Apartment Fire Costly
Blow Torch Scores Again

By WED PENNER
A breezy wind made it almost impossible to put out the fire when an apartment on the first floor of the Aim Queen Plaza Apartments, 1012 S. W. 8th Street, was engulfed by flames shortly before midnight Monday night.\n\nFiremen said the blaze started in the kitchen of one apartment and spread to three other apartments before they could get enough water to put out the fire.\n\nA spokesman for the Fire Department said the water main to the apartment was broken by the blaze.\n\nThe fire caused about $25,000 damage, he said.\n\nOne of the tenants, who did not wish to be identified, said she had been afraid to go into her apartment because of the smoke, and was saved by her neighbor, who had taken her child to safety.
