Chile To Alaska
That's Their Pie

A couple of sailing foursomes were in town last week, two of them with their 32-foot dinghies and one venturing forth with a 36-foot catboat. That's pretty good, considering that they made it. One of the four went to California via New York and London, and the four westbound to Alaska. In fact, one might say they are doing it in a pie shape.

By the way, the four also went to Jack Lemmon's country, where he still ranks as a favorite with the locals. One of the foursomes, Wallis Corti, wrote a personal letter to Jack Lemmon, urging him to consider making a trip to Cuba or Alaska. The letter was sent to Jack in California, and it's expected that he will reply. The four are planning to spend four or five days in Alaska, and they are planning to visit the famous Bear's Lair in the Central Park area. In fact, one of the items on their itinerary is a visit to the famous bear's lair.

2 Youths Face Murder Trials

A 16-year-old high school student and a 17-year-old high school dropout, both from Portland, Oregon, were arrested today in connection with the murder of an elderly woman in the city's downtown area. The two youths were later identified as John Doe and Jane Doe, both of whom were listed as acquaintances of the victim.

The trial is expected to begin next week, and both defendants are to be arraigned before a judge in the Multnomah County Court. The defense attorney for the two youths is expected to request a postponement of the trial until next month, and the judge is expected to grant the request.

Youth Recalls 'Brutal' Life

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A young man who lived through the Berlin Blockade in 1948 recalls the "brutal" life he endured during the crisis that brought the two sides in the Cold War face to face.

The man, who asked to remain anonymous, said he was a teenager at the time and remembers vividly the shortages of food and medicine, the constant fear of air raids, and the strain on families.

"It was a time when you had to be very careful about what you said and what you did," he said. "The tension was always there, even in the streets."
Committee Approves Consumer Credit Code

A large committee hearing on consumer credit questions ended yesterday with approval of a strong bill for the protection of consumers. The measure, when approved by the Senate Banking Committee, will be studied by the full Senate. It is expected that the Senate will take action on the measure before the session ends next month.

The bill, which is designed to protect consumers from unfair and discriminatory practices in the credit market, includes provisions for the establishment of a consumer credit code. The code would require lenders to provide clear and understandable information about the terms of credit agreements, including interest rates, fees, and other charges.

The bill also includes provisions for the establishment of a consumer credit counseling service, which would provide assistance to consumers who are struggling to repay their debts.

Small Schools Bill OK’d; Veto Likely

The House Education Committee approved a bill yesterday that would provide additional funding for small schools. The bill, which is expected to be considered by the full House in the next few days, would provide additional funding for schools with enrollments of 1,000 or fewer students.

The bill is supported by the National School Boards Association, which argues that small schools have unique needs that are not met by larger schools.

OEO Director Duffy Plans Reorganization

The Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) is planning a major reorganization of its programs. The reorganization, which is expected to be announced in the next few weeks, will focus on streamlining the delivery of services to low-income families.

The reorganization is expected to include the consolidation of several programs, including the Job Corps, the Head Start program, and the Community Action Program.

BULLDOGS WIN NAIA BERTH

McGill's Free Shot Clips Broncos In Overtime, 68-67

By Fred Goodfellow

The Bulldog's win of the NAIA championship over the Bovina Broncos on Saturday night at the Sun Bowl was not an easy one. The Bulldogs were trailing by as many as 12 points in the first half, but managed to stage a comeback to take a 38-36 lead at the half. In the second half, the Broncos came back to take a 59-57 lead with 20 seconds left on the clock. But just as the game seemed to be slipping away, McGill hit a free throw with five seconds left to tie the game at 59-59. In overtime, the Bulldogs went on to win 68-67, assisted by a key 3-point shot by McGill with just over a minute left on the clock.
