5 State Inmates Await Answer: Electric Chair Facing Its ‘Doom’

By DAVID CHARMER

Inmates at five state correctional facilities are reaching out to the U.S. Supreme Court in an effort to delay or avoid the use of the electric chair as a method of execution. The inmates have been sentenced to death by electrocution and are challenging the constitutionality of the method.

The inmates, who are all men, are seeking to have their sentences set aside or to have their cases heard by the Supreme Court. They argue that the electric chair constitutes cruel and unusual punishment, violates the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution, and is ineffective as a method of execution.

The inmates include a 59-year-old man from South Carolina, a 53-year-old man from Texas, a 57-year-old man from Georgia, a 51-year-old man from North Carolina, and a 60-year-old man from Ohio. All five men were convicted of murder and sentenced to death by electrocution.

The inmates are represented by legal aid organizations and have filed petitions with the Supreme Court. The court has not yet ruled on the petitions.

Drew Pearson’s Case Against Congress—Part VIII

Gentlemen Farmers Look Away From Misery

The following article is a continuation of a series on Drew Pearson’s case against Congress. In this installment, Pearson, a former senator, takes a look at the issue of miseries faced by farmers.

Pearson argues that farmers are facing a number of miseries, including low prices for their crops, high taxes, and lack of government support. He calls on Congress to take action to address these issues and to provide relief to farmers.

Pearson also calls for an end to the subsidies given to large-scale farmers, which he says are hurting small-scale farmers and causing them to lose money.

The article is published in the Oklahoma Journal, Sunday, March 14, 1960.

dit the happy day, and the dream of a college-shaped institution in a new and vital campus will come true.

There are those who feel that Rose college has already become a college. The idea of a campus site, however, is still being debated. The proposed site is a former high school building, which is now being used as a high school. The school has been in operation for several years, and the proposed site is located near the center of town.

The bond issue will provide funds for the construction of a new campus. The construction will begin immediately after the bond issue is approved. The new campus will be a two-story building, with a large auditorium, a library, and classrooms. The campus will be located on a 10-acre site, and will accommodate 500 students.

The bond issue will also provide funds for the purchase of land for the construction of a new campus. The land will be located on a 20-acre site, and will accommodate 1000 students.

The bond issue will be voted on in the next election, and the results will be announced shortly. The bond issue will be the first step in the construction of a new campus for Rose College. The new campus will provide a safe and secure environment for students, and will be a source of pride for the community.

Circus Life Great For Actor

By SHEILA GRAHAM

A few years as a circus artist is better preparation for an acting career than any drama school, according to James Barton, the 41-year-old acrobat who stars with sister Patsy in the 1949 Academy Award-winning film "Lilac Time," which is being shown at the Oklahoma Theater.

"Not only did "Lilac Time" prove to be a vital tool in my training, but my performance as a circus artist also helped me to develop a sense of showmanship," Barton said. "I've always been a showman, and I think my years with the circus helped me to develop that skill."

Hughes Brain-Trust Has Vegas Hopping

By BOB KELLY

By BOB KELLY

In the spring of 1956, Hughes had his luck in the Nevada desert. For the first time in his life, he was able to put together a team of engineers and managers who would work on the same project. This was the beginning of the Hughes Brain-Trust.

The team included some of the brightest minds in the industry, including John C. Pappas, who would later become a major leader in the aerospace industry. The team worked on the Hughes Aircraft Corporation's Hughes X-15, a research aircraft designed to test the limits of flight.

PART III

In the 1960s, the Hughes Brain-Trust expanded its reach to include the Hughes Aircraft Corporation's Hughes 2500, a transport aircraft designed to carry people across the world.

The team worked on the Hughes 2500 for over a decade, testing its performance and reliability. The team's efforts paid off, and the Hughes 2500 became one of the most successful transport aircraft ever produced.

The Hughes Brain-Trust's success was a testament to the power of collaboration and innovation. By bringing together the brightest minds in the industry, the team was able to achieve great results.

One out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year. It could be you—or some beloved member of your family to-morrow... next week... next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have more than doubled in just a few short years. They are expected to double again in the few years ahead.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do with your pay check stopped, but living expenses still going on the same way as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do when faced with adversity? We believe we have the answer in the new Presidential Extra Cash Plan that relieves you of worry about the terrible financial threat of accident or illness.

Pays you $100.00-A-WEEK tax-free cash whenever you go to the hospital.

What a blessing it is when you know you have an extra $100.00 cash coming in every week—beginning the very first day you enter the hospital.

Now, Presidential’s economy plan enables you to enjoy this protection at once. Because it will NOT cost you $20.00. It will NOT cost you $10.00— or PAYS YOU CASH . . . $100.00-A-WEEK CASH—if you need a full-time registered nurse when you come home from the hospital—up to 50 weeks.

Your cash benefits increase each year—at no extra cost to you!

And what peace of mind not to worry about rising costs. You'll pay less automatically increases $3.00 a week each year. The first year you get $100.00 a week. You get $103.00 a week in the second year, $106.00 a week in the third year, $109.00 a week in the fourth year. By the seventh year, your policy will be worth a full $210.00 a week in benefit payments...at no increase in cost to you!

This generous cash reserve protects you and your family for as long as you keep the policy. You can see that your insurance will be worth much more than the present "face value" of the policy. Certainly, our increased payments to you will have the same effect on rising costs and—almost of all...

The increasing benefits come to you at no extra cost... you still pay the regular low Presidential premium!

What other Plan protects you like this today? What other Plan keeps protecting you against rising living costs in the years ahead without increasing your premiums?

THIS LIMITED ENROLLMENT OFFER ENDS SOON

Only 25¢ for First Month — Money-Back Guarantee

You can now have your first month’s pro- tection for your entire family for only twenty-five cents! But you must act immediately. Your request for this wonderful Income Protection Plan must be mailed on your convenient form on back page NOT LATER THAN MIDNIGHT of the date in your enrollment form.

This midnight expiration hour cannot be ex- tended. If your enrollment form is mailed later, it cannot be accepted.

These are the ONLY exclusions!

Your Presidential policy covers every conceivable kind of sickness or accident except con- ditions caused by war or any act of war; mental disorders; pregnancy except as provided under the maternity benefit provision; where care is in a U.S. Government hospital; and ex- penses resulting from any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your policy.

This last item is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the policy has been in effect for only 2 years. Of course, meanwhile every new condition is immediately covered.

How can 25¢ buy so much?

You can buy ordinary insurance at any time and pay the regular rates. If you wish. But Presidential can now provide you and your entire family with $100.00 a week tax-free In- come Protection for just 25¢ the first month only because we enroll a large number of peo- ple at one time — direct by mail! This highly efficient “Mass Enrollment” method cuts costs to the bone — and the savings are passed on to you!

Make your decision carefully

Think how costly a hospital confinement will be. Imagine paying for those indispensable X-rays, doctor bills, medicines and drugs that are not covered by your present insurance.

Would you be able to afford the quiet and privacy of a private room and a private nurse, should you so desire? Or a telephone to keep in touch with loved ones? Or the rental of a TV set to help pass the lonely hours? Would anyone pay your bills that keep on coming in at home? Many folks have lost their life savings, their cars, even their homes trying to meet such expenses. And no one knows whose turn it will be next.

Why you must act before the deadline date shown in the Enrollment-Application just a few days from today

Why must you act by the deadline? Because, as mentioned above, we must receive your Enrollment-Application the same time as all the others in order to pass on to you the savings that come from processing many policies at one time.

We mail you the policy as soon as we receive your enrollment form. When the policy arrives, examine it in the privacy of your own home. Take all the time you need. It’s a very short document, and you will be pleasantly surprised to discover there is NO FINE PRINT! Then—show it to your banker, to your lawyer, to your accountant, or banker. Better still — show it to your own insurance man . . . even though he may very well be working for another insurance company! If he is a personal friend, he has your best interests in mind. So you can believe him when he tells you there is no better bargain available anywhere—at any price!

Money back guarantee — in case you change your mind

Even after you mail your enrollment form . . . even after you examine the policy in your own home and talk it over with anyone you wish . . . even after all this you are still free to return the policy within 15 days and your quar- ter will be refunded at once. There will be no obligation whatever.

Meanwhile, all during the 15 days you are making up your mind—you’ll be protected by $100.00-A-WEEK extra cash benefits just as if you had already said “yes.” That’s right, you will be fully covered all this time for any acci- dent which puts you in the hospital, even if you finally decide to return the policy.

However, after you have seen the policy for yourself, you will surely agree that this is a tre- mendous value and you’ll want to continue this $100.00-A-WEEK extra cash payment under the Plan that’s best for you.

PLAN I — INDIVIDUAL(S) ONLY PLAN:
If you want to cover yourself—or yourself and one or more adult dependents (including your spouse)—then this is the Plan for you. Each person must be 18 or over, and shall pay (per person), the rate applicable to his or her age.

NOTE: Where there are more dependents, Plan I is the most economical to choose for a husband or wife (or both).

| 50-59 | only $5.95 |
| 60-74 | only $6.95 |
| 75 and over | only $8.95 |

PLAN II — FAMILY PLAN WITH MATTERNITY

This plan is for the family that is still growing. To the total of the monthly premium for the adults to be insured, just add $3. This entitles you to all maternity benefits. It also covers all your unmarried, dependent children between the ages of 3 months and under 19 years who live at home. Future dependent children will be covered if you notify us when they reach 3 months of age and without any additional charge.

PLAN III — FAMILY PLAN WITHOUT MATTERNITY

This plan is for the family that is no longer growing. To the total of the monthly premium for the adults to be insured, just add $3. With the exception of children yet-to-be born. Plan III covers all your unmarried, dependent children between the ages of 3 months and under 19 years who live at home.

NOTE: The regular Monthly Premium shown above for your age at time of enrollment is the same as the Annual Premium. You will continue to pay it. We will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us — or because of advanced age — but only if there is a general increase in costs, then, in all policies of this type in your entire state.

Act now — “today” may be too late!

TIME IS PRECIOUS Act quickly. No salesman will call.) Get your enrollment form into the mail today—because once you suffer an acci- dent or sickness, it’s “too late” to buy protection at any cost. That’s why we urge you to act today — before anything unexpected happens.

Why They'd Rather Do Their Own Thing

BY SEYMOUR L. HALLECK, M.D.

The young and the old alike are much older as guided by opposite values. Each side of the generational gap insists that their own youth is the right one. Students see their parents' values as outmoded and their own as right; they look with disdain that youth lacks values or are adopting new ones that are irresponsible.

How much do students' values differ from those of their parents?

The most striking change in student value systems is in their present insistence on immediate gratification. Students have little patience for the past and little hope for the future. They are trying to live in the present.

The most important reason for this is the ever-increasing rate of change which characterizes our society. When no one can predict what the world will be like in 10, or even five years, man must allow his psychological perspectives. The future of the past became less visible; planning for the future appears futile. One is driven to give his value system toward enjoyment of the present.

Financial success and competitive striving for success have reserves placed in the Americans value system. We have long believed that the person who dedicates himself to the long-range struggle for achievement of status and goods will be rewarded in the future. When the future is unpredictable, however, such Horatio Alger ideas lose meaning. Preparing themselves for what their value systems assess as the satisfaction of the future more than their parents do.

Consider, for example, the different perspectives of a mother and son in discussing the boy's progress in a profession. The mother wants her son to be a scientist and he believes he will do good work within his community and be rewarded with prestige and status. The son, however, insists that the time he spends 10 years training to become a medical specialist, the time of medical practice will hardly resemble what it is today. If he has hoped to make medicine as a vehicle for satisfying his needs for personal interaction with people, he may become unaccustomed to the thought that medicine of the future may be highly scientific and impersonal.

Medicine may not, of course, go in that direction, but no one can really tell him in which direction it will go. What he cannot consider is how his profession is in a similar manner.

The differences in perspectives of the generations are beautifully illustrated in "The Graduate," a film within the main theme of "Is it possible to live in the past?" The graduate replies, "You got me, Dad." I am told that this is a situation which he never explains to his parents. Rather, consideration of the situation and the future that is to come. In many cases, this is the way it is. People who are not in the business may not understand how.

The young are highly skilled in the area of personal interaction. The young students are much more experienced in the area of social interaction. The young students are much more experienced in the area of personal interaction.

A second major shift in the value system of today's youth is also related to change in the environment, particularly in the impact of new communications media. Most of today's youth are exposed to a wide variety of entertainment media, which require a certain degree of protection from these experiences. If children are given excessive exposure to information about the latest developments in the world of business, they may become uninterested. The new media also provide today's youth with the information about personal interactions and the news. Children are not old enough to use the value of new media. They can sense when their parents are not interested.

Seymour L. Halleck has a M.D. from the University of California, San Francisco, and is a professor of psychiatry at the University of Wisconsin. His married and has four children aged 13, 12, and 9.
Their Own Thing

Individualism and the importance of getting individual needs ahead of society.

Invasion of privacy: The invasion of privacy by the electronics industry, particularly relevant in the area of personal and business information, is being perpetrated by an adult generation unwilling to accept the simplified and destructive principles.

There is a value crisis in American life today. In my opinion we are moving toward a state related to the manner in which values are generated and maintained in a changing world. All good values are attacked and we are not creating new ones to replace them. There is a real danger that values of any kind may be losing their power, that young people in particular may feel themselves existing in a valueless world. There may be inherent rights in doing away with traditional values that seem irrational and cannot be justified.

Yet, if such values are indiscriminately observed before they are replaced by more rational values, our society will remain as an ungrounded ideal of values.

Those who are committed to the teaching of values in our society — educators, theologians, law enforcement officers and parents — seem notably engorged to move from diagnostic to rational promotion of value systems. At their disposal is a tremendous wealth of research in psychology and sociology, each of which is related to the question of values.

We need an educational system whose intellectual power is the result of a new synthesis of mathematics, science and the humanities.

One value which is probably more correctly based on pragmatism than biology is the capacity of the individual to assume responsibility for his own behavior. Adherence to the values provides the individual with dignity and serves to give stability to the group.

Another pragmatic value is honesty, the willingness to avoid deceiving oneself or others and the willingness to stop for truth. While there is much disagreement as to the content of the truth, few individuals — young or old — would argue with the conviction that he who deceives himself or others, and fails to seek out the meaning for his actions, is heading toward an inadequate life.

The entire framework of values has convincingly demonstrated that society's greatest need is to find a way of teaching the values of a society, to create a set of values that are constant and unchanging.

Finally, every society must find the means of reversing their disorderly states. As long as aging means being less supported, less powerful and less relevant to society, there can never be any genuine anticipation of the future.

The change of mind is a fact that there is little likelihood that the old will continue to remain more than the young. In this regard it is disconcerting to note how few young Americans can identify older Americans when they simply identify.

As the old become relatively less wise, their influence is maintained primarily by the acquisition of political and economic power. The values which they pass on to the young are more likely to be shaped by instruction and custom than by their own understanding of actual human needs. But even as they attack the adult world they become trapped in destroying themselves if they make their personal involvement, they will surely make themselves powerless.

In order to create a new identity for our future, they must find the means of reversing their disorderly states. As long as aging means being less supported, less powerful and less relevant to society, there can never be any genuine anticipation of the future.

Can two Right Guards serve in the same cabinet?

Of course they can. Because there are two kinds of people in most families. Some need only to stop perspiration odor. For them: Right Guard Deodorant, the world's No. 1 deodorant against odor. The only protection they'll ever need. But others need extra protection from odor and wetness. For them: brand-new Right Guard Anti-Perspirant. With the most powerful anti-perspirant agent ever put in a can. Now — two kinds of Right Guard. Because there are two kinds of people.
I barely fit into my bathtub, until I lost 74 pounds

By Jean Hunter — as told to Rad L. McCarthy

I'm not kidding. I was a tub trying to fit into a tub. 195 pounds! When I think of that now, it's a wonder our trailer wasn't towed behind.

You see, my family and I live in a mobile home in Maryetta, Georgia. And you can't imagine what a surprise that can be when you've been fat and tried to move around in a small trailer. Especially when your husband weighs over 200 pounds himself. Each time we tried to pass, one of us had to back up, step aside.

My weight problem was nothing new to me. I was twenty-five pounds at birth, and by the time I'd reached eighth grade, I'd shed myself up to 180 pounds. Mashed potatoes, fried chicken, candy, cake, pies — I loved them all. I've never forgotten going to a party when I was in high school. One of the boys yelled, "Hey, Jeanie, you look like an elephant in a mouse in a mouse." I wanted to die. I graduated back-up practical nursing. While in training the doctors all went to work on me and I even went through prescribed reducing pills but those only set me off one way. I was in torment the rest of the time. And as soon as I'd lose fifteen pounds, I'd gain back double what I'd before.

Was my life thrill? No dates. No chance. No fun. Only food, I finally decided to join the Navy and see the world. But it was easier said than done. The fact was I was too fat. I ended up at base hospital for 20 pounds. I tried all sorts of diets, liquids, pills and willpower. What was I to do? A diet rich in a dash of balance and dry bread. I stuck to this for breaktast, lunch and dinner, day after day, until I lost enough pounds to be accepted.

So one day I was back up my puppy. I stopped and took my dog with quite a strain. Particularly after our two lovely daughters were born. They're just a year apart, and believe me, there was a lot of fat in between. My clothes looked like bell-bottom covers. And my stockings were the biggest I could buy. You see, my thighs were tremendous. And just walking caused such chafing. I continually had blisters on the inside of my legs.

"A 195 pounds, I not only was ashamed of myself, but ashamed for my husband. But what was I to do?"

The who gave me the answer. I heard Arthur Godfrey talking about a reducing plan candy made to help you curb your appetite..."I put in the tips and also made myself..."

It was called Ayds and it contained vitamines and minerals. No harmful drugs, somehow it seemed right for me, especially when I sold Ayds by eating candy before meals. It spoiled your appetite.

Next time I went to the doctor, I bought a box of the cherry vanilla caramel Ayds. I tried both the fudge chocolate and kind and the plain chocolate fudge type. With cranberry sauce, one or two Ayds, as directed, with a hot-drink, three times a day. And it really helped me to use less. Why, I was able to eat most of the bread I used to stuff on, and I even passed up desserts without feeling sorry for myself.

I followed the Ayds Plan one whole winter. Ten pounds came off. Twenty Thirty. Each month, I bought my dresses in more and more, until me meant no trouble.

In the spring, when I began hanging out, it was just no matter of honor. I left you. I gave to my husband. But what was I to do?"

Flight One to the Moon

Some of the more obviously hopeful activities on the waiting list are children and two-ops who may be approaching middle age by the time the airliner actually leaves and asks them to pick up their tickets. A 3-year-old Demoiselle, Larry Rovel, from Florida, says that he has already had Pan Am'sMoore reservations list. He reported that the airlines were merely looking or staging a publicity stunt. "I was there to think," he says, "and decided they were really interested in picking up for it right away."

Greggory S. Hors of Alexandria, Virginia, an 18-year-old son of a Delaware Department attorney, wrote a letter to Pan Am and made reservations for himself and his father and mother. "As Doug explained it to me," Mrs. Segarra Mathews, his mother, says, "he decided that the movie was the last (fun) bill, and he wanted to be one of the first people to see it in person. His father was fascinated and agreed with him immediately. I'm not quite sure whether I really like the idea as much myself, but I don't want to miss the flight and my son to think I'm chicken!"

While taking their time on the long and里面 mentioning waiting list, the word-to-travelers to the moon could give some thought to another kind of futuristic journey being offered as a prize in the Mini on the Moon Contest sponsored by "Twenty!", the Cape Kennedy daily, and about one-third newspapers on the United States.

The winner will be the contestant who guesses the precise moment—year, month, day, hour, minute and second—when the first American astronaut steps out of his capsule onto the surface of the moon.

Entries must be sent before May 1, 1969, to Moon Contest, Today, Box 1770, Cocoa, Florida 32922, and the first prize is a two-weeks vacation for two people, all expenses paid, in any place in the world. And some in 1969, they're trying to pick the place where you would really like to spend a two-weeks vacation is almost as challenging as taking a trip to the moon.

"Whatever you do, don't keep finding him!"

\textit{The Oregonian}

Facing down a double engine, building library shelves, setting up a room and getting it ready to use, creating projects for children's reading, writing and mathematics. The Oregonian's students are part of the GROW program, which is a way for students to learn practical skills in a hands-on environment.

GROW (Growing, Reading, Organizing, Working) is a program based on the Oregonian's belief that students learn better when they see the practical aspects of their education firsthand.

GROW involves a variety of hands-on activities, from planting seeds to building projects, that help students see the real-life application of the skills they're learning in school.

With the greatest emphasis on the students, the program brings students together to learn from each other. They share their knowledge and experiences, and together they build a community that supports each other's growth.

In addition to the hands-on learning, GROW also incorporates writing and reading skills, helping students to develop their communication abilities.

The students in the GROW program are able to see the practical application of what they're learning in school, which helps them to understand the importance of education in their future lives.

We hope that the students in the GROW program will continue to learn and grow, and that they will use the skills they've learned to make a positive impact on their community and the world.
'A child has a right to be immature'

Dear Editor:

I feel compelled to write this in defense of my generation (over 30), in defense of the fact that in all its innocence youth is not ready to take on the responsibilities of maturity. In defense of the fact that the youth of today is the same as it ever was — immature, inexperienced and wanting and needing someone to be there for them. I feel the older generation (not many of them, if any, but the ones I know) are the same old people whose way of doing things in the past, I feel, is not the way of doing things in the present. They are the ones who are trying to force their way of life onto us.

Man-made heart valves from your own body

BY JUDITH RANDAL

HEART-SAVES... Dr. Warren Zapp Long, a senior cardiovascular surgeon at Stanford, is testing a heart valve that could one day be available to patients who need a replacement.

"The valve we are testing is a device that is constructed from a patient's own tissue," Dr. Long said. "It is made of a natural material that the body can recognize and accept as its own."

Dr. Long's valve has been in development for several years. The team has been working on the valve using tissue from patients who have donated it after dying.

"We have made great strides in improving the valve's design," Dr. Long said. "It is now much more durable and less likely to fail."

The valve is currently undergoing clinical trials to test its safety and effectiveness.

"We are hopeful that this valve will one day be available to patients who need a heart valve replacement," Dr. Long said. "This would be a significant advancement in the field of heart valve surgery."

Pistol Words

In this feature, we explore the world of pistol words, a unique and fascinating field of study. We will delve into the history, evolution, and cultural significance of these intriguing terms.

The history of pistol words can be traced back to ancient times. The earliest known pistol words were used in ancient China, where they were used to describe the sounds made by the weapon. These words were then adopted by the Japanese, who developed their own unique set of pistol words.

Over time, pistol words spread to other cultures, including the Middle East and Europe. In the 19th century, pistol words became popular in the United States, where they were used to describe the sounds made by firearms.

Today, pistol words are still used in various cultures, often as a form of slang or as a way to describe the sounds made by firearms.

The evolution of pistol words has been influenced by cultural and societal changes. For example, the use of pistol words has decreased in the 21st century, as firearms have become less common and as society has become more aware of the dangers of gun violence.

Despite these changes, pistol words remain an important part of our linguistic heritage. They serve as a reminder of the importance of understanding and respecting the sounds made by firearms.

ANNOUNCER:

1. "Bang!" refers to the sound of a firearm being fired. It is one of the most common pistol words.

2. "Clack!" refers to the sound of a firearm being unloaded or loaded.

3. "Click!" refers to the sound of a firearm being cocked.

4. "Rack!" refers to the sound of a firearm being chambered.

5. "Tick!" refers to the sound of a firearm being fired in rapid succession.

Select the four terms that your friends and family will be surprised to learn are not actually pistol words.

A. Snort
B. Hum
C. Clunk
D. Click

The correct answer is D, "Click.

The term "click" is actually a more accurate description of the sound made by a firearm being cocked.

Next week, we continue our exploration of pistol words with a look at the cultural significance of these fascinating terms.

In the meantime, we encourage you to explore your own linguistic heritage and to embrace the diversity of our language.
