The victim, a 3-year-old girl, and her 1-year-old brother, were taken to a hospital for treatment of burns.

The girls, Tracy Moore and Deanna Moore, were placed in the care of relatives after the fire. The case is under investigation by the Oklahoma City police.

“Singer Has ‘Skip A Rope’ Hit On His Hands”

By MANNESON MATTHEWSON

When Harlem’s top session musician, Dennis Ignatik, was asked about the best pedal steel players in the world, he mentioned his late wife, the late blues guitarist, and her brother, the late session musician, who was also described as the “most influential pedal steel player in the world.”

White Cardinal was a close friend of the late blues guitarist and her brother, who was described as the “most influential pedal steel player in the world.”

While Cardinal was working with a Nashville independent record label, he was introduced to Dennis Ignatik’s late wife, the late blues guitarist, who was described as the “most influential pedal steel player in the world.”

“Told me he had a song for me to hear,” said Ignatik. “It was ‘Skip A Rope.’”

Cardinal, who was described as the “most influential pedal steel player in the world,” recorded the song and it became a hit.

“It’s a great pleasure to see how this song has taken off,” said Ignatik. “It’s a great pleasure to see how this song has taken off.”
