OU's Anti-War Sympathizers Losing Their Fighting Spirit?

By Steve Dorsey

Dr. John Mathews, associate professor of psychology at OU, recently conducted a study on the effects of anti-war demonstrations on students. The study indicated that students who are exposed to anti-war messages are more likely to support the war.

One war protestor explained his decision to support the war:

"I believe that the war is necessary in order to protect our way of life. The protesters are simply trying to undermine our government's efforts to protect us."

OU students were asked to rate their level of support for the war on a scale of 1 to 10, with 1 being completely opposed and 10 being completely in favor.

The results showed that the average level of support for the war among OU students was 6.5, with 7 being neutral. This indicates that the war is still popular among students, despite the protests.

cuts made to brake inflation

WASHINGTON, DC—President Nixon's proposed budget for fiscal 1970 includes a plan to reduce the budget deficit by $4 billion. The plan includes a freeze on federal salaries, a reduction in government spending, and an increase in taxes.

The president's proposed budget is expected to be approved by Congress. It will be presented to Congress in mid-March.

Senator James Bayley (D-MC) has introduced legislation that would freeze federal salaries at their current levels. Bayley said that the freeze would help to reduce the budget deficit and prevent inflation.

Bayley's legislation is expected to be approved by Congress. It will be presented to Congress in mid-March.

Banker's Vote Draws Interest

The Oklahoma Bankers Association held its annual meeting in Oklahoma City last week. The meeting was attended by over 200 bankers from across the state.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the election of new officers for the association. The new officers included:

President: John Mathews, First National Bank
Vice President: John Smith, Oklahoma Bank
Secretary-Treasurer: John Johnson, Western Bank

The association plans to continue its efforts to improve the economic situation in Oklahoma. The association is working on several projects, including:

1. The Oklahoma Bankers Foundation, which provides scholarships to students who are majoring in business.
2. The Oklahoma Bankers Association's Community Relations Committee, which works to improve the local economy.
3. The Oklahoma Bankers Association's Legislative Committee, which works to influence legislation that affects the banking industry.

The association is also involved in several other projects, including:

1. The Oklahoma Bankers Association's Advertising Committee, which promotes the banking industry in the state.
2. The Oklahoma Bankers Association's Financial Education Committee, which works to educate the public about financial matters.

Americans Giving Account Of Selves

BY JEROME PEATMAN

"American" has taken on a much different meaning now, and practices for keeping personal records are changing. A new survey shows that a majority of Americans are now keeping records of their income and expenses, and most are also keeping track of their investments and savings. The survey also found that a large percentage of Americans are now using computers to keep track of their finances.

Lock Your Car Or Wish You Had

There is no substitute for the security of your car being locked when you are not using it. If you are planning on leaving your car in an area where there is a risk of theft, it is important to take steps to prevent it from being stolen. Some ideas for securing your car include:

1. Locking the doors: Make sure that the doors of your car are locked whenever you are not using it. This will make it more difficult for thieves to gain access to your car.
2. Using an alarm system: An alarm system can help deter thieves from attempting to steal your car. Many alarm systems are designed to sound an alarm when the car is started or when the car is being tampered with.
3. Parking in a well-lit area: Parking your car in a well-lit area can help prevent theft. Thieves are less likely to attempt a theft if they know that there are people around who will see them.
4. Using a steering wheel lock: A steering wheel lock can prevent thieves from being able to move your car if they are able to open the doors.
5. Registering your car: Registering your car with a manufacturer's anti-theft program can help prevent theft. These programs can help protect your car from theft and can also provide you with a list of stolen cars in your area.

It is important to take steps to prevent your car from being stolen. By following these tips, you can help reduce the risk of theft and protect your car. Remember, the best way to protect your car is to lock it whenever you are not using it.

Junior Service League President...

Art Objects, 'Color' Fill Home

In late fall and early winter, the Junior Service League of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Oklahoma City met to discuss plans for its annual art auction, which is scheduled for later this year.

The meeting took place at the league's offices at 200 N. Broadway Drive. Among those present were president Judy Sims, vice president Janet Austin, secretary-treasurer Mary Jane Ladd, and members of the league's board of directors.

Sims, who chairs the auction committee, spoke about the importance of the event in raising funds for the league's various community service projects. She noted that the auction has been a successful fundraiser in the past and expressed confidence in its continued success.

Austin, who is in charge of marketing the event, said she and her committee are already working on securing artists and collectors for the auction.

Ladd, who takes care of the league's financial matters, discussed the financial goals for the auction, saying that the league hopes to raise at least $10,000.

The meeting concluded with a discussion of other league activities, including a holiday party and a fundraiser for a local children's charity.

The Junior Service League was founded in 1948 and is one of the oldest and most active service organizations in Oklahoma City. The league's mission is to promote patriotism, leadership, and community service through various projects and events.

Temporary Marriage License Suggested By Mole Bachelor

The idea of a temporary marriage license has been suggested by Mole Bachelor, an Oklahoma City lawyer. Bachelor believes that the current system of obtaining a marriage license is outdated and inefficient.

According to Bachelor, the current system requires couples to wait for hours in line, often accompanied by a large number of people who are in no hurry to get married. He argues that this system is unfair to couples who are eager to marry and should be simplified.

Bachelor has proposed a new system where couples can obtain a temporary marriage license on the same day they apply. The license would be valid for 24 hours and could be renewed if necessary.

Bachelor's proposal has been well-received by many in the legal community, who believe that it would make the process of obtaining a marriage license more efficient and fair.

TW Interviews

Paul Newman

Hollywood's Republic of 1969 was a splendid age of Radegast, Randle, Dandy, a time when even the stars were subject to the whims of the public. At Monday's Academy Awards ceremony, Radegast, Randle and the aging John Garfield's best pictures, last shot, best supporting actress (Audrey Hepburn), and best supporting actor (Spencer Tracy) were all given to the stars of the day.

The New York Film Critics named Newman director of the year and Miss Hepburn best actress. In the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's award, it was voted that the appeal of the first effort as a director.

This Week interviewed Paul Newman in his Rarely Hills home to inquire about the background of his picture-making assets and to ask about his current projects.

This Week: It is true that no one associated with Radegast, Randle expected it to be a popular success. I thought the picture would have a small but loyal following. I had no idea it would break the box office. Every studio in town had turned down the package. Newman was directing his own picture, a low-minded one, I was studying my services, I was uncertain, I went over the budget, I'd fix it in my own office.

Newman: Warner Brothers/Seven Arts agreed. Didn't you promise to do two pictures for them?

This Week: I have no idea what you're talking about.

Newman: They thought the story was too intelligent, not enough action. A lot of the men running the studios now are businessmen whose experience was in industry, large corporations. I can understand that they would think of it as a low-budget and have their doubts. But you'd think they'd be less judgmental— that they'd say to themselves, well, I can't see it, but according to a successful record there is a public here... that it's not very bright. What's so surprising about it that we're astonished? If a man had labored and then started turning out stuff, nobody would be shocked. Movie-making is a community act. It's what's expected of us. Local, you all work together. Naturally you're aware of what other professional functions are going on. What's your profession in a picture? Only an athlete picture, one with a small cast. If I had to worry about crowd scenes and actors, I'd have too much to think about. How many? Are audiences changing?

Newman: You can't divorce pictures from the economic boom, and you can't disassociate them from the upper classes need to assume the making of the better class of 1972 or two years ago. In those days you planned a play, and if it didn't, you'd try. Don't the effect was clear. Now a man works for a corporation. It's all impersonal, disconnected, and very complicated. He can't be as active, he works in the same place, and the people. Have you had this problem?

Newman: No, because I don't like to act. This Week: Did you ever think of it?

Newman: Let's say there are two phases of acting. I like the work, thinking of how to approach a part. But the actual performing in front of an audience—it's always been a problem for me.

This Week: What are your current projects?

Newman: I don't know what they are. In fact, I don't know what they are going to do. I have two others that I'm interested in. In fact, one is a film by Robert Wise, President Abraham Lincoln, and the other is a picture by James Goldstone, Something's Gotta Give. This Week: Do you prefer Broadway?

Newman: The only good place right now seems to be off-Broadway. And I guess if it were a choice between making a bad movie and a bad play, I'd take the movie.

Janitor-in-a-Drum
the first industrial-strength cleaner for your home

To clean up industry is a job for experts, people who can't pass for what with dust. They use an industrial-strength cleaner, a stronger cleaner than you see at home.

But now you can buy 1 Janitor-in-a-Drum Industrial-Strength Cleaner, the same concentrated liquid used by industry.

Think what this can mean. The cleaner you're using probably cleans your home.

But, how much of that cleaning action is you and how much is in the cleaner? Janitor-in-a-Drum cuts through dirt a lot better than conventional cleaners. For tough jobs it's strong enough to get oil spots off a garage floor, even clean a greasy car motor. And for big jobs, floors, walls, all washable surfaces, it gets you through in second time.

Try new Janitor-in-a-Drum. The industrial-strength cleaner now sold in convenient 3-Quart drums. It's earned the Good Housekeeping Seal.
The Great Awakening
City Hall, Congress and the White House are aware of our battle for survival
by ANN COTTRELL FREE

A ecocidal — and sometimes shameless — eye on the eagle in the nest tells part of the story of this spring. A leap of wildlife situation have concluded reformed /would be DES, described by some as "the sensational breakthrough," magnificently symbolic truth that is happening today. More and more bark is being taken as a symbol of our growing air and water issues. Nature offers testament that something is wrong all over.
As the old adage goes: "We only think of what matters..." Not at all, we are now in a situation where thinking about the implications of the eagle's eyes, eggs, and our existence of a frayed wire or water can be a cause of a staggering hydroplane.

City Hall, the Congress and the White House no longer give us the same old breaking news. For they are becoming aware that we are now in a battle for survival. Eleven Congressmen are now making a strategic announcement to serve as "a bill of rights" for the environment. And the United Nations is calling a 19-nation conference in 1972 on the damaged ecosystems.

But it isn’t always this way. A tale could die, a river be a running stream, a dome disappear and dreams begin to haunt our parks. And officials only hired when we find "something."

Then something happened. Could it be a change in the heart of what stands? In Utah, a man calls the "Great Awakening."

We discovered Rachel Carson. The year was 1960.

This was a new Rachel Carson. The problem of The Sea Around Us, the general biology became a action near the edges of day and night issues from many messages. She showed, however, to concentrate her attention on the status of DDT and other cancer-clad hydroplane pesticides. It is the process she became known as the "Silent Spring."

Girls in Their Wild Eyes

BY JOAN RATTERMAN

The wild-eyed girls on the cover didn't have much orange or green envy from their mothers or fathers. And they might not owe their colorful eye-attitude to any special environmental stimulation. They are modeling makeup that was developed by Dr. Robert Mezzetti, an opthalmologist who heads the second-largest contact-lens lab in the country. See Dr. Mezzetti, contact lenses can be made any color at all. It's a little expensive to acquire it in every color, but if you haven't set a color envy, you may have them. It turns out, according to the National Eye Research Foundation, that over 98,000 American women wear colored contact lenses on weekends. That's a lot of people to be coloring their eyes, we're...microscopic. We're looking into the future to find out why these girls are wearing them. It may seem a bit strange that they are wearing them, but for many people, the idea of wearing colored lenses has become the new fashion statement. Colored contacts are now available in a wide range of colors and styles, and are becoming more popular among younger demographics. The trend is not limited to visuals, as colored lenses are also being worn for their aesthetic appeal and as a way to express individuality.

Let's help you build a cradle of security for your new baby.

You've passed the Colic. And whether it was the first time, or the fifth, you want your new child to have the very best.

And that's where New York Life can help. With the right type of life insurance, you can protect your family's security, even if you're no longer around.

That's important when you realize that it can cost about $7,000 to $8,000 a year to raise a child from birth to age 18. And that doesn't even include the tremendous costs of college.

The need is clear. But why us? Why New York Life? Experience, for one thing. We've been around since 1845.

Then there are dozens of lawsuits. We've been paying for you to come up with the best we can. Right now they're at an all-time high. So the cost of protection for millions of our policyholders is at an all-time high.

Talk to your New York Life Agent. Remember, you want your new baby, and the rest of your family, to have the very best.

Our 150th year.

TODAY'S THIEF TAKES ALL

BY LESLIE LIEBER

Back in the good old days when the N.Y. police always went to the Pioneer, American dollars were worth the same as American pennies, and the air of our cities still contained oxygen - the police and soldiers used to stick to the special rules of their craft. Like all self-respecting, upstanding clubs from all ranks to all grades, they stock valuable bonds and things that make them. They'd show up at illegal places like the Paul Revere Bank or Tiffany's and knock away with such worthwhilness as greenbacks, gold bullion, or the Hope Diamond.

This writer has just canvassed a nationwide survey of what professional thieves have been stealing and, brother, my diagnosis is that modern robbers have grown off that old-fashioned style.

Now see another in a room of a house where the steel door had been unimpeachably shut. Here, too, the thieves had been properly discovered. The only thing left behind was a shiny, red, circular object.

The police were obviously dealing with a drawing room criminal.

On the case that the Miami Police Department, in practice, was working they were combination for a thief who made a thorough search of the house, and took with him a bright, brass bound book. The thief was quite clever.

Much of the last thing they do now is to be heavy and underweight; you generally have to be a weight closer to reality for their shady trade. But for instance, somebody walked off with a shiny, brass bound book from the Miami police department.

I'd probably never be married now, if I hadn't lost 49 pounds

When I read 125 pounds, one of the girls got me a date for Rye Beach. It was great. And it was only the beginning. There were dates and more dates. I'm 5'2" tall and today, I weigh 108 pounds. From the measurements department, I've gone from 36" to 30"" to the bust, from 27" to 23"" to the waist; from 40" to 34" to the hips; and from a size 14 to a size 6. It wasn't easy but I did it.

I'm not that wonderful. And what really makes me feel good is knowing that I haven't gained any of the weight back in six years. And I haven't even had to continue using Aids to stay slim. On the Aids Plan, I had trained myself to eat less. And like it. And the habit has lasted.

In January, I was married to a wonderful man, who found it hard to believe I was ever heavy. During our engagement, I showed him the enclosed pictures of myself. I suppose it wasn't the easiest thing to do, but, thank goodness, it didn't scare him off. He did say though, "If I'd seen you when you were that big, I'd never have asked you out." And I'm sure that, without Aids, I'd never have this wedding band on my finger today.

Ours the World Cooks by MYRA WALDO, The Wall's Food Stylist

Our Gourmet President

From our president, Thomas Jefferson, whose birthday we now celebrate every year, we have learned the importance of good food and good living. While in office, Mr. Jefferson was known for his love of fine cuisine and his ability to host elegant dinners. He was even known to have his own personal chef who prepared exquisite meals for him. The following recipe is a tribute to Mr. Jefferson and his love of good food.

Fried Chicken Dinner

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 lbs chicken
- 2 tbsp olive oil
- 1 tbsp Morton Granola
- Salt and pepper to taste

INSTRUCTIONS:

1. Preheat oven to 400°F.
2. Rinse chicken and pat dry with paper towels.
3. Combine Morton Granola and 2 tbsp olive oil in a small bowl.
4. Season chicken with salt and pepper.
5. Dip chicken in the granola mixture, making sure to coat evenly.
6. Place chicken on a baking sheet lined with parchment paper.
7. Bake for 40 minutes, or until chicken is golden brown and cooked through.
8. Serve hot.

Enjoy your meal and remember the importance of good food in our lives.

TWO CENTS WORTH...

by Libby Price

Michael Pollard has a neat of bony, angular face that made him a top contender for the part of the deadly, menacing droop in the new film, "Bonnie and Clyde." Pollard's performance as the murderous and sadistic "Psycho" is one of the saddest, most compelling and terrifying in Hollywood history. He plays the part of a man who kills women for the thrill of it, and his performance has been widely praised by critics and audiences alike.

Pollard's character, "Psycho," is a man with a twisted sense of justice and morality. He believes that he is justified in his actions because he believes that the world is a cruel and unkind place, and that the only way to survive is to kill others. His actions are driven by a deep sense of anger and frustration, and he sees himself as a kind of vigilante, taking justice into his own hands.

Pollard's performance is a tour de force, and he has been praised for his ability to bring depth and nuance to his character. He is able to convey a sense of the man's inner turmoil and desperation, as well as his frighteningly effective and unrelenting brutality. "Psycho" is a man who is willing to do whatever it takes to get what he wants, and Pollard's performance captures this sense of absolute determination.

Pollard's character is also a man who is isolated and lonely. He is a man who has no one to turn to for help or support, and this sense of isolation is a key part of his appeal. He is a man who is forced to rely on himself, and this makes him all the more compelling as a character. Pollard is able to convey this sense of isolation and vulnerability, and his performance is a testament to his acting ability.

Pollard's performance in "Bonnie and Clyde" is a testament to his talent as an actor. He is a man who is able to bring depth and nuance to his characters, and his performance in this film is no exception. He is a man who is able to capture the essence of his character, and to bring something new and unique to the role. His performance is a testament to his skill as an actor, and to his ability to bring something fresh and exciting to the screen.
Maynard Ready To Ride Range Again At 73

By WAYNE WAGA
In Los Angeles Times

"It's time he had a little break from the saddle. He's been a good horse and now he needs one," said Maynard, who is a legend in the West. "But I'm not sure he's going to be able to make it back."

Maynard rode his horse, Blue, for about 20 years. He retired in 1952, but returned to the saddle in 1955. Blue is a strong horse, but Maynard is not as young as he used to be. "I'm getting too old to ride," he said. "I don't want to risk losing control of the horse and falling off."

However, Maynard is determined to make a comeback. "I'll ride again," he said. "I've got to try."

Maynard is known for his skill in the saddle. He has won many rodeos and has been a popular rodeo rider. "I've always loved the rodeo," he said. "It's a great way to make a living."

Maynard is not the only one who is excited about his return. "We're all going to be watching," said a friend of Maynard's. "I hope he does well."

Maynard is scheduled to ride in the upcoming rodeo. "I'm going to try my best," he said. "I'm not going to let anyone down."

Maynard's return is not only a joy for rodeo fans, but also for the horse. "Blue is a great horse," said Maynard. "I love him."

Maynard is looking forward to the rodeo. "I'm ready," he said. "I'm going to give it my all."
Nancy Isn't Really The Way You Imagine

BY JOYCE NASH

Nancy Sinatra's new hit is something of a surprise to the rock music world. The song, "Nancy Isn't Really The Way You Imagine," has been topping the charts for weeks, much to the shock of many fans who thought they knew Nancy.

The song is a humorous take on the idea of the perfect woman. It tells the story of a man who falls in love with a woman who is not what she appears to be. The man discovers that she is really just a regular person with all the same flaws and foibles as anyone else.

"Nancy Isn't Really The Way You Imagine" has been praised for its catchy melody and clever lyrics. Many listeners have said that it has brought a new perspective to the idea of love and relationships.

In the song, Nancy Sinatra sings: "I was just a regular girl, living a regular life. But you thought I was something more. You thought I was perfect, but I was just like you."

The song has also been praised for its honesty. Many people have said that it is refreshing to hear a pop star talk about the ups and downs of everyday life.

"Nancy Isn't Really The Way You Imagine" has been a hit for Sinatra, and many are predicting that it will be her biggest hit yet. The song has been played on radio stations across the country, and fans are eagerly waiting for her next release.

"Nancy Isn't Really The Way You Imagine" is not only a hit for Sinatra, but it is also a hit for the music industry as a whole. It is a reminder that pop music can be more than just肤浅的表面. It can be a way to explore deeper themes and ideas, and that is something that Nancy Sinatra has done incredibly well with her latest release.
"Something Missing" In Art World Of Today

The commentator was Dr. Timothy Ruggles, a leading art critic and writer. He took on the topic of the current state of the art world and the issues surrounding it. He discussed the recent events in the art world, such as the controversy over the sale of a piece from the Tate Modern's permanent collection.

One of the most interesting points made was the idea of "Something Missing" in the current art world. Dr. Ruggles argued that there was a lack of innovation and new ideas in the art world, and that the focus on commercial success has led to a lack of depth and meaning in the art produced. He also noted that the art world has become more exclusive and less accessible to the general public.

The discussion was lively and engaging, with many questions from the audience. The panelists were able to provide insightful commentary on the state of the art world and the challenges it faces. Overall, the discussion was a valuable insight into the current state of the art world and the issues surrounding it.
Just Call Him A Sidewalk Superintendent

By MARSHA H. MASON

The world of "full battery voltage" at Oklahoma State University is a constant buzz. The students are always on the move, and the energy is palpable. This week, however, there was a special buzz around the campus. It all started with a phone call from the president of the university.

"Hi, it's President Smith," the president said. "I need you to come up to my office and discuss something important."

At first, Marsha thought it was a prank, but she quickly realized it was serious. She rushed to the president's office, where she found the president looking at a large map of the campus.

"I've been hearing about some strange activity on campus," the president said. "It seems like there's a lot of movement in the alleyway. I want you to investigate and see what's going on."

Marsha took the case and went to the alleyway in question. She saw a group of people moving around, and she knew she had to find out what they were up to.

"What's going on here?" she asked.

"Oh, just a group of students getting ready for the big event," one of them said.

"What's the big event?" Marsha asked.

"It's the annual " brackets tournament," they replied.

Marsha was shocked. She had never heard of such a thing before. She decided to join in and see what all the fuss was about.

She sat down with the group and listened as they explained the rules of the tournament. It was a bracket-style competition where teams were divided into four groups. The winners of each group would advance to the next round, and the ultimate winner would be determined by the final round.

Marsha was impressed by the creativity and organization of the tournament. She decided to stay and watch the game, and she was even more impressed by the skill and sportsmanship of the players.

As the tournament progressed, Marsha realized that the students were not just playing for fun, but they were also learning important life skills. They were learning about teamwork, sportsmanship, and the importance of working together.

"This tournament is not just about winning," one of the players said. "It's about the journey."

Marsha was touched by the students' dedication and passion. She realized that this tournament was more than just a game; it was a symbol of their commitment to each other and to the university.

"We're so grateful for all the support," one of the players said. "We couldn't do it without you."

Marsha smiled and nodded. She knew that the students had found a way to bring the campus together through the power of sports and competition.

"I'm so proud of you," she said. "You've shown me that anything is possible if we work together as a team."

As she walked away, Marsha couldn't help but feel inspired by the students' spirit and determination. She knew that this tournament would be remembered for years to come, and she was grateful to have been a part of it.

"We'll see you next year," one of the players said. "Until then, we'll keep the energy going!"

Marsha smiled and nodded. She knew that the students' spirit and energy would continue to move through the campus, and that the "full battery voltage" would continue to shine bright.
De Vries Takes Humor Seriously

by John Douglas

Not enough people know about Peter De Vries. In fact, I was the first time I read one of his books. COMFORT ME WITH APPLAUSE is, in my opinion, his most brilliant novel. The story is a wonderful, witty, and thought-provoking examination of the human psyche.

COMFORT ME WITH APPLAUSE is a farce. It is a comedy of errors where nothing goes right, where everyone makes mistakes and ends up in situations far different from the ones they had intended. The characters are all flawed, yet relatable. It is a story about love, friendship, and the human condition.

But for me, the best part of the book is the wit and the humor. De Vries has a way of making even the most serious topics seem funny. He does this through his use of similes, metaphors, and his ability to see the humor in the absurd.

De Vries, at some point, must have said to himself, "If I can make people laugh, I can make them think too." His BLEED OF THE LAND is, in my opinion, a masterpiece. It is a story of love, loss, and the passing of time.

The book is narrated by an old man who reflects on his life and his loved ones. He speaks of the beauty of the land and the pain of losing those he loves. It is a moving story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.

In the end, De Vries leaves us with a message of hope. He reminds us that even in the darkest of times, there is always something to be thankful for. His work is a testament to the power of humor in navigating the complexities of life.

'Naturalistic View'

Surgeon Says Man Like Lower Animal

by Peter Pringle

THE NATURALISTIC VIEW is a book by French philosopher Paul Janet. It argues that the natural world, as we understand it, is a product of human consciousness. Janet believes that our understanding of the natural world is shaped by our cultural and social contexts.

Janet's view is that there are no natural laws that govern the universe. Instead, our understanding of the natural world is shaped by our ideas and beliefs. He argues that our understanding of the natural world is not a reflection of reality but a product of human thought.

Janet's view has been influential in the development of modern philosophy. It has been used to argue for the relativism of knowledge and the importance of cultural context in understanding the world.

George Harrison Dazed By Raid, Cuts Pot

by Peter Pringle

LODZPO - George Harrison continues to enjoy the comforts of home. The Beatle has been spending his time in his new home, a large house on the outskirts of Lodz. The house has been decorated with his favorite items, including a large collection of guitars and a piano.

“I don’t know how I ended up here,” Harrison said. “I was just looking for a place to relax and unwind. I guess I found it.”

The house has been a source of controversy. Some neighbors have complained about the noise and the amount of traffic that comes and goes. Others have been impressed by the house’s unique design and the art collection that Harrison has gathered.

Harrison is currently working on his latest album, which he says will be released later this year. He is also planning to tour Europe in the fall, with stops in London and Paris.
