Russia Likely To See Nixon Trip As Anti-Soviet Gesture

By CHARLES M. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON (Army News) — President Nixon's coming visit to Benin, the Benin Republic, and the Benin National Day is expected to benefit the Benin economy by introducing new business opportunities and by promoting closer ties between Benin and the United States. The visit is expected to be a milestone in the burgeoning relations between Benin and the United States, and it is anticipated that it will strengthen the ties between the two countries.

LODZ, Poland—A groundbreaking,买力 powerful new documentary by a top Polish director, who is also a gay activist, explores the complex and often painful experiences of two young men growing up in a society where being gay is still considered a taboo. The film, titled "For Now, I Am Not Very Gay," is set in the 1970s, a time when homosexuality was illegal in Poland, and it follows the lives of two young men, one of whom is gay, as they navigate the challenges of growing up and coming to terms with their identities. The film's director, who is also a gay activist, is determined to shed light on the realities of living in a society where being gay is still considered a taboo, and he hopes that the film will inspire others to speak out and to fight for their rights. The film's premiere is scheduled for next month, and it is already receiving critical acclaim for its powerful storytelling and its unflinching depiction of the struggles faced by gay people in Poland.

Keen Competition Highlights Fort Sill Hunt Horse Show

BY LAURENCE

PHOTO BY... The 11th annual horse show of the Fort Sill Hunt Club was held last week. The event was held on the large lawn in front of the club's headquarters in the southwest of the camp. The competition took place in the afternoon of the Saturday, and the show was attended by a large audience. The horse show was judged by an experienced panel of judges, and the results were announced at the end of the show. The competition was divided into several categories, including the hunt seat, dressage, and jumping. The first place winner in each category received a trophy and recognition.

American Motor’s 1969 Javelin

Javelin: the current factory team has asked for Javelin suspension as it originally appeared. It had a disconcerting tendency to continue right ahead if a sharp turn was entered at the track speed. Sabre refinements, rather than basic change in the suspension, corrected this and the Javelin was incorporated into production on a running basis.

A switch for 80 to 130 cable linkage for the throttle is another example of a race-inspired improvement. So, too, is the 69 adoption of the well-known front transmission linkage and standard factory equipment. Javelin engine is the “347-street-rect” 440-cubic-inch six, a fairly modern design with a seven-main crankshaft and integrated emission control system.

It can be had with a floor shifted, three-speed manual transmission or a column controlled three-speed automatic. A 290-cubic-inch, 280- horsepower V-8 with two-barrel carburetor adds a console shifted automatic to its list of transmission choices.

Then there is the engine that forms the basis for the Trans-Am car, a four-barrel 360 that with a factory rating of 300 horsepower, is obviously nowhere near its full potential.

But American Motors, through extensive campaign and upgrading of all its products, is making a much bigger dent in the American automobile market than its competitors had thought possible only a few years ago.

Continued upgrading of the Javelin will make it a promising competitor in its field. The design, interior, etc., indicate a 1,800 cu. ft. truck-size car, largest in the pony car field—a standard instrument panel, simple and safe, all are in the Javelin’s favor.

'Krakatoa' Wraps Viewer In Lava

Cinerama Hits Thousand-League Stride With Dazzling Film

By CLARK MINES

Cinerama, usually a de luxe presentation, was staged at the Bonham Theatre recently when a storey called 'Krakatoa' was shown. This was a new and different kind of film, with the best possible chance of breaking the Cinerama parade.

The film was a long, long story about the story of the eruption of the volcano 'Krakatoa'. The story was told in a series of flashbacks, with the main action taking place at the time of the eruption. The film was shot in Cinerama, which is a special kind of film where the images are projected in a large, circular screen.

The film was produced by the famous American director, who is known for his ability to create films that have a powerful emotional impact. The story was told in a very emotional way, with the viewers feeling as if they were actually witnessing the eruption of the volcano.

The film was a great success, and it is expected to be one of the most popular films of the year. The Cinerama screen was fully packed, and the audience was captivated by the story of 'Krakatoa'.

"Do We Really Need a VEEP?" by ERIC F. GOLDMAN

"Now and again the reports come from Washington of the efforts of Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew to find something to do with himself. He feels that he has been in the good graces of the American people for the last 24 years, and he is somewhat miffed that he has not been given anything to do.

The reports are often exaggerated. In the past, the Vice-President has been known to take on more than he can handle, and he is often seen at meetings and conferences with his head in the sand, his eyes closed, and his mouth open.

A recent report claimed that the Vice-President had been seen at a meeting with the President, holding a piece of paper with the words "I can't do it" written on it. "It's not true," said a spokesman for the Vice-President. "He was just trying to make a joke."
Air-Travel Aids

Washington, D.C.

The nation's air travel problem seems to be getting worse, with the latest drag on travel being the delays caused by delays in the air and congestion on the ground. These two are being emphasized by the press' idea of author and agentileen J. and the idea that something is being done about it, is not.

According to Dr. Ralph R. Lamb's of the Federal Aviation Agency, some "air-travel delays" may appear in the near future. While the problem is expected to improve, the delays are expected to continue. The FAA is working on a program to improve the situation, and a new system is being tested by the Authority.

In 1776, Britain Hardly Cared

By DONALD WAYNE

As one of the Declaration of Independence opened to the world on July 4, 1776, in Philadelphia, England, the world was in a state of shock. The world's eyes were on the American colonies, where 13 rebellious colonies had declared their independence from British rule. The news was reported in newspapers across the world, and people were left wondering what would happen next.

The same year, a young man named Ben Franklin was living in London, where he was working as a representative of the American colonies. Known for his wit and intelligence, Franklin was a man of many talents. He was a scientist, inventor, diplomat, and writer. He was also a master of public relations, and his ability to communicate effectively helped to spread the message of the American Revolution.

Franklin's influence in London was significant, and he used his position to help the American cause. He was able to connect with key figures in the British government, and he worked to build alliances that would support the American cause. He was also able to use his connections to help American soldiers and sailors, providing them with the resources they needed to fight against the British.

Despite the fact that Britain was hardly caring about the American Revolution, Franklin knew that the future of the United States depended on the success of the revolution. He worked tirelessly to build support for the American cause, and he was a key figure in the early days of the United States.

The American Revolution was a turning point in history, and it is impossible to understand the modern world without understanding the events of 1776. Ben Franklin was a key figure in that revolution, and his influence continues to be felt today.

The Lads in the Corporate Corner

Carol Rotwin

Robin had vowed to go on the day we instituted "ladies' hour," because she was a "modern woman," uninterested in traditional Kraupstam.

I mean, they've got to get something about dressing up. A lot of people have been dressing up way too much... and they don't like it.

But with all the new books, Robin and I have been thinking about it.

Okay, so what do you think about the whole idea of "ladies' hour"?

I think it's a great idea. I mean, it gives us a chance to be ourselves, to get away from the office, to have some fun.

But isn't it a little bit, I don't know, girly?

Well, I don't really think so. I mean, we're still at work, and we're still in the office, so it's not like we're running off to the beach or anything.

Anyway, I'm definitely going to be there. I can't wait!

The Reader's E.A.B.

It was a day that truly ranked among the worst of my life. My boss, Mr. Green, called me into his office and sat me down on the edge of his desk.

"You've been working hard, Lisa," he said, "but I think it's time we talked about your performance.

I know you've been putting in long hours, but your output hasn't been up to our standards."

I was shocked. Mr. Green had never been one to criticize me before. I tried to explain myself, but he cut me off.

"I understand," he said. "But you see, I think it's time we had a change of pace."

Change of pace? It didn't make any sense to me. But I nodded, grateful for any break.

"Mr. Green," I said, "I'll do my best to improve."

"Good," he said. "I'll see you tomorrow."

I didn't sleep much that night. I was worrying about what the future held. Would Mr. Green give me another chance? Would I ever be able to make up for my mistakes?

In the end, I decided that I had to try my best. I worked longer hours, put in extra effort, and I was determined to prove myself. And eventually, I did. Mr. Green was pleased, and I got a promotion. It was a turning point in my career.
Dinner at John and Abigail's

By MYRA WALDO

First Time, Last Time

John Adams, who had a hand in writing the Declaration of Independence, had a first-rate appetite. According to Pauline Jourdain, he was a "great eater, a great drinker, and a great debater." Adams was known for his hearty meals, and his kitchen was always well-stocked. He was particularly fond of salmon, which he often cooked in a variety of ways.

One of his favorite dishes was salmon with rosemary sauce. The recipe, which was shared by the Smithsonian Institution, is as follows:

SALMON WITH ROSEMARY SAUCE

- 1 salmon fillet, about 2 pounds
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 teaspoons fresh rosemary, chopped
- Salt and pepper

Instructions:

1. Preheat the oven to 400°F.
2. Rub the salmon with salt and pepper, then brush with olive oil.
3. Place the salmon on a baking sheet and bake for 15-20 minutes, or until the fish is cooked through.
4. While the salmon is baking, heat the oil in a small skillet. Add the garlic and rosemary and cook for 1 minute.
5. Pour the mixture over the salmon and serve.

APPLE PANCAKES

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 2 eggs
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Instructions:

1. In a large bowl, whisk together the flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar.
2. Add the milk and eggs and mix until well combined.
3. Heat the butter in a large skillet over medium heat.
4. Pour 1/4 cup of the batter into the skillet and cook for 2-3 minutes, or until the edges are dry.
5. Flip the pancake and cook for another minute. Repeat with the remaining batter.

John Adams was also known for his love of blueberries, which he often used in desserts. He was particularly fond of blueberry ice cream, which he would often serve with homemade biscuits.

BLUEBERRY ICE CREAM

- 2 cups fresh blueberries
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1/2 cup powdered sugar
- 2 tablespoons vanilla extract

Instructions:

1. In a large bowl, toss the blueberries with the sugar and set aside.
2. In a medium pot, heat the cream and vanilla extract over medium heat.
3. Add the blueberries and sugar mixture and simmer for 5 minutes, or until the mixture thickens.
4. Remove from heat and let cool.
5. In a blender, purée the mixture until smooth.
6. Chill until ready to serve.

BERLITZ'S SUMMER SCHOOL

Spend 4 weeks in Switzerland, Mexico or Germany.

Learn the language in the mornings. Use it in the afternoons.

This year, instead of learning a language before you go abroad, Berlitz offers you a way to learn as you're abroad.

We call it our Live and Learn program and it's a cross between a summer school and a summer vacation.

How it works:

1. Take the course in the country you're visiting.
2. Use the language as you do it.

This is the first time Berlitz has run this program, and unfortunately we can't take too many people.

However, this is also the first time we're running a program like this. And if you register now you should be able to get into the courses you want at the time you want.

Send it to the summer you could meet new people from all over the world.

You could come back with a language.
