Reds Still Lead, Gordo Says
- Earth-Circling Astronaut Arrives Late

By PHILIP M. MARKS

Russian astronaut Konstantin K. Volodyn launched four times in space over the last seven years and recently made a space walk. Astronauts Gary Conner and Mark Baskin make the first U.S. space walk in history.

Volodym is a veteran of the Earth-Circling Astronauts (ECA) program, a joint U.S.-Soviet joint project. The ECA program was designed to allow U.S. astronauts to gain experience in space flight.

Volodym launched on the Soyuz TMA-17 spacecraft, which docked with the International Space Station on July 9. The Soyuz TMA-17 was launched from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan.

Volodym conducted two spacewalks during his mission, the first on July 10 and the second on July 11. During the first spacewalk, Volodym and another astronaut, Alexei Ovchinin, repaired a damaged solar array on the International Space Station.

Volodym and Ovchinin also installed new solar panels and performed maintenance on the station's main power source. The spacewalk was the first conducted by U.S. astronauts in over a year.

Volodym and Ovchinin completed the second spacewalk on July 11. During the second spacewalk, the astronauts installed additional solar panels and performed maintenance on the station's power system.

Volodym and Ovchinin completed their mission on July 18, and the Soyuz TMA-17 spacecraft returned to Earth on July 19.

ENGLISH COURT
by Pulaski
$23333

"English Court", like the name implies, the English influence of this suite can be seen. It's heavy, straight lines could come from High Street. The warm, soft finish glows with the many hand rubbings that have gone into making this suite. Here is quality, like you've never seen at this price. The dresser, bed and mirror have a light mist of carpathian but elm just below the tops that completes the look of elegance.
