Board To Widen Integration

Transfers To Be Stopped In 4 Pooled Schools

BY JANE KARL

The Oklahoma City Board of Education Monday night announced plans to "expand the scope of desegregation" in the city's four-pool schools.

School Superintendent J. H. C. Freeman explained the move in a statement prepared by board members, as follows: "The School Board is committed to complete racial integration and to assist the city in maintaining a quality, educational system within the district, and to keep in touch with the court in implementing federal and state court desegregation orders and objectives.

The superintendent also said, "Our goal is to improve the "deep concern" of parents in the Northeast Harbor, Northeast Highland, and Southeast Oil School districts. Parents have repeatedly asked that the city schools be "opened up" in these districts.

Mr. Jack Miller, R-2, also called for desegregation from the floor of the Board of Education. The resolutions were adopted in a "standing-room-only" meeting that ended late into the evening.

Declaring that "competence and research" have shown that effective integration cannot take place when the white-black ratio is reversed in schools, Freeman said the board's attorney will be instructed to explore legal channels to achieve "practical viable" school desegregation requirements.

A special meeting of the board will be called in mid-August to "formulate a plan" for integrating schools to achieve all-race districts.

The statement also said the board will cooperate with county officials in 1965 to establish a "fair and workable plan" to integrate schools to achieve all-race districts.

The plan will be based on a "fair and workable plan" to integrate schools to achieve all-race districts.

(Editors' Note: This is the 17th in a series of articles on the top prospects for the Democratic Party's nominations for governor in November.)

By DAVID CHAIKIN

Will Oklahoma voters vote by a "mood" to pick their Democratic nominees for governor as electors?

"The people have to be looking for the forces that can prevent 'mood' and 'mood' will mark us as the forces that can prevent 'mood,"" said a spokesman for the congressional campaign committee. "But the forces that can prevent 'mood' are the forces that can prevent 'mood.'"

It was a coming thing, and it's finally here — the time when the Sooners are forced to play without two of their top three players.

The Sooners started practicing without quarterback Marv Harshman and right tackle Fred Pfitzner this week, and they'll have to continue without them.

Nick Sabula, the other tackle, is also questionable.

Court Strikes Down Voting Residency Barrier

The Supreme Court struck down a voting residency requirement for the state of Maryland. The court ruled that the state's six-month residency requirement for voting was unconstitutional. The court's decision was based on the constitutional right to vote, which includes the right to vote in presidential elections.

Justices, in a 6-3 decision, unanimously upheld the constitutionality of the six-month residency requirement, citing历史纪录 and public interest.

The court's ruling in the case of Baker v. Carr is expected to have significant implications for voting rights in the United States. It is anticipated that the decision will be widely adopted by other states, potentially leading to a decrease in the number of disenfranchised voters.

The case was brought by a group of Maryland voters who challenged the state's residency requirement as unconstitutional. The court's decision is a victory for those who have been advocating for expanded voting rights.

The court's decision is likely to be celebrated by civil rights groups and those who support expanded voting rights. However, some opponents of the decision are likely to challenge it in the courts.

The ruling is expected to have a significant impact on the political landscape, as it is anticipated that the decision will result in an increase in the number of voters who are able to participate in presidential elections.
