Drew Pearson, a crusading columnist, Dies

Heart Attack Fells Famous 'Muckraker' At 71

WASHINGTON — Drew Pearson, a crusading columnist whose words were echoed around the world, died Sunday. He was 71.

Pearson was found unresponsive at his home in Montgomery County, Md., and taken by ambulance to Georgetown University Hospital. He died at 12:01 a.m. Monday after suffering from the emergency room.

The 71-year-old Pearson had been hospitalized for several weeks with a heart condition. He was the son of the late John W. Pearson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

He had been married to the Washington Mercury for over 20 years, and to点钟 in to do some work on the weekend, Anderson said.

Pearson's column was a major force in Washington journalism during the time of its beginning in 1927. It sparked the journalistic trend toward deeper investigative and investigative reporting of national affairs.

The Pearson column was the most widely read political column in the United States for two decades in the 1920s.

Organized Labor To Press For On-Job Safety Laws

WASHINGTON—The national organized labor movement is giving a new push to forcing federal agencies and industries to adopt more effective measures for the prevention of job accidents and injuries. Organized labor leaders noted today that while the nations labor laws have been strengthened considerably in recent years, still many workers are dying and being maimed on the job today. . . .

Credit Service, Inc. Moves To New Quarters
Returns To Where It Was Established 34 Years Ago

Credit Service, Inc. has moved to new quarters in Oklahoma City and is once again at the location where it was established 34 years ago. The company, which specializes in the collection of delinquent accounts, has grown significantly since its founding and now has a staff of over 50 employees. The new facility, located at 123 Main Street, features state-of-the-art technology and expanded office space to accommodate the company's growing needs. The move is part of a broader strategy to enhance customer service and improve operational efficiency.
Pearson Kept Capital Honest For 38 Years

By_chalmers H. Roberts
Washington — SomePearson was a drygoods manufacturer when he was 18 years old. He married a young woman who had a ear to keep him company. Pearson lived in a small town and the town was the only place he could ever be. Pearson didn’t have any idea what life was like outside of that town.
