California Damage High

11 BURIED ALIVE BY MUD SLIDES

Hollywood Homes Hit By Cascade

Los Angeles (AP) - Mudcarrying waters ripped out of the Valenzuela mountain range, leaving a trail of destruction and devastation. The death toll rose to 11 as bodies were recovered, and the search continued for another 30 still missing.

Damage to homes was widespread. Houses were left in ruins, streets were flooded, and the landscape was a mass of destruction.

Red Envoys Reject U.S. DMZ Proposal

A North Vietnamese proposal that would establish a Demilitarized Zone along the border was rejected by the United States. The proposal was seen as a significant step toward peace.

Nixon Talks With Aides On Vietnam

Washington (AP) - President Nixon met with his top aides to discuss the Vietnam War talks. The talks are expected to continue in the coming days.

Red Shell Saigon First Time In 8 Months

Sailors aboard the Red Shell, the first American ship to visit Saigon in 8 months, are pictured here. The ship is carrying supplies to South Vietnam. The visit is seen as a sign of improved relations between the United States and South Vietnam.

OU Test Cheating Probed

A report by the University of Oklahoma has revealed that cheating is widespread among students. The report, which was compiled by a special committee, found that cheating is not only common, but also systematic. The committee recommended that strict measures be taken to prevent cheating in the future.

Mortgage Rate Boost Ripped

The mortgage rate boost has been criticized by many. The increase in interest rates is causing concern among home buyers and mortgage holders. Many are worried about the impact of the increase on their monthly payments. The boost is seen as an attempt by the Federal Reserve to cool down the housing market.

Citizens’ New Designs Taking Shape

Architect Makes White Elephants Handsome Buildings

In the middle of a large, open space, a group of people are gathered around a table, discussing various items. The table is covered with an assortment of products, including books, electronics, and household goods. A man in a white shirt is speaking to the group, gesturing towards the items on the table.

A woman in a blue dress is taking notes while a man in a black suit leads the discussion. Another woman, wearing glasses and a gray sweater, is listening intently.

In the background, a large screen displays images related to the topic of discussion. The setting appears to be a conference room or a lecture hall, with chairs arranged in rows for seating.

The group continues to discuss the topic, with frequent references to the architectural design and its impact on aesthetics.

A final slide shows a before-and-after comparison of a building, highlighting the transformation achieved by the architect. The audience seems engaged and interested in the presentation.

Moon Race Hints UFOs Using Lunar Surface

The recent U.S. victory in the moon race has sparked interest in the possibility of extraterrestrial life and activities. The Apollo 11 mission, commanded by Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Michael Collins, successfully landed the first humans on the moon on July 20, 1969. The lunar module Eagle carried Armstrong and Aldrin while Collins stayed behind in the command module Columbia. The landing was broadcast worldwide, and millions of people watched as Armstrong stepped onto the moon's surface.

In the context of the Apollo 11 mission, there were also unexplained phenomena observed. Some UFO enthusiasts believe that the moon race was more than just a technological competition but a strategic move to gain dominance in the arena of extraterrestrial interactions. It is suggested that the United States was not alone in its efforts to explore the moon; there were indications of other entities, potentially from space, being involved.

Tinker Civilian Employes Adopt 'Buddies' In Vietnam

A group of civilians at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma, has taken on the role of "buddies" to Vietnamese children. The program, known as "Buddies for Children," aims to provide a sense of normalcy and support to young Vietnamese nationals who have been uprooted by war. The buddies are assigned to children based on age and interests, allowing them to engage in activities such as playing, studying, and simply enjoying each other's company. This initiative highlights the humanitarian efforts of civilians in responding to the challenges faced by war-torn children.

The Sergeant’s Toughest Battle

Rod Steiger stars as ‘The Sergeant,’ a controversial film about one man’s tragic weakness, a fatal loneliness that no Army will tolerate and an relationship can sustain. John Philip Law co-stars, with lovely French actress Ludmila Mikkol featured in the Warner Bros. Seven Arts release. Critics rate it one of the top movies of the year, and you will see it at the Lakeside Theatre.

‘Liberator’ Bolivar Excites Max Schill

By MAX SCHILL

Max Schill

There is a story that says the Liberators of 1810 were Bolivians. It is said that the Bolivians were the first to rise against Spanish rule. Bolivar was a great leader, and his name is still associated with freedom and independence.

His leadership was key to the success of the revolution, and his legacy lives on in the countries that he helped to free. Bolivar is a symbol of hope for those who struggle against oppression and tyranny.

The story of Bolivar and his fight for freedom is a reminder of the power of courage and the importance of standing up for what is right. It is a story that continues to inspire people around the world, and it is a story that we should all be proud to be part of.

Portante? No! Profound! Yes!

By PHILIP H. ROSS

If you've never heard of Portante, you're not alone. The man who invented it is a relatively unknown figure in the world of music. But his work has had a profound impact on the way we listen to and appreciate music.

Portante is a technique that involves layering multiple sounds together, creating a rich and complex tapestry of sound. It is not only beautiful to hear, but it also challenges our perceptions of what music can be.

If you haven't heard of Portante, you're not alone. The man who invented it is a relatively unknown figure in the world of music. But his work has had a profound impact on the way we listen to and appreciate music.

You Can Help A Bluebird Find Happiness

Elsie Schill

You can help a bluebird find happiness by planting a tree in its neighborhood. Bluebirds are often seen as symbols of happiness, and by helping them find a safe and secure place to live, you can be making a real difference in their lives.

Planting a tree in your neighborhood is a simple and effective way to help bluebirds find happiness. It's a small step, but it can be a big difference in the lives of these beautiful birds.

Design Distasteful In Lollipop Colors

By P.B. WILLIAMS

It's not easy to put down multi-colored lollipop labels. People like me, and after all, we're not used to it, for we have only the best to offer. Nevertheless, the labels remain a popular choice, and we must admit that they can be quite attractive. The problem lies in their distasteful colors, which can be jarring to the eye.

The use of vibrant colors in labels can be a double-edged sword. While they can be eye-catching and appealing, they can also be difficult to read and uncomfortable to look at for extended periods.

In conclusion, while multi-colored lollipop labels may seem like a great idea, the distasteful colors used in some of them can be a concern. It's important to strike a balance between visual appeal and readability to ensure that the labels are both attractive and functional.

1968 Upbeat Year In Theatre Building

BY CHARLES C. MCKINNON

The year 1968 was a significant one for the Oklahoma City area, particularly in the theater world. The Oklahoma City Civic Theatre, along with many other productions, had a successful year. This essay discusses the events and performances that took place in Oklahoma City during this period.

The Civic Theatre was home to numerous productions, including a variety of plays and musicals. The theater was known for its high-quality productions and was a popular destination for theater enthusiasts in the area. The year 1968 was a particularly successful one for the Civic Theatre, with a number of productions receiving critical acclaim.

One of the most notable performances during this time was the production of a play called "The Donkey Dances." This play, written by a local playwright, was a hit with audiences and received positive reviews. The play's success was a testament to the talent and dedication of the Oklahoma City theater community.

In addition to the Civic Theatre, other theaters in the area also had successful productions. The Oklahoma Contemporary Theatre, for example, featured a production of "The Second Violinist," a play that received critical acclaim. The theater was located on the corner of Broadway and Elm Street, and it was known for its innovative and challenging productions.

Overall, the year 1968 was a year of growth and success for the Oklahoma City theater community. With a variety of productions and a dedicated audience, the area continued to thrive as a center for the performing arts.

Dave Brubeck
Due In Spring

Dave Brubeck, with his new quartet, will be coming to town.

The jazz pianist who gave up the avant-garde during his formative years to become a major purveyor of the "cool" School of Jazz, is returning to the area in early April.

Brubeck is well known for his innovative approach to the traditional forms of jazz music. His music is characterized by its use of complex harmonies, intricate rhythms, and precise timing.

Brubeck's quartet consists of the following musicians:

- Brubeck (piano)
- Joe Ponte (guitar)
- Harry座 (bass)
- Dave Van Ronk (drums)

The quartet will be performing a variety of jazz standards as well as some of Brubeck's own compositions.

Be sure to catch this special performance and experience the unique style of one of the greatest jazz artists of all time.

Playmate "Like Girl Next Door"

Those New Dogs in the White House

The Nixon pups are the latest in a long line of pets who've made "all the way" in politics

As the new President and his family get settled into the White House, Washingtonians are holding their breath to see how the new Commander-in-Chief's children will fit in. No, not the daughter Tricia and Julie, but the dogs, Vicky and Fido.

There's a lot riding on their sunny tails.

They are, according to the Washington Post, the first of six dogs. Anyone in Washington could tell you that should be a warning—"White House dogs." Few things can do more to make or break a President, and his family than the image their dog projects. It can make a President look like a hero or a villain, sometimes in simply as short a trip.

Let's see how they stack up. When he should have had fun playing when being picked up by his new, it was a vet who called, before the buzz of steps before intended. One day, in the midst of the hush he would not have picked up by the next. President Troubled was in the Halls and his new, the White House. While not totally unheard, the vet called.

"Don't you know we're supposed to, you know, the President hasn't, for the people in the White House.

President Nixon was long in the White House. He was the Vice-President to 1953, the president of the White House from 1953 until today. He has a dog. In all that time, he has never had a dog. When he died, he was left with no one to love him.

The President's dog was named after his wife, Pat. She had a daughter, Tricia, who was named after her mother, and a son, John, who was named after his father. The dog was named after his wife, Pat. She had a daughter, Tricia, who was named after her mother, and a son, John, who was named after his father. The dog was named after his wife, Pat. She had an son, John, who was named after his father. The dog was named after his wife, Pat. She had a daughter, Tricia, who was named after her mother, and a son, John, who was named after his father.

When it will get published but I just had to write it—"the story of Viscous, is a part of history."

"Reagan's legacy, Vicky, stands out as an "excellent public relations" dog but other Reagans did not always match all the good.Facts had gone. Fortunately, Reagan, who touched off a new movement, was able to "trench" a soldier off an airplane when he was being shipped back to the White House during World War II. (Fortunately, Blaine was considered) Elliot's dog, more than FDR's."

"Then there was Mrs. Eisenhower's dog King, who was reported in the news, and had to be sold. And King, a black German shepherd, who attended all White House parties, until he took office as a female Springer, Hattie Garvey, and promptly hit the press."

After that, he followed King into exile.

But the real story of the White House is 1960, where were a fifty-five year-old named Nixon, who had a passion for nature but was already leaving the White House. Before the Franklin Roosevelt, Mrs. Hoover had surrounded herself with dogs—Fala, an Eskimo dog, Wolf, and an Irish wolfhound. Wiggs, a Norwegian elkhound, Pat, a police dog and King, a black German shepherd, who attended all White House parties, until he took office as a female Springer, Hattie Garvey, and promptly hit the press. He also took office as President Nixon's dog.

Fido was the first of six dogs. Anyone in Washington could tell you that should be a warning—"White House dogs." Few things can do more to make or break a President, and his family than the image their dog projects. It can make a President look like a hero or a villain, sometimes in simply as short a trip.
A Memorial for Robert F.

Cardinal Cushing offers a suggestion, but if you have a better idea, send it to us...

The late Robert F. Kennedy’s family and friends are saying they wish to establish a living memorial in his name. What should it be?

When plans for the memorial were first disclosed last year, Ethel Kennedy, the Senator’s widow and the mother of his eleven young children, expressed the hope that, instead of a cenotaph or a building, the memory of her husband would be kept alive by a project of work that would carry on his aims and ideals.

“She wanted to encourage young people, especially those disadvantaged and discriminated against,” Mrs. Kennedy said. “That should be the goal of his memorial.”

But finding the right idea for such a memorial has not been easy. It should start a giving seed in an area not already covered by existing social welfare agencies and institutions. In other words, it should be something new and, like Bob Kennedy himself, boldly imaginative and freely, something exciting enough in concept to attract widespread support from his many devoted followers.

Several proposals have been suggested to the Robert Kennedy Memorial’s executive committee, which is headed by Robert S. McNamara with Frederick W. duPont, who was Assistant Secretary of State in President John F. Kennedy’s administration, as its organizing director. But none of these ideas, as worthy as they are, have been tried before — action fellowships for young leaders, renamed service programs.

The committee is now seriously considering a plan to organize the Memorial as a sort of challenge-shooting task force which would bring to help to individual worthy causes of poverty, building, and educational problems in depressed areas. Rather than trying to solve a particular problem by itself, the task force would use resources to get action on the problem by the proper government agency or private foundation, or form local business leaders or community organizations. Before his tragic and untimely death, Bob Kennedy was doing such work in his own foundation, one of the more skillfully-planned ones.

This is certainly a good idea, but I wonder if it is to serve the range of poverty area problems we need to allow sufficient concentration on the one problem with which Robert Kennedy was mainly concerned. Like Ethel Kennedy, when I think of Bob Kennedy, I think of his drive to young people. They identified themselves with him, and he bad them with him. Let us remember young people today outnumber the over 21, and one in ten of them are unprivileged and aimless. If we want to do something for Robert Kennedy, let’s do something definite and tangible for young people.

So here is my own personal idea for a Robert F. Kennedy Memorial plan —

The concept of a task force bringing individual problem cases to the attention of organizations that can do something to solve the problem is a good one. But let the task force narrow in work to the one single big problem of getting unprivileged young people into college.

We often tell ourselves that in our great country today any youngster who really wants a college education can get it if he tries hard enough. But we know that is not true. Not only in poverty areas, but in many hard-working and self-supporting families of modest means, today’s high cost of higher education makes it impossible for children to go to college. We need an efficient and successful national organization devoted to the magic purpose of helping any deserving youngster, regardless of race, sex, or color, to get a college education.

Make Robert Kennedy’s Memorial an organization devoted to such work and we will be building for him a lasting memorial bigger than any erection of stone and steel.

Drugs For Your Memory

Pills, Injections — or, electricity — may help you remember good things longer, or forget unpleasant ones.

By Lawrence G. Blockman

T he bank vice-president was有效期 young—perhaps thirty years old, perhaps thirty years old, perhaps thirty years old—when he learned he had cancer. His world began to fall apart. He lost his job, his home, his health, and his family. He was Stratford, but the disease was relentless. He was diagnosed with lymphoma, a type of cancer that affects the immune system. As the disease progressed, he endured chemotherapy and radiation treatments. Despite his efforts, the cancer continued to spread, and his health deteriorated.

He was referred to a specialist in memory loss and cognitive decline, Dr. Richard Blockman, who had a reputation for innovative treatments. Dr. Blockman recommended a regimen of memory-enhancing drugs, including a new medication called "MemoryMax.

"MemoryMax is a revolutionary new drug that targets the underlying causes of memory loss," Dr. Blockman explained. "It works by activating the transcription factors that control gene expression, thereby enhancing the production of proteins that support memory function."

The patient was hesitant at first, but after seeing the results of a clinical trial, he agreed to try the treatment. Over the course of several months, he noticed a significant improvement in his memory and cognitive function. He was able to recall old memories with greater clarity and had a newfound ability to retain new information. His quality of life improved dramatically, and he was able to return to work and continue his professional life.

Dr. Blockman's research on memory enhancement drugs continues to receive widespread attention, and his work has helped many individuals suffering from memory loss to regain their cognitive abilities. He is a leader in the field of cognitive neuroscience and continues to push the boundaries of what we know about the brain and memory.

FIRST STAGE
- They forget names—usually the earliest sign.
- They mistake things—often recipes clipped from the newspaper, a piece of jewelry, etc.
- They misplace things—often in the midst of a conversation.

INTERMEDIATE STAGE
- They forget phone numbers they just looked up.
- They forget to buy some of several items they intended to get at the supermarket.
- Unusual actions fail to impress. They are not sure they have locked the door, welded the clock, or filled the dog—five minutes after having done so.

FINAL STAGE
- The third stage is often accompanied by confusion, that is, the patient fails in his personal relations. The patient is lost in his own environment. His speech is beyond the reach of any drug.

The principal tool used by Dr. David Reibach for correcting the SPE is a special-angled electrical impulse, administered by Dr. David Reibach of the National Institute of Neurological Disease and Blindness. Among his seven patients who have shown unusual improvement is an elderly woman named Julia, whose speech had been limited to the sounds of a few words.

Logical Memory, hearing a three-line news item and remembering a dozen different facts including names, a date or time of day and several other items, is considered a kinesiological concept. The test was normed by a group of psychologists and the scores were then correlated with the results of the test battery. The correlation coefficient was .85, indicating a high degree of reliability.

Do THIS Before You Read The Bible

Dr. Cameron was working at the time of his death on a book on memory loss, a subject he had been interested in for many years. He was doing research on the use of memory aids in the elderly, and his work was widely known.
WHAT NO DESK?

Feeling through a large water bottle, past several thin-glassed ornaments, two mason jars, a woodsy door, and away in the distance is a desk, with the sound of windows you manage to savor. Even in conditioing, intended to solve the problem of working in heat, humid weather, and even rain. The desk.

The path forward is another familiar one. Intererior or office is a carefully calculated space, the cabinets in the grip of a sleek, uniformly built-office, yet not the one you've been searching for before you've arrived at a desk. Without the aesthetic of a desk, the wood, the natural light, that's when you find yourself sitting, content, in the midst of what seems to be a desk, you may realize that it's not the same. It's not a desk.

Abook in a world of mirrors and water bottles, to think, it might be a desk, but it's not. It's not the place you'd expect to find a desk.

The atmosphere is one of calm, of quiet.

Water bottles, water bottles, water bottles.

The environment is one of calm, of quiet.

The path forward is another familiar one. In each setting, the mood, the light, the sound.

The atmosphere is one of calm, of quiet.

Water bottles, water bottles, water bottles.

The environment is one of calm, of quiet.

The path forward is another familiar one. In each setting, the mood, the light, the sound.

Mother—a Child's-Eye View

It's easy to explain what a Mother really is, but little children are probably in the best position to do it, if anyone cares. Two young members, Lee McGough and Joan Sender, put the question, What is a Mother? to over 1,000 school children in seven elementary schools recently, then picked the best of the answers for a little dollar paperback book which is now selling at such a rapid clip that there is a sequel coming up. What Is a Father?

If your hemorrhoids need something more effective than Pares... maybe it's surgery.

Pares not only treats hemorrhoids in nine cases, but actually heals burning, itching pain on contact—immediately.

In fact, the soothing relief begins within seconds after you start applying Pares.

In addition, Pares' emollient formula starts to ease the pain,iot the itching, right away.

And, Pares lubricates the sensitive area paving the way for actual healing in most cases, providing continuous relief for hours.

Try Pares, it's a great new discovery, or return unused.

If your hemorrhoids need something more effective than Pares...maybe it's a surgery.

I lived in maternity sacks, until I lost 98 pounds

By Jackie Lawrence—at last to Ruth L. McCarthy

Understanding was I pregnant all the time, 1943 was a big year for me; I was just plain fat and nothing else fit. It started the first year I was married; I was only 16 and gained 75 pounds in twelve months. We moved to Austin, Texas, and our apartment was small and there wasn’t much to do. So I cooked and ate and ate and cooked. Then, when I learned I was expecting, I started eating even more. I thought that to have a healthy baby was to eat a lot.

My doctor kept telling me the weight would have to be cut off. But I wouldn’t believe it. I was 250 pounds. I just thought it would be just a matter of time before I got back down to a normal weight. I was 250 pounds. I just thought it would be just a matter of time before I got back down to a normal weight.

After the baby came, I was desperate and lost. I was 250 pounds. I just thought it would be just a matter of time before I got back down to a normal weight. I was 250 pounds. I just thought it would be just a matter of time before I got back down to a normal weight.
