Chandler says He Will Not Retire

BY JANE EAKES
Chiefs U.S. District Attorney for Oklahoma, Mr. Chandler, on his last day in office, said he would not retire and that he has no intention of retiring from the bench. Mr. Chandler has served as the district attorney for the Oklahoma City metropolitan area since 1983 and has been a judge on the bench for the past 15 years.

Mr. Chandler said his decision to stay on the bench was based on his desire to continue serving the people of Oklahoma as an active and effective member of the judiciary.

"I have enjoyed my time as a district attorney and a judge, and I look forward to continuing to serve the community in this role," Mr. Chandler said.

Mr. Chandler noted that he has had the opportunity to work with many talented and dedicated professionals over the years, and he expressed his gratitude for their contributions.

"I want to thank all of my colleagues and staff for their hard work and dedication," Mr. Chandler said. "They have made my time in this office a success, and I am grateful for their support.

"I am looking forward to the next chapter of my career and to continuing to serve the people of Oklahoma," Mr. Chandler said.

Britons Outraged

Bundling Bunegged?

LONDON (UPI) — The British government-sponsored corporation announced today that it is bundling its services into a single package, causing outrage among Britons who feel that they are being forced to pay more for the same services.

The government-owned corporation, which has been providing electricity and gas to British homes for decades, has faced criticism for its high prices and lack of transparency.

"We are deeply distressed by the latest move," said a spokesperson for the corporation. "We believe that our customers deserve better and that they should not be forced to pay more for the same services.

"We are committed to improving our services and to providing value for money," the spokesperson added.

Abernathy Puts Off City Trip

National civil rights leader Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, who has served as a leader in the civil rights movement for decades, has postponed a trip to Oklahoma City for a week.

Abernathy, a personal friend of Martin Luther King Jr., was scheduled to arrive in Oklahoma City on Sunday, but his visit has been postponed due to unforeseen circumstances.

"I am deeply saddened by the news," said Abernathy. "I was looking forward to my visit, but I have decided to postpone it in order to spend more time with my family.

"I hope to visit Oklahoma City as soon as possible," Abernathy added.

Back From Exile

Robert R. Williams, a former political prisoner who had lived in South Africa for nearly 20 years, has returned to the United States.

Williams was released from prison in South Africa in 2009 after serving 18 years for his activism in the anti-apartheid movement.

"I am happy to be back in the United States," Williams said. "I have missed my family and friends and I am looking forward to spending time with them.

"I am also grateful to those who have supported me throughout my time in prison," Williams added.

Clara Fined $40

For Strike Action

A. J. NELSON TAYLOR

Mrs. Clara Cooper, NAPW general secretary and spokesperson for striking Oklahoma City sanitation workers, was fined $40 in municipal court Friday for two charges of operating an unregistered garbage truck.

The fines were issued after the workers went on strike earlier this month, demanding better pay and working conditions.

"I am not surprised by the fines," said Mrs. Cooper. "We have been trying to get better treatment and we will continue to fight for our rights.

"We are not going to back down," Mrs. Cooper added.

Protestors Burn Belfast Catholic Bar

Protestors, a group of about 20 young men, set fire to a Catholic bar in Belfast on Saturday night.

The bar was located in the center of the city and was one of several that had been targeted in recent weeks.

"We are demanding an end to the violence," said one of the protestors. "We want the government to take action and protect our community.

"We will continue to protest until our demands are met," the protestors added.

Senate Drubs Arms Critics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate overwhelmingly rejected the administration's plan to provide additional funds to the National Guard and the military in the next fiscal year.

The 94-3 vote came after months of debate, with many senators expressing concern about the administration's plans for increasing the military budget.

"We are not going to support the administration's plans for a $78 billion increase in the military budget," said one senator. "We believe that we should be focusing on other priorities, such as education and healthcare.

"We are concerned about the impact of this increase on our national debt," the senator added.

THE PROBES

YOU PROBABLY heard of the senator who called the FBI to investigate the number of murders in his state. I wonder how many murders he will say are solved.

THE PROBES

AND THEN there are those "three little pigs" authors who have "proven" that schools are the cause of all our problems. How many of those authors have attended school?

THE PROBES

Again, a column on a local topic. "Your taxes are going up." What does it mean, that's all.

BLACK WILDE, who is in memory, perhaps published his columns as the "Three Little Pigs" syndrome, and the column was supposed to be a "how-to" guide for parents.

City Council Approves $131.6 Million Budget

The city council approved a budget of $131.6 million for the coming fiscal year, which includes funding for schools, police and fire departments, and other essential services.

"We are proud to have approved a budget that will support the important services that are essential to our community," said the mayor. "We believe that this budget will be fair and equitable to all residents.

Citizens have complained that the budget is too high and that it does not reflect the needs of the community.

"We understand the concerns of our citizens," said the mayor. "We have worked hard to create a budget that is fair and equitable, and we believe that it will serve the needs of our community.
