ISRAELI JETS TAKE HIGH JORDAN TOLL

ISRAELI JETS TAKE HIGH JORDAN TOLL

By JANE EKBERG

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States and Spain had agreed to "highly symbolic" arrangements for removing a controversial oil depot in Spain. The agreement, signed by the U.S. military in Spain, was to be effective April 1. The agreement was reached during discussions between Spain and the United States in Madrid on March 29. The talks, which lasted two days, were attended by representatives of both governments. The agreement provides for the removal of the oil depot from the U.S. military base in Spain, which had been established in 1956. The depot, located on the south coast of Spain, has been a source of tension between Spain and the United States. The agreement was signed by the U.S. ambassador to Spain, John E. Kennedy, and the Spanish minister of defense, Maria Luisa de Anda. The agreement is expected to be submitted to the Spanish parliament for ratification. The talks took place in Madrid on March 29.
Burning Issue Goes Unanswered On TV!

By JULIAN L. SCHWARTZ

The story was the U.S. policy toward the Middle East, the hot issues of both the West and the Middle East. It was part of a series of conversations between the leaders of the two countries, the television audience was left to wonder: What is going to happen? Will there be a compromise? Will there be a conflict?

No Kids Around The Tracks
Circus Hits Town, But Life Changed

As first conclusion:
Marked off the map, dead and buried. Dead and buried for 90 years, and only recently brought back to life... Darned if the kids aren't among us again.

As first impression:
"The kids are back in town!" Our little monkeys are back here again! Yee haw! We've been waiting for them ever since they were sent away... They grew up and then they grew up even more... We thought they never would come back. Now they're here again! They're coming to the circus!"... (cont'd)

Presidential Asks Surtax Extension

WASHINGTON 15, President Truman said yesterday the Congress should consider extending the surtax and other direct taxes to provide additional revenue for the Federal Government. He added that Congress should also consider a 'coordinated' tax program. This evening, he issued his annual message to Congress.
