‘Project Marana’
Tulsa Gears For Visitors
By PHYLLIS LOPARDO

TULSA — Project Marana, a $30 million, five-acre, high-technology federal government test and research facility where work is currently under way to develop military systems for fighter planes, helicopters and satellite communications, was opened to the media yesterday.

Walter J. Parker, director of the federally run project, said Marana will be an 'umbrella' facility to support the research needs of the military and industry.

The project's main purpose is to develop and test new military technology and to test new weapons systems, including satellites, Parker said.

The project is expected to bring in more than $100 million a year in contracts for the city.

Parker said the project is expected to create more than 1,000 jobs in the city.

Avoid The Rush
Call early Christmas weekend

Christmas Day is our busiest day of the year. That's why we suggest you place your holiday Long Distance calls on Saturday or Sunday and avoid the rush.

Your calls on Saturday and Sunday tend to be a better choice of timing through as the finds by. And one weekend day will be in effect on calls to friends outside the state. On calls with the state, the rates begin after 4 p.m. Saturday and continue all day Sunday.

Best way to get your call through quickly is to get the number ahead of time and dial it yourself.

If you run into a busy signal when dialing your call, be patient and try again. It may be a little touchy, but after all, Long Distance is the next best thing to being there.

P.S. Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!
