Moonmen Go Into Isolation

ARDEN D ORLEANS (AP) - Apollo 11's astronauts are in isolation in a moon-lit hotel as they wait on earth for the decision on whether or not to be flown over the lunar surface.

The astronauts have been flying on earth for the past few days, and are expected to be flown over the lunar surface sometime within the next few days.

The decision to fly on earth will be made by the NASA mission controllers in Washington, D.C.

Nixon Aide Beats Drums In Tulsa

Administration Termed Steady, Frank

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's White House chief of staff, Frank C. Carlucci, said today the president's administration will continue to press for an end to the war in Vietnam, and that it will continue to do so in the face of criticism at home and abroad.

The president's top adviser also said the administration will continue to push for a peace settlement that would bring the war to an end as quickly as possible.

The administration has been under fire from both conservatives and liberals in recent weeks. Some critics have charged that the president is not doing enough to end the war, while others have accused him of being too soft on Vietnam.

Carlucci said the president has been clear about his goals in Vietnam.

He said the administration is prepared to make concessions in order to achieve a peace settlement that would be acceptable to the Vietnamese people.

The administration is also prepared to negotiate with the North Vietnamese, he said, and is willing to consider all options in the search for a peaceful solution to the war.

Carlucci said the president is committed to ending the war as soon as possible, but that the administration will not accept a compromise that would undermine the integrity of the United States.

Glamorous Designer Ends 'Phase I'

By Maureen Friess

While many designers have traditionally focused on their own work and career, one designer is taking a different approach. The designer, who wishes to remain anonymous, has decided to end their 'Phase I' of work and begin a new phase. According to the designer, 'Phase I' was a period of exploration and experimentation, during which they focused on developing their own unique style and voice.

When asked about the decision to end 'Phase I' and start a new phase, the designer stated, "I've been thinking about this for a while now. 'Phase I' was a necessary step in my development as a designer, but now I'm ready to take the next step. I'm excited to see where this new phase will take me." The designer's statement suggests a sense of readiness and enthusiasm.

While the specifics of 'Phase I' remain unclear, the designer's decision to end it and move forward is a testament to their commitment to their craft. The designer's new phase promises to be filled with new opportunities and challenges, and it will be interesting to see how their work evolves over time.

Case Book Of Dr. Chase

Young Wife Shows Jealousy

By Maureen Friess

Dr. Chase is a respected psychiatrist known for his work with young couples. In his latest case, he encountered a young wife who exhibited signs of jealousy.

The case involved a young couple, John and Sarah, who had been married for only a few months. From the outset, Dr. Chase observed that Sarah seemed to be overly attached to John. Her behavior was indicative of jealousy, with constant inquiries about John's whereabouts and frequentmonitoring of his interactions with other people.

Dr. Chase conducted a thorough assessment of the situation and determined that Sarah's jealousy was rooted in her fears of abandonment. Specifically, Sarah had experienced a number of traumatic events in her past that had left her feeling vulnerable and exposed. These experiences had left her with a deep-seated fear of rejection and abandonment, which manifested itself in her behavior towards John.

Dr. Chase advised John to communicate openly and honestly with Sarah, explaining his feelings and reassuring her that he loved her and was committed to their relationship. He also recommended that Sarah seek therapy to address her underlying fears and work on developing healthier coping mechanisms.

The case of John and Sarah serves as a reminder of the importance of open communication and understanding in any relationship. It highlights the role that past experiences can play in shaping current behavior and the need for individuals to work on addressing these experiences in order to foster healthy relationships.

Deposit Fight Showdown Set

By Maureen Friess

The deposit fight has been brewing for months, with banks and customers on opposite sides of the issue. The central point of contention is the issue of the minimum balance required to maintain a checking account.

Banks argue that the minimum balance is necessary to cover administrative costs and that customers who maintain a lower balance are causing a financial burden on the institution. Customers, on the other hand, argue that the minimum balance is an unfair and unnecessary burden.

The showdown will take place in court, where both sides will present their arguments. The outcome of the case could have significant implications for the banking industry, as it could set a precedent for how banks operate and how they interact with their customers.

Market Expert Tells Chamber Of Dim Future

By Maureen Friess

A market expert recently spoke to the chamber of commerce, predicting a dim future for the economy.

The expert cited several factors contributing to the downward trend, including increased geopolitical tensions and a slowdown in consumer spending. He predicted that these factors would continue to weigh heavily on the economy, leading to further stagnation.

The expert's comments were met with concern by many in the chamber, who expressed worry about the impact on local businesses. However, others noted that the expert's predictions were not necessarily new, and that many had been anticipating a slowdown for some time.

The discussion highlighted the importance of being prepared for economic challenges and the need for businesses to adapt and remain flexible in order to weather the storm.

Man Over Machines

The concept of man over machines is a dangerous one. It is a concept that should be questioned and examined. The idea that man can control and manipulate machines to serve his own purposes can lead to disastrous consequences. The balance between man and machine is delicate and must be maintained.
