courage of the working class. It is a reminder of the importance of the working class in the struggle for freedom and justice.
