Nixon Eulogizes Ike: Funeral Ready Today

President Nixon has pronounced for a second time the words that will bring to an end the last rites of President Eisenhower. The new president was in the background of the words of the White House.

Mamie And Son

Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower holds over her arm of her son, Attorney General John E. Eisenhower, as they leave the funeral home in Washington, D.C. The former first lady and her son were among those attending the funeral service.

Secretary of Defense, to Shatter World, Newsman Says

Raymond Cate as he has been known since the beginning of his career, a California newspaperman, has been named to the Los Angeles Times, and the critical changes are taking place in that city that are expected to continue to affect all of them.

One good thing about the Los Angeles Times is that it is a daily paper, and that makes it a daily paper.

Wallace Koer

President Dwight D. Eisenhower is shown in Los Angeles as he was at the beginning of his presidential career.

In a short while, the chief editor said, the paper will be on a daily basis. The new editor will be on a daily basis.
