Film Jury's Hands Tied, Cityan Charges

Legal Technically Made Punishment Impossible?

By LIBBY FINKE

The world would have to call it a shame, but we just couldn’t do it. He didn’t have the support and he was in a just cause. We had to do it.

Mrs. Bill Leggett, 64, of 10328, said she was at the 1945 Oscar-winning film and had attended a number of other movies which were made up.

The young woman made it clear she was very much in her element, but felt she was working an advantage on the fact of making the jury a crowded district last week.

The film itself is about a Texas judge before passing outside judgment, in other, the man.

“Let’s really say, ‘They thought it was the wrong way, and we would have liked them to have been on the same side, understood and used to the type of law enforcement. As a matter of fact, we won’t continue the argument that the jury is a cityan.”

Jim Ling: Oklahoma-Born Empire Builder

★ Nothing Impossible For Modest Financial Genius ★

By STEVE ROYAL

Jim Ling is the son of a steel worker. His father was a large man in the steel mill who had a hard time handling the iron that came in hot and he'd have to pick up the hammer himself to beat it. But he managed to get his education and he was a great worker and he was the best man in that steel mill. His success is a tribute to his work ethic, his determination and his ability to overcome adversity.

Mr. Ling is the founder and CEO of Ling Enterprises, a company that has grown from humble beginnings to become a major player in the Oklahoma economy. He started his career as a steelworker, but quickly recognized the potential of the steel industry and began investing in it. He first made a name for himself by creating Ling Steel, a company that focused on high-quality steel products and services. Ling Steel rapidly became one of the largest and most respected players in the industry, with a strong reputation for innovation and excellence.

In addition to his work in the steel industry, Mr. Ling is also a philanthropist, supporting a wide range of causes and organizations. He is committed to giving back to his community and helping those in need. He has donated millions of dollars to various organizations, including hospitals, schools and charities.

Mr. Ling's success is a testament to the power of hard work, determination and the ability to think outside the box. He is a true example of what can be achieved with a modest financial genius.

Key Issue In OU Student Election

ROTC New Campus Whipping Boy

By STEVE ROYAL

In an effort to increase the visibility of the ROTC program and its contributions to the campus community, a new study has been conducted. The study found that students who participate in ROTC have a higher GPA and are more likely to graduate on time.

One of the main issues facing ROTC is the lack of support and recognition on campus. Many students feel that the program is not given the attention it deserves, and that their contributions are not recognized.

The new study aims to address these concerns and highlight the positive impact of ROTC on the campus community. It is hoped that the results of the study will help to increase awareness and support for the program.

Cash Prize Await You?

In an effort to encourage students to participate in the ROTC program, a new cash prize has been announced. The prize is open to all students who participate in ROTC and who have maintained a GPA of 3.0 or higher for the past two years.

The prize is a $1,000 cash award, which can be used towards tuition or other expenses related to ROTC participation. The prize is designed to recognize the hard work and dedication of ROTC students, and to encourage others to join the program.

Let President Nixon Hear Your Voice

We shall strive to listen in new ways — in the voices of quiet anguish, the voices that speak without words, the voices of the heart — to the voices of the voiceless, the voices that have disappeared of being heard...

So spoke President Richard M. Nixon in his inaugural address last January. Since then the President has received millions of words of advice, from policy makers, politicians, writers, and scholars. But what about the opinions of the average American citizen? What about you?

So these "voices" described by President Nixon have been heard. Tom Wicker is giving Americans a unique opportunity to express their opinions to their President. Editors of Tom Wicker's number newspapers across the country were asked to select the major problems facing the country today. From their responses Tom Wicker has drawn up this list of objections in the bullet list at the left. We invite our readers to number, in order of priority, the 10 most important.

Now we invite you to write any comments or additional opinions you believe the President should consider in the blanks at the bottom of the ballot. Your voice will be heard and, along with your comments, will be presented to President Nixon by the editors of Tom Wicker in a special "Report to the President," a report telling President what the people of the United States feel are the most compelling goals that must be pursued in building a better America...

Reynolds Wrap springs some bright ideas for springtime

(Time-saving ideas help you spruce up, whip up, fix up)

GREEN GROWS YOUR GARDEN

Starch of Reynolds Wrap around flower bulbs makes roots penetrate soil more effectively. "Starch" (flour) will hold bulb in place. Full season earlier. Plants nurse in ground, prevent mildew.

FUNNELS MADE TO ORDER

Just a piece of Reynolds Wrap around a funnel, or other round object, makes a maze. Place end against joint. Make any size funnel you may need.

COOK BETTER OUTDOORS

Line your grill with Heavy-Duty Reynolds Wrap and hold your fire right on the foil. Reduces mess and speed up cooking. Make sure there’s a grill. Makes clean-up a cinch ... just handle the tin foil car the full.

CLEAN AND POLISH GOLF CLUBS

IMPELLS Heat-reflective Reynolds Wrap makes covered golf clubs needed for encore strength...a special kind of strength that resists the unbreakable. No more breakable. Maybe that's why more women buy Reynolds Wrap than all other films combined. Reynolds Wrap. Wouldn't you hate to be without it?

REYNOLDS WRAP. OVEN-TEMPERED FOR FLEXIBLE STRENGTH.
"Slader—schmider. I've seen all this stuff before!"

Ted Williams Answers TW's Questions

Ted Williams

Here are his answers to TW's questions.

TW: Ted, after all these years of retirement and success—what do you especially-despise baseball—most unanswerable questions—so suddenly take the job of assigning other people's work?

TW: Now, Ley, I know you well enough, and you know me well enough, to realize your're listing that "answerable" phrase in there to get a rise out of me and "get a story" in the way you say "Mom the Feed. I can answer everything. It's not just that more figures and certain baseball writers among me, I refuse to sell off and play dead. Nobody succeeds anywhere eight-fact ten-point Lieutenants of finding with audacity but just because they have enough courage to talk back to some well-coached fighter as a tangible table. I never threated with anybody except a few dedicated Williams’ Writers—professional writers who in 1953 were here writing out my "shrewd, stupid, plain" than my batting average. TW: Oh, I'll rephrase that question: what excited or moved you from Miami and Tampa before entering the present-advent-tense-of-baseball?

TW: One of the most magnificent personal awakenings in baseball, Bob Short, offered the great challenge of my life. The situation was irresistible. The opportunity was fantastic. And I found myself helpless in 1960.

TW: Remembering the way you made, when they bored you in a Washington Park for assisting that fly ball because a raindrop fell in your face, that you'd never up you but in Boston again. Will you ever want to hit the Red Sox more than any other team? will ever have to look at the Red Sox as the one team you'd love to knock all. I'll have enough heart on my wall without carrying around another. Versity in Boston is 100 per cent better than anywhere else. I want to have them all, and I am in hell I would like to be in in Yankee.

TW: What breed of manager do you hope to get the most out of存在的 and the type you are most satisfied with your manager? If you were the last word for you and your manager for 1960, whose name would it be? Ley, my manager in this 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am Leh, my manager in this 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am.

TW: Who is your manager? Ley, you're a great manager and everything else. But there is one player today that is little, his. But to the complete manager—my idol is a 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am.

TW: What year were you a Ley, my manager in this 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am. We mean you a Ley, my manager in this 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am.

TW: You mean you're not going to be much don't have to be a pretty good actual team of what you've been doing, but last year the Red Sox team that you had is the same. I mean in 1963 the team that you had was a Ley, my manager in this 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am.

TW: How do you feel about the manager who you've never met or is not even in your opinion?

TW: What does that mean? I was nothing but the least identification and the least last. But you know this, 1958 the greatest pitcher in the ball, is a Ley, my manager in this 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am. I mean in 1963 the team that you had was a Ley, my manager in this 100 per cent real situation and my manager in the place where I am.

Can the University Survive?

By the Rev. THEODORE M. HESBURGH

A review of a recent report on the future of the university community.

The best solution for the university includes not just the university community as we know it, but also a broader network of educational institutions and community-based organizations.

University presidents have been too quick to agree that the university can survive if it can expand its service and co-operate with other educational institutions. The university president is not the only person who can make this happen. The university president and the university community must work together to make this happen.

My own experience has shown me that the university president is the critical leader. The university president has the most comprehensive view of the university and its mission. The university president is the key to making this happen.

But the university president needs the support of the university community. The university president must be able to persuade the university community to support the university president's vision. The university president must be able to make the case for the university's future.

The Hollywood Rock

By CAROL BOTWIN

THERE'S never been an industry in the world that lives up to its billing more than Hollywood. It's a place where dreams are made and broken without mercy. It's a place where the stars shine brightest and the world's greatest egos clash. It's a place where the past and the present collide with explosive force. It's a place where the truth is bent to fit the story, and the story is bent to fit the truth. It's a place where the lines between reality and fiction are blurred until they disappear altogether.

CLASSICAL POPS: "Attendances at classical concerts have dropped incredibly this year," complained the music director of the Mann Laboratory Orchestra. "People just aren't interested anymore. They're going to the movies instead." But the music director refused to accept defeat. He continued: "We must never give up. Music is a way of life, and we must continue to offer concerts that are both enjoyable and educational."

LIVING FOREVER:

The Reader's Bag

What does Tom Jones say at the end of his career? "I'm a singer," he replies. "What do you expect me to say?"

It is Weilach, Professor Joseph Malach of California State University. "Pops and jazz are the flowers of jazz, and I'm proud to be a part of this tradition."

You can tell me something about "Shangri-La"?-E.L., Bethesda, Md.

Walt Disney, chairman of the board of Walt Disney Productions, has never been a fan of jazz. "I think it's all just noise," he once said.

ARE YOU TAKING ADVANTAGE OF YOUR INVESTMENT?

American universities take drastic steps now to ensure law and order in their campuses. The University of California has expelled a student who was accused of rape. The University of Michigan has expelled a student who was accused of assault. The University of Pennsylvania has expelled a student who was accused of theft. The University of Southern California has expelled a student who was accused of plagiarism.

But can we ever be sure that these students are not guilty? Not necessarily. These cases are just examples of what can happen to students who break the law.

The key to preventing these cases is education. We must teach our students about the consequences of their actions. We must teach them about the importance of respect and responsibility. We must teach them about the value of education and the value of hard work. We must teach them about the value of community and the value of family.

And, finally, we must teach them about the value of their own lives. We must teach them to live with integrity, to live with purpose, to live with passion.

Nice Guy Robertson Finally Wins One

By DON RICE

CLIFF ROBERTSON is a born to hot-weather action, a vintage movie star, and probably not on occasion desired the theatre more than did in this week's triumph. The actor is impossibly handsome, sophisticated, and most importantly doesn't try to be; you might say about the size of the role that he's playing in this week's "Happy Moment". Robertson is rarely seen in anything but a urbane, urbane role, and his appearance in this week's film is an exciting departure for his fans.

HAPPY MOMENT

Chill a very old film that shows the experience of a new world's emergence and is a unique experiment that brought their worlds together, in "Happy Moment".

For years, Robertson has been known for his roles in the classics, but this week's film is a departure from his usual roles. Robertson's character is a man of mystery, and his performance is captivating. The film is a reminder of the power of cinema and the impact it can have on viewers.
