LA Officer Thought Him A Sniper

The Los Angeles Police Department yesterday was under heavy fire when it became known that a Los Angeles police officer, who was the victim of a tragic and violent death, was killed while trying to stop a suspected bank robber. The officer, who was a member of the city's elite Special Weapons and Tactics team, was killed during a confrontation with the suspect in a bank robbery that occurred in downtown Los Angeles. The officer, who was a 20-year veteran of the force, was shot multiple times and died at the scene. The suspect, who remains at large, was later apprehended and charged with murder.

The incident has sparked outrage and calls for accountability within the LAPD. The family of the fallen officer has filed a lawsuit against the police department, alleging negligence and a failure to provide adequate training and equipment. The family is seeking compensation for their loss and is demanding changes to the training and supervision procedures within the LAPD.

Urban League 'Cannot' Back Schools Plan

City Council Members Urge Support

The Urban League of Los Angeles has announced its opposition to a proposed education reform plan that would implement charter schools in the city's public school system. In a statement to the City Council, the League called for support of the existing public school system and expressed concern over the potential impact of charter schools on communities of color and low-income students.

The League's position comes as the City Council is set to vote on the charter school plan, which would create new charter schools in the city and allow existing charter schools to expand. The League has been a long-time advocate for the city's public schools and has expressed deep concern over the potential consequences of charter school expansion.
