Winters Blames Bartlett For ‘Delay’

$34 MILLION SHIFT SET

Warren Calling Probe

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - Judge Warren O. Evans, who is a key figure in the Senate investigation of the Watergate scandal, announced Friday that he has begun preparations for the probe. He said he would hold a hearing on Monday.

The move comes in response to the Senate’s decision to suspend the investigation and the appointment of a special prosecutor to look into the matter.

Judge Evans, who is a member of the Senate’s Watergate Committee, said he would hold his first hearing on Monday.

The president has beenforced to remain in Washington, D.C., because he is on the verge of losing his legal rights after he refused to give evidence under oath.

Destruction Derby Just Part Of Job

By JERRY PRICE

Another leading in the Urban Renewal plan takes the day at Bradley & Oklahoma. His name is Bob McKee, a former Oklahoma City police chief.

His task is to oversee the wrecking of old buildings and streets, which will be demolished to make way for new developments.

Meanwhile, a group of residents is trying to save some of the older buildings in the area.

The group hopes to restore some of the old buildings to their original condition.

Meanwhile, the Federal Housing Administration has approved a $2 million loan to help finance the project.

In the meantime, the group is working to preserve as much of the old Oklahoma City as possible.

All Hell Would Break Loose

In a speech before the American Cancer Society, President Lyndon B. Johnson said, "The war against cancer is one of the most important and urgent tasks facing our nation."

However, the war against cancer is a battle against the very fabric of our society. The more we lose, the more we need to fight. The battle is not just against the disease, but against the hopelessness that comes with it.

The people of Oklahoma have been hit hard by cancer. The latest figures show that one in four Oklahomans will be diagnosed with cancer in their lifetime. But the battle is not over. We must continue to fight.

A recent survey conducted by the American Academy of Sleep Medicine has shown that sleep disorders affect a significant number of children. The survey, which was conducted among a sample of 1,000 children aged 3 to 12, found that nearly 20% of them suffered from insomnia or other sleep-related problems. The study also revealed that boys were more likely to be affected than girls. Parents are urged to seek professional help if they notice any signs of sleep disorders in their children.

Jeane Dixon’s Astrological Forecast

BY JEANE DIXON
MAY 11, 1969

Your Name: See below. The following is full of changes, communication. Changing habits to regain old friends. Business or personal requirements may have relocation for many of today’s natives. For those who have not moved recently—change. Today’s changes are not erratic, to the point of frustration or desire. They represent a new beginning.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A busy day for Aries. Work and business requirements may lead to relocation. Keep your mind open to new ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Communication with friends or family may be necessary. You may need to make a decision on a financial matter.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): First some new perspective on life. Gemini new acquaintances seem to be as they may become friends. Keep to your usual old friends (particularly those who have not changed). There is a potential for new contacts today. You are generally needed today. In all forms of the art of mechanical equipment. After some initial confusion, a goal of success is in sight. Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Consider focusing on your business or personal relationship. You may need to make a decision on a financial matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your relative and neighbor expect you to see this family. Do the necessary groundwork, make the plans there are gifts for you here and there. There are no obliging=

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Money is to spend as needed for relaxation and the use of these there are gifts for you here and there. Take this time to check everything out and make another decision. Finding the "why" in a situation may be more important than any other determination.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): There is a potential drive between your social obligations and your desires. Personal interests. Communication is most necessary today. With the moment when you wish to express yourself. Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Today you may be required to make a decision on a financial matter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This business may require you to take a chance. There should be some help available.

Pool Going Uptown,
And So Goes Golden Days

By JOHN DOUGLAS

A story begins to unfold when the sun begins to set and the stars begin to glisten in the sky. The Empire Pool, located in the heart of downtown, is bustling with activity as children and adults gather to enjoy the warm summer evening. The pool is a popular destination for families and friends, offering a place to swim, play, and socialize.

While the pool is the main attraction, the Empire Florist, located just across the street, is also a hot spot for the evening. The store is filled with beautiful flowers and plants, and the aroma of fresh blossoms wafts through the air. The store is open until late, and people can be seen browsing and purchasing flowers for their loved ones.

As the night progresses, the pool becomes even more lively. Music plays in the background, and people dance and sing along. The water is warm and inviting, and people can be seen swimming and splashing around. The pool is a great place to cool off and have fun.

The Empire Florist is also open late into the night, and people can still be seen shopping for flowers. The store is illuminated with soft lighting, and the flowers are arranged beautifully. The store is a great place to find the perfect gift for your loved ones.

Overall, the Empire Pool and Florist are great places to spend a warm summer evening. Whether you are looking for a dip in the pool or a beautiful bouquet of flowers, these places are sure to provide a pleasant experience.
A Real Pro, Finally

Wagner On The Upswing

This was pretty much the way Wagner played at Briarcliff. But after a few years in Briarcliff he and his wife, Marlene, began to enjoy the Upswing for his distinctive deflection of another woman's arm: "He's got a lot of style," she said, "but when he's around, I never seem to hear my name." Wagner's friendship with Crozier dates back to his marriage to Natalie Wood in 1953, and it was Crozier who arranged for Marlene to meet Wagner when she was working for Ella Raines. Natalie and Marlene were close friends, and Marlene was something to be grateful for. They became very good friends, and to that extent, Natalie's career was more successful. She was never the kind of actor who had really made it big, but she was appreciated by her fans. When she died in 1955, she was only 28 years old. She was buried at Hollywood Forever, where she was surrounded by her friends and family. It was a sad day for everyone who knew her.

Guess Who's Running Tel Aviv Discotheque

By WILLIAM C. GRIFFIN

JERUSALEM—Whatever happened to Teddy Mendy? The man who was once Israel's biggest discotheque and whose massive empire was once the pride and joy of the Middle East. Nearly 10 years ago, Teddy Mendy was at the peak of his career. He owned several discotheques in Israel and was known as the king of new wave music. But then, a series of legal battles, bankruptcies, and personal troubles brought his empire to a grinding halt. Today, Teddy Mendy is a shadow of his former self, estranged from his family and friends, living in relative poverty in a small apartment in Tel Aviv.

Teddy Mendy's rise to fame began in the early '70s, when he opened his first discotheque, Teddy's, in downtown Tel Aviv. It was an instant success, and before long, Teddy was a household name in Israel. His charismatic personality and his ability to connect with people made him a natural leader, and he quickly built a loyal following among the young and the hip. But then, in the late '70s, it all started to unravel. A series of business missteps and legal battles led to the collapse of Teddy's, and Teddy found himself on the brink of financial ruin.

Let's Make Certain The People Elect Their President

By HUBERT HUMPHREY

Passengers once again in 1968 with our dangerous 19th-century Electoral College system, and by a very small margin, the nation did choose a President. But we were lucky. A change of a few hundred thousand votes could have plucked the nation into uncertainty and potential chaos.

I remember watching the returns as President Nixon was receding into the 21st electoral vote. It appeared he would be re-elected, 443 to 34. But, because of my large vote margin in New York, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, I went ahead in the popular vote.

If it had not been for President Nixon's narrow victory shortly before the election, "I think that the man whose name appeared in the popular vote, the man who gets the Presidency would have very great difficulty in governing.

Fortunately for Mr. Nixon and the nation, he held ahead in the popular vote and there was no doubt as to whether he would win the Presidency.

What are the alternatives to the crucified Electoral College system?

1. The direct election plan would abolish the Electoral College in favor of direct election by the people. If no candidate received 50 per cent of the vote, the two candidates would meet in a runoff election.

2. The proportional plan - would allow the electoral vote system, but would apportion the votes down to four or five decimal-point percentages of the popular vote, to each candidate. If no candidate received 50 per cent of the electoral vote, the two candidates would meet in a runoff election (this time limited by popular vote, not electoral vote).

3. The district plan would also retain the electoral vote system. The popular vote winner in each Congressional district would receive one electoral vote, and the popular vote winner in each state would receive two electoral votes. Also, there would be a runoff if no candidate received 45 per cent of the electoral vote.

Which is the fairest and best plan?

I support the direct election plan. It alone guarantees that the President will be the popular vote winner. With either the proportional or district plans, the popular vote winner may not be elected President. In fact, Mr. Nixon would have been elected President in 1968 under either the proportional or district plan, even though Mr. John F. Kennedy was the popular vote winner.

The direct election plan treats all citizens and each vote equally. There are no mathematical manipulations, and no devaluation of Pennsylvania. Every citizen would have equal incentive to vote - there would be a "safe" state whose citizens are discouraged from voting.

Candidates would campaign nationally, instead of by state. In the full campaign, I concentrated my campaign on the big electoral vote "swing" states. Under the Electoral College system, a candidate could neglect the 45 biggest states to be elected, as candidates naturally concentrate their campaigns on those states, thereby ignoring the smaller states. Under the direct election plan, candidates would be encouraged to visit and campaign all over the nation.

The direct election plan is later to potential candidates. Nixon. There is now heavy pressure to nominate candidates from big states in hopes that the candidates will bring that bloc of electoral votes with him. In the past 25 presidential elections, for example, Nixon has been on the national ticket.

I find that choice in August. I rejected the "big state" nonsense and picked the man I thought was most likely to be my Vice President. Senator Muskie comes from Maine, with four electoral votes. Opposition of change is the Electoral College should be removed because it is a key part of the Federal system. I do not agree. In 1968, the "Great Compromise" on the issue of large states versus small states occurred on the makeup of Congress. The Senate, with two members from each state, represents state interests and the Federal principles, not the Electoral College.

An important issue in any electoral system change is state interests. Many millions of small states from the Electoral College system because each state has two bonus electoral votes plus these each state on a population basis. Alaska has no electoral vote for every $5,000,033 population, while California has no electoral vote for every $5,000,000 population. But this small state advantage is more than counteracted by the "winner-take-all" feature of the present electoral system.

The popular vote winner in a state takes all of that state's electoral votes. Whether the margin is one or 100,000 votes, all of the electoral votes in a state go to one man. So a narrow win in a big state can be more important than a big victory in a number of smaller states.

The direct election plan does away with the winner-take-all rule. The direct election plan does not discriminate against any state.

While both the proportional and district plans do away with the winner-take-all rule, they retain the electoral vote system and the resulting advantage to small states. Either of these plans thus discriminates against larger states. Only the direct election plan is fair to all states.

The direct election plan also avoids the divisive effects of regional or solitary parties, since candidates of such parties will have little chance of developing enough nationwide strength to deny a popular vote victory to one of the major candidates.

It is essential, as we learned in 1868, that America has a great man, virtually ignoring the smaller states. Under the direct election plan, candidates would be encouraged to visit and campaign all over the nation.

The direct election plan is later to potential candidates. Nixon. There is now heavy pressure to nominate candidates from big states in hopes that the candidates will bring that bloc of electoral votes with him. In the past 25 presidential elections, for example, Nixon has been on the national ticket.

I find that choice in August. I rejected the "big state" nonsense and picked the man I thought was most likely to be my Vice President. Senator Muskie comes from Maine, with four electoral votes. Opposition of change is the Electoral College should be removed because it is a key part of the Federal system. I do not agree. In 1968, the "Great Compromise" on the issue of large states versus small states occurred on the makeup of Congress. The Senate, with two members from each state, represents state interests and the Federal principles, not the Electoral College.
All That the Law Allows

By EDWARD SILBERFARB

In the last century, proper young ladies were schooled at the use of the word "tart" in polite conversation. It was, they felt, a much too direct term. So for a part of the audience that could not easily be called a "tart" instead. Even please sound on "tart" during what H. L. Mencken called "The Golden Age of English" for The American Language.

Now "tart" grows only on trees, and its reference is now to any part of the body that goes unmention-able in public. Even screams or screams and screams in public can be ignored.

The book that best demonstrates this new era of pomposity is Philip Roth's Portnoy's Complaint, and one man's element is a psychoanalyst. In, the hour spent on his sex life, from the early twenties of his mother unrolling her musings over his inhis latest experiences, an orgy in Rome, and a rest in Israel. Throughout, Roth never hesitates to call a spade a spade.

The result is a page-turner seductive that takes the breath off Moby. Indeed, it toujours one-looking why James Joyce's Ulysses, which was banned until 1935, ever caused even a raised judicial reference. Of course Norman Mailer had to invent a three-letter word to replace a more reasonable four-letter one in order to get "The Naked and the Dead" past the censors.

The dramatic sets are clever enough to make literature toward the extreme in falsehood.

"From here on it gets rough" (as in "For Every Man I Can't Do What the Woman Wants," some money involved, unsecured and unguaranteed: a few weeks after the end of Act I in the rock musical and go nonprofit (with the naked, silent heroine tied to a chair) in Street

Critics were wondering, "What can they do for an encore?" and the theatre soon had the answer. An off-Broadway production this year, Get! celebrated sexual acts on stage, and the "Swedish Synapse" in The Carusos (Yale) showed more of the same on the screen.

The once-favorable forlornness has been as de-not one publisher who specializes in the ter-cates of the book was cut off. Bernard Geis American Books, just published David Copperfield's The Copperfield, considered in the timing it was being written it to be a fantastic view of what the sexual revolutions could lead to. In the book, a sec-autobiography that is a superior book showing almost interruption in the general publicity for the book..."

The book was on sale. Geis said in a recent interview. "We thought it had a future ahead of its time, but between the writing and the publications events had caught up with it. The future had already occurred." If the future is already apparent, what is left? Not much, from what Grane..."

And not everyone agrees that the first expression of modern literature is a new phenomenon. As Marx said, "There's too much that I can't make out something that isn't."

Perhaps public morality is changing, but it's all for the better. Books of the past have said far more than Portnoy's Complaint.

"But today's pornographers are not saying anything new, certainly their product is more publicly available and more available than ever before. A high-handling officer offers recently declared: "In the last year and a half, the publication of pornography, both hardcover and powered, has become a major phenomenon." He authorizes in a changing interpretation of the laws,

"There is an overwhelming need in the federal...

"To say, "to allow an adult to have imp-ness by itself, as it is not viewed upon it." The U.S. Supreme Court recently underscored the lawyer's contention when it upheld the conviction of Robert Ellis Staley, an Admissions, O.G., bachelor, for possession of obscene material (film) in his home.

In the Stanley case, the court said in effect that obscenity in the home is a Constitutional right.

If the "First Amendment means anything; it means that a state has no business telling a man, sitting alone in his own house, what books he may read or watch."

Justice Thurgood Marshall said: "Our whole constitutional heritage relieves the thought of giving government the power to control one's ears."

The judicial trend began in 1953 when Federal Judge John Woolsey lifted the ban on Ulysses. Then in 1957 the U.S. Supreme Court, in uphيل-

ing the convictions of Samuel Roth, a publisher and dealer in erotica, had qualified that were expelled by rulings on the novel, Fanny Hill. The guidelines, sometimes called the Gilpin of Roth, established that a work could be banned as obscene simply if it "appeals to prurient interests" but "without referring sexual importance," and is "patently offensive under a national standard."

There was no such flexibility under the Roth-

Fanny Hill standard, and the standard grew more flexible with the U.S. Supreme Court's 1958 decitions in the Stanley case, reversing the conviction of a Ohio lawyer who distributed "private heterosexual abilities. In that the court was convinced that the man visited with others, it determined that the books in question were not said to be offensive to an unswerving public.

Two Supreme Court justices, Hugo Black and William O. Douglas, have maintained all prosecutions for obscenity are unconstitutional. And Justice Black has also raised the problem of definition: Of course, I understand that pornography means lust, but I have never seen anybody who say what it is."

Another Supreme Court justice who has looked toward freedom of expression A. Parton. His position that certain allegedly obscene images could be shown brought him into fire from the Superior Court in California when he was nominated by President Johnson as chief justice. Conning to his support was the Yale Law School, which held an "Alec Forta Film Festival" to show that the commercial movies were quite innocuous.

Liberation, films and plays are not the only issues for direct expression, For example, actor

Charles Buck stars in a new production of "Hamlet" and the recent production of "The Women".

"If the public is wondering how the end of the new experiment will go, it is also wondering why it has more this far. Our answer from Father John Callan, director of the Center for Communications at Fordham University. He said the crisis

all is the Puritans, a reaction to the expense atmosphere of family, church and school.

"What we are going through now is a shadowy evolution, explaining a new morality," he said."

Sue Donohue tells of the Joes about her husband's job. . . .

he's driving car No. 6 on Con-Car east at Lagrange Basin.

by Sue DONOHUE as told to BILLEVISON

Last November I moved to a Las Vegas hotel with Sandy Hall, while her husband was in the emergency room. While fighting for his life in the Stardust Grand Prix—and one of racing's saddest plunges Jim Hall's car had struck the rear of another car, flipped, smashed back onto the track at more than two miles an hour and burnt into flames. Today Jim is in a crucial. He says he'll arrive in a racing car in a pouch on November day we didn't know if he'd ever walk again. I was weal by Sandy's assistance. "How do you stand it?" I asked. "Me, I'm out of my head by now!"

"Oh, you right way," she said. "Like for when, when what happened, then I'll go to the police."

I thought of my own Joe, who might have been in that accident if ignorance trouble hadn't known what to do. The car before it even started. I thought of my big, of Joe, David, 6, who were at our home in Medina, R.I.

We try to tell ourselves that racing isn't so dangerous. Every driver on the track has been tested at least once, but I've learned that one of Mark's experiences (he says he's not superstitious) is that he's hit in a lot of his races. Whether the driver or the car, the driver can't finish his next race.

While we're on the subject of the car, let me explain a little about them so that you'll understand why it's so easy for the racing driver to fall into mental thinking we don't have many worries to worry about. For one thing, he's not a spectator, like the audience after the car in the fire. It's too easy to spot something wrong, like an all-bet. He has a choice: After he finds his way in, he's faced with a decision. Mark's his car will stand up to the strain, and I know he can handle the car if it wants to be crazy. OK, let's assume there's suddenly "plop" on the gas of my motorcycle when you first hit fast, but I get over it fast.

In a way, I've been lucky. The two times tragedy's had it easy for Mark during a race, I wasn't there to see it. The first time was at Watkins Glen, N.Y., in 1962. Two cars ahead of Mark had had a crash on the other side of the hill and when Mark had overtaken the top John Connolly's car was broadside to the road. Mark tried to take his hand out of the car to keep the car from spinning. He couldn't make it, but the car spun and Mark hit the guardrail. Mark's car hit his, and pieces of cars began flying off. Mark's car went down a hillside, leaving a trail of gasoline behind it.

A long time ago, I saw films of what had happened. My husband cheerfully threw a "Crash and Burn" party at our house (in Stony Brook, N.Y., at the time) and showed the pictures to all our friends. The first time, the sequence is, I'd eat my eyes and turned away. But then I told myself that was silly—were right there in the room with my hands and so I watched the repeat of it. It was horrible. The shears of Mark's side against the wall of gasoline, and you actually see the frames shake after the car has hit and split it.

Mark was strangely cool. He casually put his hands down over the floor and nodded his safety belt. Then he leaped off the car and ran across the course and rolled out over—just as the car exploded.

As I watched all this on the screen, my mind flashed to the first time I'd seen Mark after the accident. I'd been born when he was injured, and I heard the news on the phone. Minutes later a waving friend came in to tell me the news. Mark was as calm as the other. I called the hospital for the house—had nobody to drive and had Mark in the car. I even tried to speak to him, but he was the happiest person in the world when he said, "I'm going to be all right.

I was there all that time. But after a while, I saw Mark in a car. The last time I saw him, Mark was there. I only knew him when I had my son.

Since that time, I've ridden with him many times. I used to wait at our garage to hear the roll of the tires. I have this feeling in my stomach when I think of the first time I rode in the car with him. I knew then I wanted to know more about Mark. Since that time, I've ridden with him many times. But Donohue gave her batch before the qualifying trials for the Indianapolis 500-mile Special Sprint. Last year, Mark's third lap at Indianapolis was 191.1978 miles an hour. He didn't win, but he came close.

THINK ABOUT DEATH
and START TO LIVE!

It is human nature to put off thoughts of death as long as we can. One day, our parents are young and healthy, and the next day they are bedridden and in pain. We are certainly aware that death is inevitable, but we do not want to think about it. Even in the face of our own mortality, we continue to live as if nothing will ever happen to us. We do not allow ourselves to think about death because it is too difficult to face. We are afraid of the unknown and the uncertain. We do not want to think about what lies ahead. But we cannot avoid death forever. It will come someday, and we must be prepared.

Hobart Humphrey

(from page 2) made significant progress, despite all the disorder surrounding conventions and conventions hall, in reinforcing our party process. By 1975, the Democratic National Convention and all the local elections were won by the people. The Green Party is a national effort. Our goal is to change the nation, not just one state and not just one city. The people's will is to be expressed in every election, and so it is.

To do this, one has to understand the nature of our political process. The process of politics is the process of the people. It is a process that is driven by the people, not by the politicians. It is a process that is driven by the will of the people, not by the will of the establishment. It is a process that is driven by the people, not by the people who would have us believe otherwise.

Confusion In Jobland

Do you know the difference between an executive career counselor, a management consultant, and a management-oriented career counselor? Chances are you don't. Yet knowing the answers could help you to land a new and better job.

Tom White found out just how few job seekers know the answers when he published a report of eighty practices of successful career counselors. "We Get You The Job You Deserve," he wrote on December 14, 1980. A number of readers wrote in to ask just what work was involved in the field. So, whether you're looking for a job now, or thinking of making a move, here's a handy classification:

Executive recruiters such as E. A. Butler, president of the National Association of Executive Recruiters and the man who played a leading role in establishing such a career counseling in his 1970 book, "Get the Job You Want," are in the management-oriented field. They don't even seek you out, but are called on by other executive recruiters to work for client companies. They are actually less interested in your career than they are in men who are holding jobs and rolling up outstanding records. If you work at all, no matter what it is, they are no help to you.蘑菇蘑菇蘑菇蘑菇蘑菇蘑菇

Green Grow the Salads!

How the World Cooks By MYRA WALDO, TW: Feb 1965

Grown Salad

Use any salad greens, or combination of greens, such as Boston or Belgian endive (escholus), lettuce, romaine, chicory, endive, or watercress. Wash the greens and remove any woody or discolored stems. Chill until crisp and cold. Remove from the refrigerator about 15 minutes before serving. Immerse leaves in water lightly with any desired dressing until the greens are well coated.

SPINACH SALAD

1 pound spinach, washed
1 cup French dressing (see recipe)
Buy very fresh young spinach, the younger the better. Cut off the stems, wash thoroughly and drain. Chill. Pare the bacon until crisp. Dress, crumble and add to the spinach. Add the dressing and toss until well coated. Serve at once — do not allow salad to sit. Serves 6-8.

ONION-CUCUMBER SALAD

2 cups coarsely chopped onions
2 cups finely chopped cucumber
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Peel the onion and cucumber, cut into paper-thin slices. Cover with dressed ice water. Cover and chill 4 hours. Drain well, add a mixture of the dressing, mayonnaise, salt and pepper and toss together. Serves 4-6.

MIXED VEGETABLE SALAD

1 cup cooked potatoes
1 cup cooked carrots
1 cup cooked peas
1 cup cooked green beans
1 cup cooked celery
1 cup cooked corn
Mix the ingredients, or put in a screw-topped jar and shake until well blended. Makes about 1 cup.

FRENCH DRESSING

1/4 cup vinegar
1/4 cup oil
Mix the ingredients, put in a screw-topped jar and shake until well blended.

SMOKING TOO MUCH?

HERE'S A GREAT WAY TO CUT DOWN GRADUALLY BUT POSITIVELY—EVEN TAPER OFF COMPLETELY!

You know what you're smoking too much. Whether the warning is cigarette hack, morning tobacco mouth, raw throat or the worst, uneasy knowledge that smoking is dangerous. Yet you're still smoking too much. All right. The way is to cut down gradually but positively as much as you want. And then, after a while, it's key to keep right on smoking—but with the remarkable new Count-Down® cigarette holder which was designed to let you cut down on smoking as much as they want just by twisting the dial!

JUST TURN DIAL TO INHALE LESS...

THE COUNT-DOWN HOLDER

The key feature of this scientifically designed, patented product is a dial with various “smoke” settings: 100%—no smoke, 80%—60%—40%—20%—0%. Set dial at 100 to get 100% smoke, twist dial to 80% smoke and 20% cool smoke to get air free and so on. Simply turning the dial lets you gradually cut down on concentration of smoke inhaled—yet you get an even "full" at all times.

A PROGRAM TO CUT DOWN GRADUALLY

Set dial at 100 the first week—then at 80 the second week. By the end of the second week you will probably find that you have accustomed yourself to a cooler, smoother, more dilute smoke. Keep cutting down 20% a week (but no faster as you must accustom yourself to each new setting) until you are at the lowest concentration that is still satisfying. Don't be surprised if along the way you suddenly realize you're no longer smoking— that your mouth feels cleaner in the morning, your throat less irritated.

AND A PROGRAM TO STOP

No doubt about it...cutting down helps but stopping is best. The beginning of this program is the same as for "cutting down". Set dial at 100 the first week. Then 80 the second week—60 the third—40 the fourth week—20 the fifth week—and finally after you light up, twist to zero whenever you smoke during the sixth week—and you're off smoking! The whole secret is in cutting down gradually to such a dilute concentration of smoke that when you actually do quit it's not such an abrupt change. But don't cheat: make up your mind to stop smoking and then cut down 20% a week—no more—no less—until you've completed the program.

Bridging That Gap

DEAR EDITOR:

As a 15-year-old high school student, I was truly impressed with the special youth plan. It was very educational and not only did I read and review every article, I could hardly believe you would publish our beliefs and (most importantly) not ours. I respect you...for adults.

RUDOLPH Black
Rutland, Vt.

DEAR EDITOR:

The theme of knowledge setting like house-a-poodle, giving negative...in the 80's generation. The phrase is "the younger generation" do a little and something and not to misunderstand the younger generation. They talk to each other. Did it ever dawn on them that their parents love them? All I can say is, I admire the young people with backbone—let's put leaves.

ANDREW G. MARK
Red Bank, N. J.

DEAR EDITOR:

If my opinion this time is valueable because they are clearly showing the true state of affairs in a form that is palatable to all, I'm sorry. The facts are: What is the real damage that seems to be mining in the majority of today's youth? Respect! And, more importantly, what seems to be mining is respect for adults.

S. A. DUNNING
New Canaan, Ct.

DEAR EDITOR:

There is much hot air, so much wind, so much trying to "place the blame" between kids and parents if it is a wonder we don't all sink from word pollution.

JOHN J. SULLIVAN
St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR EDITOR:

I read the entire section on teenagers. I thought that many of the articles were terse, but I also thought that many of the articles should not have been put in an inner devoted to teenagers, namely because they did not show the very letters they think.

BART ROSEN, Age 15
Brooklyn, N. Y.

DEAR EDITOR:

I am sick to the teeth with a lot of the young for fighting and that they have nothing but more than anyone else. All these happen just to have been in the entire world.

CHARLES J. O'BRIEN
(No Address)

DEAR EDITOR:

The article by the young people deals with change in society, their questions. Bute the article by the older people, shows that nothing completely entered the parents of the young writers and dealt with superficial criticism, ridicule and self-assertiveness.

S.S. Johnny Carson
CHARLIE RICE'S PUNCHBOWL

"You just don't know what you'll get when you open your mail," Johnny Carson told the other day when we went to break bread with him in his cozy downstairs apartment overlooking the United Nations Building.

"For instance, just today I got this letter—" he handed me a thick envelope in an apologetic setting. "It's from a little old lady who says she's working on a new story for right now, and now the police have a warrant against her. She really wants the money, and I don't know whether it's for her country or if it's for me. Anyway, she feels that I ought to do the warrant for her. But if you've got five hundred dollars, I want you to make some money."

"You also make other, more calculating friends when you're out at night. I can't tell you how many thousands of strangers that people suggest. They always want money so as to make a sale—generally $500 or $1,000 a month. But the biggest thing is that some of them sort of make sense. For instance, there was a professional diver who sent me a note thanking me for making him think. I forget how much he wanted, perhaps $500. And he suggested that if I made books, he'd be interested in the S.S. Johnny Carson." After all, it was a good bargain offer.

Not every country has a transatlantic line named after him. Have you ever crossed the ocean on the S.S. Jack Benny or the S.S. Pigeon Delivery?"

How To Buy An Air Conditioner

The dirtier the better... and this applies just as much to room units as it does to the more complex central systems. If you wait for the first heat wave, you will not have time to shop around and find the best deal.

Your retailer will do his best under the circumstances, but you must know how to make honest comparisons and talk up with him the best air conditioning for your home. If you rush, your retailer will be able to give the attention and service your air conditioning deserves. Central air conditioning must be serviced and the installation made usually a definite choice.

If you have a room without central heat or central air conditioning, you have to think in terms of a unit that will suit your needs. With the present-day requirements, there is time to think and not rush while you're buying the unit that best serves the people of your home and the doctor's store.

It is every time a time to "Get yourself a dealer handle of a deal. It's when buying air conditioning... the right one and at the right price. If you buy one of the outsize white boxes, you'll pay for it in comfort, satisfaction, and trouble. You're making the small investment in time and effort to get it. One-year air conditioning can be an undesirable and uncomfortable. The big box will not only add to the cost of the house, but will also be hard to control. remodel.

When you buy a new central air conditioning system, size the BTU's of the room air conditioners. The number of BTU's of the room air conditioners must be from here you can get some idea of the size of the room, the size of the area, the room size, and how many people you have.

Central air conditioning is another story. Your dealer will want to visit your house and check the size of the windows and doors and how the sun shines on the outside walls, and he will also have a salesperson to do the room air conditioning.

Efficiency Receives High Priority In New Gibson Units

In Gibson units the water supply is produced by the unit itself to improve the unit's efficiency. The te- mperature is regulated by the Gibson water pump which controls the water flow and ensures that the water is at the correct temperature for efficient heating. The heater controls Gibson units with an automatic thermostat which adjusts the water temperature when necessary. The Gibson units also feature automatic shutoffs to prevent overheating.

Enjoy A Little Winter This Summer

(... and vice-versa next winter)

Enjoy the benefits of an electric comfort conditioning system the year 'round!

During hot summer months it's easy to enjoy the benefits of electric air conditioning. You know all the nice things about electric air conditioning — you can feel them! The same things are true of electric heat. Clean, quiet, efficient electric heating equipment operates efficiently when your home is properly insulated to eliminate drafts and reduce heat loss. And electric heating is just as practical in older homes as it is in new ones. Now, what you'd really like to know is — just how much will it cost to install and maintain? You can easily have the answers to these questions and any others you may have — without obligation — by calling one of the certified electric heating contractors in your area.

The names of the certified electric heating contractors are listed in the yellow pages or are available through your local outlet office.

The bright ideas are always electric.

1513 REASONS WHY YOU’RE COOLER AND HAPPIER WITH Whirlpool AIR CONDITIONING
FROM DICK CHRISTMAN

Modern air conditioning had its beginning in an adventitious place. In 1902, a young engineer, Willits Cotcin, devised equipment that took the heat out of summer weather and controlled the air’s temperature and moisture.
Cold, crisp, clean and dry air now could be brought into your home or office to set a climate designed to meet your comfort requirements. This innovation in building design and equipment created a new enthusiasm for living and working in buildings that heat, wind and weather could not control.

The Whirlpool air conditioning system was the first to provide a complete indoor climate control system — acviation, dehumidification and recirculation of clean air — all in one compact, convenient unit.

Experts See Early, Hot Summer

Long-range weather forecasting services used by industry to help in the planning and production of products such as air conditioners, are predicting an early, hot summer. As a result, the air conditioning industry is preparing for record-breaking sales of air conditioning units.

"Our dealers," said James M. Blank, air-conditioning sales manager for Performance Appliances, Inc., "are looking ahead to a good air conditioning season. The forecasts are showing that we will have a hot summer and by the time summer is over, we should have sold a record number of units this summer."

Longtime observers of the air conditioning industry have noted that the summer of 1969 is shaping up to be a record summer in terms of sales. Manufacturers are already receiving orders for units that are expected to be delivered in the early part of the summer.

The high temperatures of the summer are expected to have a significant impact on the sales of air conditioners. As the temperatures rise, people will be more likely to purchase air conditioners to cool their homes.

Manufacturers are also expecting a higher demand for air conditioners in the southern part of the country, where the summer temperatures are generally higher. They are also anticipating a higher demand in the midwestern part of the country, where the summer temperatures are expected to be higher than usual.

The high temperatures are also expected to have a positive impact on the sales of air conditioners. As people become more aware of the benefits of air conditioning, they will be more likely to purchase air conditioners to improve the comfort of their homes.
