Unsung Controllers Made Apollo 11 Success

By RUDY ASHBERN

Houston — A team of controllers who worked behind the scenes for the Apollo 11 astronauts were honored for their efforts. The team, under the leadership of Houston's Flight Director Gene Kranz, was responsible for managing the complex systems that kept the spacecraft and its crew safe during the historic mission.

An Exclusive

The flight directors developed new techniques. They succeeded in their mission and were rewarded for their efforts. The astronauts and controllers working on Mission Apollo 16, which followed Apollo 11, said they were proud to be a part of this exciting endeavor.

Dust Reported Free of Germs

By STEVE DROLET

SPACE CENTER—Missouri's first recorded case of a human being exposed to radiowaves of a UFO was reported to have occurred on the moon. The incident, which involved an alien entity, was confirmed by the U.S. Government.

Other reports of extraterrestrial activity have been received from around the world, including Brazil, Australia, and India. Scientists are currently studying the results of these encounters to better understand the nature of these visitors and their motives.

70-Year-Old Convict Seeks His Release

By NORMA CLARK

The case of a 70-year-old man who has been serving a life sentence for murder is gaining attention. Despite his age, he has been denied early release due to his past criminal behavior.

In response to public pressure, members of the state parole board are considering granting him a chance at freedom. If approved, it would be a significant step towards acknowledging the complexities of rehabilitation and second chances.

Refuse Strike Threat Made

By STEVE DROLET

A group of sanitation workers in New York City has threatened to strike if their demands for better working conditions are not met. The union is demanding safer working conditions and higher wages.

The city has responded by offering a $100,000 incentive package to the workers. If the strike goes ahead, it could cause significant disruption to the city's waste management systems.

Budgets Take Dizzy Climb

By J. NELSON TAYLOR

As the federal budget deficit continues to grow, many are calling for cuts in government spending. However, some argue that reduced funding is not the solution, and that increased investments in education and infrastructure are necessary for long-term economic stability.

The city of Oklahoma City, however, has taken a different approach. Despite budget constraints, the city has increased its spending on public safety and infrastructure projects. This has resulted in a significant reduction in the crime rate and an improvement in overall quality of life for residents.

The city's budget is expected to grow by 8% in the next fiscal year. This growth is due to increased revenues from property taxes and sales taxes. The city has also implemented a number of cost-saving measures to ensure that the budget remains sustainable.

Moore Cooks Fly To Detroit
24 To Study Food Preparation

Organizers of the just advertised 24th annual Moore Cooks flight recently selected 24 food professionals from the area to participate in this year's event. The selected individuals, who will be part of a team that will travel to Detroit for training, will have the opportunity to work alongside some of the top chefs in the country. The event is designed to promote the city's culinary scene and provide professional development opportunities for the selected participants. The flight is scheduled for next month, and the participants will have the chance to experience the city's diverse food culture and learn from some of the city's best chefs.

EXPLORE A NEW HOME TODAY.
Realtors, Builders Establish 'Communication' Seek

Ted Roberts, president of the Moore Board of Realtors, has a dual interest in the city's Push of Homes. He is also interested in a real estate market and in the development of communities in the area.

Roberts sees the potential for growth within the city, and he is working to bring the real estate profession closer to the home buyer and to the other professionals involved in the development of the area. He believes that Realtors can play a significant role in the growth of the community, and he is committed to working with other professionals to ensure that the needs of both buyers and sellers are met.

The Moore Board of Realtors has set up a new committee to assist in this effort. The committee will be responsible for identifying potential new developments in the area and for working with other professionals to bring them to fruition.

In 1969, Moore was experiencing rapid growth, with a population estimated to be around 20,000 people. The city was developing rapidly, and there was a high demand for new homes and businesses.

Parade Homes Offer Variety Of Styling Feature

By KEVIN MILLER

Summarized Home will appeal to all those interested in the annual Parade of Homes, which will take place on Saturday and Sunday, August 3 and 4. The Parade will feature about 50 homes, each with its own unique design and style. The homes will be located throughout the city, offering a wide range of options for visitors to explore.

The homes will be divided into three categories: traditional, contemporary, and modern. The traditional homes will feature classic architectural details such as columns, archways, and ornate moldings. The contemporary homes will have clean lines and minimalist design, with a focus on open floor plans and natural light. The modern homes will incorporate bold colors and geometric shapes, with a focus on sustainability and energy efficiency.

Visitors to the Parade can expect to see a variety of materials and finishes, including wood, stone, and metal. Many of the homes will feature outdoor living spaces, such as patios, decks, and pools.

The Parade of Homes is a great opportunity to see the latest trends in home design and to be inspired by the creativity of local builders. Visitors can learn about the materials and techniques used in each home, and can speak directly with the builders to get their insights and perspectives.

For more information on the Parade of Homes, visit www.paradeofhomes.com or contact the Parade of Homes office at 123-4567.

HOLLYWOOD - The day after Hollywood's No Violent Movie Day,-iconic comedy star Bob Hope drove his Cadillac through the streets of Los Angeles in a blacked-out limousine and announced that Hollywood was 'not a laughing matter.' Los Angeles Times

Or maybe just money.

Dana, Frankie Flax and Ed McElhiney of the Dana Flax and Ed McElhiney trio recorded a song with guitar, drums and vocals that will be featured in the upcoming movie 'The Love Boat.' Dana Flax, the lead singer, explained that the song was about her relationship with Ed McElhiney.

Knotts: I talk that is on the end of the line. I'm trying to start a party service to take some of the work.

"I'm on a lot of people, not just in this business, are involved in family violence."

The show was a success, and Ed, Dana, and Frankie have been asked to do it again.

New York — Actor David Carrigan lost both of his arms and one leg when he fell into a pit filled with gadgets and props while filming a scene for his new movie, "The Mask." The accident occurred on the set of the movie, where Carrigan was playing the character of a gadget inventor.

"It was a tragic accident," said director John Zirkle. "We were shooting a scene where David was supposed to be the fall, but unfortunately things went wrong. David was taken to the hospital immediately, and his injuries were severe. "

"We're doing everything we can to support him during this difficult time," added Zirkle. "He's a true professional, and we're all heartbroken to see him in this position."
Horn For Piano

By STEVE DOMINE

"Horn for Piano," composed in 1891, is the work of Dutch composer Victor Hugo Bosset. The piece is known for its captivating melody and harmonic progression, making it a favorite among classical music enthusiasts.

"Horn for Piano" is a piece that combines the rich, resonant tones of the horn with the delicate, expressive qualities of the piano. The horn's ability to project through vast spaces is complemented by the piano's nuanced dynamics and timbral variety.

The piece opens with a simple, yet profound melody that sets the stage for the harmonic exploration that follows. The horn and piano interplay in a way that highlights the strengths of each instrument, creating a dialogue that is both harmonious and engaging.

In its structure, "Horn for Piano" is a through-composed piece, meaning that each section flows seamlessly into the next, without any distinct breaks or pauses. This continuity allows the listener to immerse themselves in the music, following the journey from beginning to end.

Overall, "Horn for Piano" is a timeless piece that continues to resonate with audiences, offering a unique perspective on the collaborative potential between different musical instruments. It is a testament to the power of classical music to connect, inspire, and bring joy to listeners around the globe.
Excitement At Ponca Racing

Championship races at the Ponca City Raceway for Fast, Fast, Fast, Fast cars can be a thrilling experience...even over the holidays. The wet track sometimes means more crashes, but not necessarily more injuries. The car drivers are just as excited as the spectators.

James Brown To Star Here

It isn’t every night of the year that a Black R&B sensation named James Brown in Oklahoma City is going to be at the Civic Center Music Hall in Black History Month. Brown recorded the 1969 Latin rhythm award at a massive concert in Washington D.C. — on the same day as the White House in a newsletter and the White House received an invitation to the concert.

The only appearance to date through is the black-white telephone to Washington D.C. Brown is performing with the mighty identification from his latest album, "Black and Proud," which was recorded in New York City. Brown is one of the few entertainers who can say he’s the only Black and Proud, and his show doesn’t include any White symbols, either.

If there were not a Peter Ustinov, not one would have had the audacity to invent one.

Ustinov has long been known as an extrovert-director. His play, The Elephant's Shoulder, which he wrote and directed, opened on Broadway, but that's only a fraction of what he's been up to recently.

He recently directed a musical review at Denison University in Ohio, and he's writing a play. The Frensky according to Piaf. In France, a novel Southern sheriff out of a world of crime.

Ustinov was commissioned for an Academy Award for his contributions to the screenplay for the recently released film, Beulah Land, in which he also starred.

He directed Mommie Dearest, the film from the Hummer State Opera House, in a review).

This week, Ustinov interviewed the composer.

Musician's name has an A. Sound on the air of his new picture. Wow, is he a superman for the next scene—wearing a pink tie has, blue plaid shirts, and two pairs of shoes too. Usually he remains in his arts and crafts dignity. He addressed a duchess in German, a chambermaid in Italian, his local driver in Texas. He answered questions in the Queen's most precise English.

TV: When did you start singing?
Ustinov: I started a play in 1920. I didn't really begin to sing. In 1924 I was a member of some sort—singing in some sort of role. Usually there is some confusion between me and the German branch. Very lively. I sang a third play in a row. At that time, you know. My brothers and sisters were involved in the production of the film.

TV: Where and how did you start singing?
Ustinov: I began to sing in 1920 and then I began to sing because I was interested in music. I started singing in a local theater and then I was picked to sing in a Paris opera. I sang in a few operas, and then I was picked for a role in a film. I also had a few other opportunities to sing, but I decided not to pursue singing as a career.

TV: What are your future plans for your career?
Ustinov: I am currently working on a new film, and I am also working on a new opera. I am also planning to record some new songs. In the future, I plan to continue singing and acting. I am also interested in writing and directing. I am currently working on a new play and a new novel. I am also planning to produce a new film. In the future, I plan to continue to work on a variety of projects, including music, film, and writing.
The Natural Ferocity of the Female

By MARGARET MEAD

We are in a period of history when the meaning of women is becoming clearer..." feigning love and coquetry which is probably the same as the concept that the female sex is untrustworthy...in some ways, men, women seem to have an emotional distance from their own upbringing. The recent trend towards an understanding of the woman's role in society is an ongoing process that needs more study.

This is a period where women are seen as powerful figures...Tribal societies...show that women are able to lead, to make decisions, and to make important contributions...Women who are seen as leaders or powerful figures...are more respected and have more influence. As we learn more about the role of women in society, we can begin to understand the importance of women's contributions...and how they can be acknowledged and valued.

If we are to understand the role of women in society, we need to look at the historical context...and how it has influenced the way women are perceived...Women have played an important role in history...and their contributions have been largely overlooked...But as we learn more, we can begin to appreciate the importance of women's contributions...

The role of women in society is changing...and as we learn more about the importance of women's contributions...we can begin to understand the role of women in society...

... the aroused female defending her young will fight to the death, and displays no built-in chivalry.

Summery Soups

By MYRA WALDO

When the temperature climbs and appetites wane, a cool cold soup has a lot of appeal—either as a main course for lunch or an opener for dinner. Creamy or chilled, it looks pretty, tastes delicious, and cools going down.

A few points to remember about cold soups:

Always chill them in glass or plastic bowls; metal can affect their delicate flavor.

For the same reason, cover the bowl with plastic wrap, not aluminum foil, while it cools in the refrigerator. For presentation, chill the soup plates and spoons.

For very special occasions, you might serve soup in cups surrounded with crushed ice; this makes a rather shiney presentation.

The inviting scene on this page would be an asset to any day's menu.

ICED PEA SOUP

1 medium can peas, chilled
1/4 cup sliced celery
1/4 cup chopped onions
2 tablespoons white sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

Chill all the ingredients, puree in a blender, then run through a food mill to remove any skins. Chill until ready to serve.

CHILLED PUMPKIN SOUP

1 can (16 oz.) pumpkin
2 cups milk
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon

Chill the pumpkin, then puree in a blender or food mill. Serve as is or chill over night in a refrigerator. Serve cold or chill until ready to serve.

CHILLED TOMATO SOUP

3 medium tomatoes
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped onions
1/4 cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons white vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3/4 cup water
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 cup chopped green onion

In a saucepan, combine the savory juice, celery, onion, mushrooms, vinegar, and water. Bring to a boil and cook over low heat to simmer. Strain. Blend the mixture in a blender, then run through a food mill. Chill until ready to serve.

CHILLED BEET SOUP

1 can (16 oz.) beets
1 cup sour cream
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1/4 cup chopped green onion
2 tablespoons white vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 cup chopped green pepper

Chill the beets, then puree in a blender or food mill. Serve as is or chill over night in a refrigerator. Serve cold or chill until ready to serve.

Revolutionist at Home

James Simon Kraus may be the best thing that ever happened to Wall Street. He is a former banker who deserted his career in the financial world to become an important figure in the anti-war movement. Now, he is helping to organize a new kind of revolution in finance.

Kraus is the founder and president of the New York Stock Exchange. He was born in Russia and came to America as a young man. He worked his way through the University of Chicago and then went on to become a successful banker.

In 1934, Kraus published a book called "The New York Stock Exchange," which was widely praised for its honesty and integrity. It was a bestseller and helped to establish Kraus as an authority on the subject.

During World War II, Kraus served in the military and was assigned to work with the Office of Strategic Services. After the war, he returned to Wall Street and continued to be a leader in the anti-war movement.

Kraus believes that the stock market is a reflection of the values and attitudes of the people who participate in it. He argues that the market is not just a place to buy and sell stocks, but a way to influence the way we think and act.

Kraus is working with a group of investors to create a new kind of investment vehicle called a "socially responsible investment." These investments would be based on the principles of social justice and environmental sustainability.

Kraus believes that the stock market can be a powerful tool for changing the world. "It's not just about making money," he says. "It's about making a difference."
Pills: A Dangerous Way To Sleep

prescription for this drug to help her insomnia. Then she had continued on her own. Then, she began to worry about stopping and started down her drug. Two days later she suffered a stroke. Today, her recovery is often described as a miracle.

Pros: Prescription sleeping pills, whether barbituates or not, are often helpful and can produce severe psychological and physical problems when the person stops the drug.

Barbiturates seem to have had some effect on the brain involved in the processes that regulate sleep. Studies show that the brain has less power over the sleep of anxious individuals. In order to change the brain chemistry of a person, drugs are necessary to change the brain's chemistry.

Alcohol combined with barbiturates or other depressants may produce deep sleep, because the people who use them often have a sedative effect that can be fatal.

Each year about 15,000 people die from heroin use in the United States. One study of 10,000 people—provided a week for every age, sex, race, and child. Millions of people take sleeping pills in order to assuage their insomnia. This pervasive use of deep sleep is harmful to their health, often because they are depressed.
