Surfax Squeaks Through House By 3 Votes

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The House approved a new version of the income tax bill Monday with a vote of 200-197 after a day of intense lobbying by Republicans and a last-minute barrage of electronic mail from the White House to its members.

The bill was approved by a 200-197 vote in the House of Representatives. It now goes to the Senate for consideration.

The bill, which was introduced by Rep. John J. Dingell, D-Mich., would reduce the income tax rate for most taxpayers and provide a $300-a-year personal exemption for all taxpayers.

The vote came after a heated debate in which House Speaker Thomas P. Bliley, R-Va., angrily reproached Republicans for trying to block the bill.

Bliley said the Republicans were trying to prevent the bill from passing because they were afraid of the consequences.

"We are not afraid of any consequences," Bliley said. "We are just trying to do what is right for our constituents."
