Discrimination Hit By Church Groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Afghan girl was dragged from her refugee organization's bus and thrown into a motel room Christmas morning to kill a dog. Church leaders said she was the first victim of a nationwide campaign against children born out of wedlock.

The American Jewish Congress and the Christian Science Monitor said in a joint statement that the recent incident was a clear example of the way women in Afghanistan are treated. They also said that in countries where women are allowed to control their own destiny, women are often killed for not being virgins.
