Nixon: Paint Town At Six Gala Balls

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon was not at the White House on Monday night, but he was there in spirit. He had invited a group of high school students to tour the mansion before he was to attend a fundraiser at New York hotel. The students were on a tour of the White House as part of a nationwide program sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

The students, who had been selected from a nationwide competition, were given a behind-the-scenes tour of the White House, including the Oval Office, the Cabinet Room, and the East Room. They were also able to meet with members of the White House staff and take a tour of the White House grounds.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.

The event was part of a nationwide program called "Presidential Prom," which is designed to give high school students an opportunity to experience the history and culture of the White House.

The students were led on the tour by White House staff members, who explained the history and significance of each room. They also had the opportunity to take photos and ask questions of the staff.

The event was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The students seemed to enjoy the experience, with many expressing their desire to visit the White House again in the future.
Flying Saucers—Serious Business

Other Intelligent Beings Lurk In Outer Space?

There is no evidence to support the claim that other intelligent beings lurk in outer space. The scientific community has not discovered any credible evidence of extraterrestrial life. The concept of flying saucers and UFOs is often associated with ufology, which is the study of unexplained aerial phenomena. While there have been many reports and sightings, none have been sufficiently substantiated to conclude the existence of extraterrestrial life. It is important to approach such claims with a critical and skeptical mindset, as many are based on anecdotal evidence and unverified reports.

Business Review

Argumentative Salesmen Irritate Prospects And Lose Good Sales

Habana Inn Provides Elegant Rendezvous For Gatherings

Keep 'Coffee Breaks' From Breaking You
20,000 killed or injured in Oklahoma traffic crashes last year.

When the problem is this big, what can one person do?

You can stop feeling helpless.

Because now there is a plan—The National Highway Safety Act—that enables people to help stop the killing.

Crafted by the best minds in traffic safety, the plan calls for each state to adopt standards (including performance requirements) ... or guidelines for legislation and administration. These include:

- Uniform standards for drug and alcohol testing.
- Uniform testing of drivers with devices that simulate driving.
- Uniform standards for driver education programs.
- Uniform standards for the operation of alcoholic beverage establishments.
- Uniform standards for the operation of commercial vehicles.

The plan also calls for the states to work together to make driving safer for all. A state may, for instance, decide to require license plates or driver education programs.

One-half of all traffic deaths involve drinking.

A study reported to Congress by the U.S. Department of Transportation shows that one driver out of 10 is drunk. Yet drinking only costs people's lives.

That's why none of the 19 standards of the National Highway Safety Act deals with drunk drivers.

To help meet the standard on drunk driving control, Oklahoma has passed a law which establishes a scientific, clinical test force to detect the presence of alcohol in the blood and which also prevents police from issuing a driver's license without a chemical test of the blood or urine.

What's needed is that all 19 standards of the National Highway Safety Act be adopted and worked in this state. Public support will make things happen.

That's where you come in.

Your own state legislators need to hear that you support this legislation and that you want the law enforced. That's what this newsletter is all about. For more information about the National Highway Safety Act and the 19 standards, contact your Governor's Highway Safety Officer at the state capital or your state House or Senate.
Photos Capture Inauguration Majesty

Welcome To White House

Takes Sacred Oath

Harris Joins Chorus: A Good Beginning

Presidency Is Near

Hecklers Mar Parade

Good-byes

State Editors Say

Inauguration—Cost Worth It?

Bill Tharp
Grab Bag
Time Again

Chenub
John P. Roche
Problems Of Negro Education

Inez Robb
He Chose The Beard

The PEOPLE'S Voice

The Old And New

It's His Day

Inaugural Throng

The Crowd At Capitol Mall From President To Press...
Musial Swings For Unanimous Vote

OCU BREEZES, POKES CLIPPED

Travis Hits 29, Chiefs Win, 96-74

Late Goal By 1-State Sinks OSU

TOM WRIGHT

O-State To Alter: Defense, Too

Joe Skipping Circuit

Cousy To Retire
American Stock Exchange

Mutual Funds

NYSE

Counter Stocks

Deaths and Funerals

Card of Thanks

IKE HALL CO.

Truck Crash Kills Rider

Coryn Sentenced in Death Case

BUY THE BARGAIN

31運用效益

TEN HALL CO.

Believe It or Not!

Hadon: They'll Do It Every Time

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President

THE INVESTING BROADCASTER OF THE WEEK

EDWARD J. BRISCOE, JR., President
State Legislators Comment On Inauguration Of Nixon

The Oklahoma legislature's move to Okmulgee, the Oklahoma courthouse, who is Okmulgee, has been signed by the governor. The move, which was signed by the governor and his staff on January 10, 1969, is an important step in the state's transition to the new courthouse.

The move includes the transfer of the state's archives, records, and other materials from the old courthouse to the new one. The new courthouse, located at 201 S. Main St., is designed to accommodate the increased need for space and modern facilities.

"COUNTRY CABINET MAKER" by Sprague & Carleton

EVANS NEW PINE COLLECTION IS FOR EVERY ROOM... BUT NOT FOR EVERY FAMILY!

There is a particular kind of active family today: independent, busy, and full of life. For this family, we introduce Sprague & Carleton's "Country Cabinet Maker" collection as an important entry in Evans Early American Shoppe.

"Country Cabinet Maker" Bedroom 3-Piece Starter Group!

For ample storage space, a 51" DRESSER with 8 drawers, NEXT, a LAPPED MIRROR 36"x11" and FULL-SIZE PANEL BED. DRESSER, MIRROR $299

BED, MIRROR, and BED, only... $159

For extra storage and bedroom new or later, add BEDSIDE CHESTS with 3 drawers. BEDSIDE CHEST, only $89