Ease Tension With Change

by WENDY J. JOHNSON

The world is changing, and in order to keep up, we need to change with it. But change can be hard, especially for those of us who are used to doing things the way we’ve always done them. The good news is that change can also be a positive thing, allowing us to grow and adapt to new situations.

Air-Heat Plant Work Near

A TRAVELER passed by the site of a new air-heat plant being built near the city and was impressed by the progress. "This is going to be a great addition to the area," he said. "I hope it's completed soon so we can all enjoy the benefits."}

Tie Arms, Aid to Mideast Peace

It is not often that a problem so complex as the situation in the Middle East is brought into clear perspective. The failure of the present administration to make a firm stand against the aggressive policies of nations such as Iran and Saudi Arabia is to blame for the continuing tension in the Middle East.

The situation is a complex one, and it is not easy to see a way out. However, it is clear that America must take a firm stand against aggression and must work to promote peace in the region.

The PEOPLE'S Voice

Maybe, Horror

By Joseph Alspop

There is a fear that the United States may be heading down a path of horror.

The United States is a land of opportunity, a land of freedom, a land of hope. But the threat of nuclear war hangs over us all.

We must work to prevent this horror from becoming a reality. We must work to promote peace and stability in the world.

Bob Considine

U.S. Spurns Hero Tab

The United States has spurned the opportunity to be a hero.

The United States has a history of noble deeds, of standing up for what is right. But it has also a history of failure, of letting opportunities slip away.

The United States must be a hero once again. It must stand up for what is right, for what is just.
