Heart Rejected, Blaiberg Dies

CASPERSON, South Dakota (AP) — Dr. Philip Blaiberg, 47, was rushed to a hospital in a hurry to save his life, but doctors were unable to save him. He died yesterday of a heart attack at the age of 47.

Blaiberg came to the United States from South Africa in 1970 after graduating from the University of Cape Town with a degree in medicine. He settled in Casper, Wyoming, where he worked as a general practitioner.

In 1978, Blaiberg married Mary Blaiberg, also a doctor, and they had two children, a son and a daughter.

Mary Blaiberg said her husband was a loving and generous man who always put his family first. She said they had planned to retire in South Africa, but the heart attack had derailed those plans.

Blaiberg was survived by his wife, two children, and his parents.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. on Sunday at the First Baptist Church in Casper, followed by a reception at the church hall.

Condolences to the Blaiberg family.

With pounding waves, howling winds, and crashing surf, the coast was pummeled by a storm that lasted for three days.

The storm began on Monday afternoon and continued through Tuesday. The wind reached speeds of 150 miles per hour, and the waves rose to heights of 20 feet.

Many coastal residents were forced to evacuate their homes, and many others were stranded in their cars or on the beach.

A helicopter with a search and rescue team landed near the coast to rescue those in need.
