Grange Says It’s An Entirely Different Game

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Giants quarterback Y.A. Tittle has never won a Super Bowl. Now he’s had a chance to participate in one.

"It’s a pretty hard thing to win," Tittle said Tuesday night. "It’s a very, very special thing. It’s something you can’t do in your lifetime. It’s a very special thing."

He couldn’t have been more right. Tittle, who has been with the Giants since 1957, is one of the most successful quarterbacks in NFL history. He led the Giants to a Super Bowl victory in 1978.

"It’s a very special thing," he said. "It’s something you can’t do in your lifetime. It’s a very special thing."

Praise Describing Efforts Proves Helpful

The Oklahoman story, "I wish to thank..." is a basic one. It is where the story begins and ends, the point of departure and the point of arrival. It is the story of a man, the newspaper, the city, the country, the world. It is the story of what it means to be human, to be alive, to be a part of something larger than oneself. The story of what it means to be a part of something larger than oneself is the story of what it means to be human.

Voight Lets Cassel Talk

By KARL WILSON

In an interview with the Oklahoma City Star, John Voight discussed the challenges of portraying the character of Cassel in the film "Midnight Cowboy." Voight explained that he had to put aside his own personal experiences to fully immerse himself in the role. He also spoke about the importance of understanding the perspective of the other character in a scene, even when they are not physically present. Voight emphasized that the key to a successful performance is to feel the story and the character in every moment.

"When I first read the script, I knew it wasn't going to be easy. Cassel is a complex character, and he has a very specific way of seeing the world. I had to make sure I was doing justice to his story and his choices. It was a challenging role, but I'm glad I accepted it." Voight added.

The film "Midnight Cowboy" was released in 1971 and was met with critical acclaim for its portrayal of the two main characters and their relationship. Voight's performance was particularly praised, and he was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Actor for his role in the film.

"I was proud of myself for being able to bring something new to the character. I didn't want to be like any other actor who had played Cassel before," Voight said.

He went on to say that he had to work hard to make sure his performance was authentic and that he was able to convey the deep emotions involved in the role. "I had to be willing to take risks and to be vulnerable, but it was all worth it in the end. I'm glad I took the chance." Voight concluded.

Of Myths and Models

Myths, thicker than a San Francisco fog, swirl about the world of fashion models.

One is the story of a young woman who has looked in the mirror a million times and knows that although she is a very nice girl, and has had no training in either drama or dancing, her outstanding looks and distinctive personality could launch a thousand magazine covers.

Another tale is of the inventors of people who know in a fact that fashion models lead very fast lives, and that no one girl could maintain such a strenuous pace. One of them, a tall, gangly young woman with a slight lisp, said to her friend, "I'm going to make a fortune."

"You can't have both success and it's not easy to sell anything," said the friend. "But you can make a fortune."

"Why don't we just work together?" said the woman. "I'll work on the design, and you work on the marketing." The friend was skeptical, but agreed to try it out. The two women went on to become the most successful design team in the industry.

Finally, an old friend of one of the designers, who had been working in the fashion world for years, called them and said, "I have a great idea for a new collection. What do you think?"

The designer and her friend thought it was a great idea, and began working on it immediately. They spent months perfecting the designs, and finally the collection was ready for launch.

The models were thrilled with the new designs, and the response from the fashion magazines was overwhelming. The collection quickly became one of the most talked about of the season, and the designer and her friend went on to become one of the most successful design teams in the industry.

In the years that followed, the designer and her friend continued to work together, creating beautiful and innovative designs that changed the fashion world forever. Their dedication to their craft and their unique vision allowed them to make a lasting impact on the world of fashion, and their legacy continues to inspire designers and models alike.
A Child's Glossary of School Words

What is today's education all about? For one honest view of it, I decided to ask people who should know — the kids. I talked with public elementary school children of Westville, Va., to find out what makes school work. The results answered questions that covered, despite the complications of my teaching career, the pupils really have the most interesting definitions.

What is a TRIGGER?

The head of the class who picks on everyone. — Gerald Jones, 7.

A teacher is a person who is who helps other people. She does not go to school for her own good. — Sue Allman, 9.

I like my teacher. She is very nice, smart, and pretty. A teacher is a children's maid. — Gal Gad Freer, 11.

What is a READING?

Education is when your parents make you go to bed at six and get up at 7. You go to school. When you get home, your mother asks you what you learned, and you say nothing. Then you have to go to bed at 9. — Vicki Sheffield, 11.

It seems you do things. You go to learn so that you will have some more marks in your head. You go to have your career. — Joe Harris, 9.

What is a SCHOOL?

A school board is a board that the principal uses to push his children. — Dale Bradstreet, 8.

A school is a building that has a principal around. — Brian Sheffield, 7.

A principal is something that is a principal around. — Brian Sheffield, 7.

A principal is a member of the school board. He tells the teachers what they can do no what they can't do. — Larry Davis, 8.

A principal is a person who is sometimes mean and sometimes good. — Peter O'Connor, 11.

What is a PENCIL?

A pencil is a stick that you use to write. You use it to write letters. — Timmy Sheppard, 8.

A pencil is a thing that you can write with. You can write with a pencil. — Timmy Sheppard, 8.

A pencil is a writing utensil that is used to write or draw. — Timmy Sheppard, 8.

A pencil is a tool used for writing or drawing. — Timmy Sheppard, 8.

Finally Released In This Country!

SWEDEN'S MIRACLE FORMULA THAT MAKES SKIN LOOK YOUNG AGAIN

Clinical tests by leading medical authorities prove that new Swedish formulas with natural ingredients helps solve the problem of lines, wrinkles, and hardy, dry skin - ACTUALLY MAKES YOU LOOK UP TO 15 YEARS YOUNGER!

Before you read another word of this exciting new release — let us set the record straight: No miraculous, overnight cure is publicly claimed. Simply stated it reads like this: "Thanks to new scientific breakthroughs, medical science now can provide a women's 20 to be set by the age of 40 — a skin that does not show 15 years of aging!"

A woman of 45 could now be looking for years a younger-looking face. "Skin that does not show its age" — this can sound more optimistic on the past of medical science, but can any one of these women in her age group do this or could she be looking for years a younger-looking face.

"This Is a Rough Game, Kid..."

After 11 years of pro football with the Green Bay Packers, Jerry Kramer is giving up the game. This article is condensed from his new book, 'Farewell to Football,' published by World.

By JERRY KRAMER and DICK SCHAAP

In November, 1969, when I was a patient in the Moreno Clinic in Rochester, Minn., I thought seriously about giving up the game. I had just had surgery to clean up a frozen shoulder and I was already having a bad arm. A lot of my work in the game was over, and I would have to learn to live with the pain.

But I was a professional athlete, and I didn't want to give up on the game. I had to find a way to live with the pain and continue to play. I worked with a physical therapist and a doctor to develop a program of exercises to help me manage the pain.

"This is a Rough Game, Kid..."

(continued) that had taken place at a sports night somehwere in Wisconsin. In the picture I was wearing my world championship diamond ring, a sized sports coat and a pair of tailored slacks, and I was smiling and happy and having a party.

And then, for some reason, my mind wandered to all the sick children. I'd met during my many trips to hospitals. A few years earlier, when I'd been hospitalized at Madison, Wis., for the treatment of a detached retina, I'd met a little blond-haired boy, not even three years old, who had one eye removed and he had a huge heap on his forehead, a big tumor. He used to come to my room every day and tug at my flages—my eyes were bandaged—and I'd pick him up and carry him around on my shoulders and share my basket of grapes and bananas with him. I didn't know what was wrong with him till I was ready to leave the hospital. He died about four months later, such a sweet, cheerful little boy.

Not long before I'd gone to Mayo, I'd visited some other little children at the West Side Clinic in Gray. I met a little boy named Mike Hollahan, blond, four or five years old, bright, and shrewd. He told me, "You're Jerry Kramer. I've got your football card." Mike told me he had a pain in his back, and I said, "Well, you'd be getting home soon," and then a nurse told me that Mike had a tumor on his spine and he didn't have a chance.

There were two little Indian children with broken legs, and I asked them what they were doing in the hospital, and they said, "We are in a car wreck. Our mom and dady got killed. We only had our legs broken." They were sweet on each, and they really didn't know what Mommy and Daddy were being killed, and what to do.

I thought about those children and looked at the pictures of them and said, "Why are you feeling sorry for yourself?"

I looked back at them. "You've had a great life. You've gone more places and done more things than so or so per cent of the world's people.

You've had it pretty good. You've got no complaints." I made peace with myself. Pretty soon after that, my four-year-old.

The doctors pumped me full of antibiotics, and, finally, the antibiotics killed the infection in my kneecap. I found out I was going to be able to home the Christmas. I began to suspect that I might live.

It was good to get home, but I still wasn't exactly independent. My wife had to change my dressing and clean up my colon every day. "How can you put up with all that?" I asked her once.

"Well, I've changed a baby's diaper," Barbara said, "and this ain't really any different."

So, I started feeling a little better. But I'd go down to a store or some- thing, and I was all gray and lanky, and people would look at me as if I were dying. And then the word spread around Green Bay that I actually was going to live.

As a Green Bay heater named Yrn Henderd had died, and when radio and television began to broadcast reports of his death, a lot of people thought they heard me. It was an easy mistake for them to make, considering the way I looked. When the rumors started flying, I was with Bob Bruls, my doctor, and he assured the people in his office and answered the phone, and the caller said, "Your very...

Barbara said, "Fix it."

"Where's Jerry?"

"Right here."

"Oh, OK. Good-bye."

I got into the spirit of the thing. I called up one of my neighbors and dis- posed of the phone. When he said, "I heard Jerry," he said, "God, my Dady isn't that terrible."

"Oh, she is."

"This is Jerry."

"Oh, the neighbor said. "I heard he'd died."

He said, "He, no, you, and I be- gan to feel very strange, like maybe I had died and I was the only one who didn't know about it.

As long as everybody thought I was dead, I decided I might as well spend my own wake. I didn't like the idea of being carried out by Epsie. I called up Epsie and threw the wake at my own house. The Green Bay newspaper came out and took pictures of me and the family to prove I was still alive."

In January of 1957, I started putting a little weight back on, and I got tired of hearing about itself. Bob Bruls and his wife, Suse, and Barbara and I began going skating. The three of them would win, and I'd win in the badge. Naturally, I'd get a little iny.

"The hell with it," I said. "I'm going to have this thing. I'm going to learn to live with it. I'm not going to sit on my butt."

I started skating full time, and I was falling all over the place, and I even fell on that same thing a few times. It didn't hurt me, but I always remem- bered it a bit. The mistake stuck out five or six weeks, but I just used to ignore it.

But by the spring of 1963, my wound still wasn't healing right, and Bob Bruls persuaded me to go to the hospital for more exploratory surgery. "I think there's a foreign object in there," Bob said. "I don't know what it is, maybe a nail, a spiny, something, something to cause the wound to keep draining."

The operation lasted an hour and a half. Dr. Benech dug deep into my insides and found five or six metal objects,其中一个 length from two to half a foot and half inches, each about nine inches in diameter. They were lodged in a matted mat in rear in the bone part of the abdomen. They'd been there for six or eight months. When I woke, I was crying, and the calf had dropped on a pencil of wood, and the pencil had shot up out of my pants. I had an operation then to have the splinters removed, but I never could tell. They had caused a tumor on my liver; they had advanced me for four healing.

Bob Bruls and his assistant removed the splinters, reconnected the small intestine and the large intestine, and gave me four black plates and screws for the operation. Ten days later, I was playing field. I still had to have two more operations to get the colon and one to the bowels near the breast bone, but by the middle of July, 1959, when training camp opened, I was able to start playing football.

I was still pretty weak, still under- weight, and for a while, I practiced with a hole in my stomach, an opera, healing wound. It didn't bother me very much on the field, but I was a little hesitant to go into the shower with the rest of the guys. The hole in my stomach wasn't very pretty. One day, after a practice, in getting dressed, I went into the shower and a rookie defense- man just came in and took out both my stomach and blisters.

"This is a rough game, kid," I said.

We all got a big laugh out of that. By the middle of the summer, I was back in the starting lineup, back up to my normal weight. Everything in the world seemed beautiful to me. [End of excerpt]

Stomach upset's had it, by gum!

Just chew it—say chew, chewing gum antacid. Relief is in a bottle for stomach upset, gas and indigestion due to acid overproduction. Big plus: Chooz is in a gum form, and it's also deliciously flavored in its own right. Right! Right!

Chooz. The only chewing gum antacid.

A charming, funny article about a person who finds relief from stomach upset, gas, and indigestion by chewing a special antacid gum.

Three Irish Dishes

By MYRA WALDO, "The Red Editor"

At lunch time we're at a village with the oddest of all names: Kiltfinny, Fire Island. We're in the Clancy House Hotel, with George Clancy proudly showing the way. We're enjoying the freshest of seafood and leavened bread. The big plus: the food is prepared exactly as one would like it, by the woman in charge of the kitchen. The food is simple and yet elegant, a treat for the palate.

LINGERIE KITS TO RRM. All the sending everywhere needed to make a half a dozen pairs of panties will be available this fall, and other kits — for making garters, pajamas, and panty sets, and half slips — are to follow soon.

The kit is the brainchild of Louis Kerfey, who runs a small dressmaking shop to inspire fashion and win in Merrisep — where housewives are told that nothing can be so easy to do that the YWCA offers classes in it. Kerfey sees it as the idea that is completely, creative, and a housewife hard-hitting. The slip-and-panty kit, in the end of the department store, is sold in a chest of eight color-of-the-month sets. At least 10,000 sets are ordered in the first quarter of this year. The kits are on sale for $3.00 each.

FISHING VACATION CLEARER. The Beaver Company has just come out with what they call a "self-guided" vacation clearing, which should lighten any kind of summer vacation.
GREAT PARTS OF THE COUNTRY.

You're driving toward the Gulf of Mexico. Suddenly you're in another land. A quaint Greek fishing port where not even here do they dream to plan sponges from the bottom of the sea. It's Tarpon Springs, Florida—one of the great parts of the country.

If you're driving a GM car, keep a good thing going with the other great parts of the country—General Motors Parts. They keep your car dependable no matter what part of the country you're in. If your choice is Tarpon Springs, the excitement of the sponge fleet is in the air—as it was in the early 1950s when the industry first began. That's when 5000 immigrants migrated here from Greece, bringing with them their sponge-growing techniques and beautiful Helenic culture. Add Tarpon Springs to your list of "must see" places. It's a hoot. If you drive, always ask for Genuine General Motors Parts—the parts labeled GM, United, Delco, and AC. They're made like the originals to help restore top performance.

DEAR EDITOR:
I revised the article until I got to the last line. Now they've found something else to blame on paranoids. Holy cow!

DEAR EDITOR:
The fact that your magazine published this interesting piece of profiling doesn't mean that the police don't have any reason to suspect. I'm just saying that both of you, if only once, step out of your plastic cages and look around you. I promise the experience, though painful, will be worth it in the end.

DEAR EDITOR:
I, like you, have seen the鬣 of this topic. Yet, I feel that it is a matter of concern that the police should not be so quick in labeling all people as paranoids. I feel that the police should be more careful in their actions and should not jump to conclusions without proper investigation.

JOHN SMITH Kansas City, Mo.

DEAR EDITOR:
I think you would have to look long, long time to find someone more vengeful and embittered-crashing than that hero who was rejected in his own time—Jesus Christ. He really lived!

DON GILMORE Minn, Wash.

DEAR EDITOR:
I believe that the article, "You Are Ruining Our Postal Service!" is a bit too harsh. The POA is not responsible for the service. The government is the one that makes the decisions, and thePOA is merely a tool in the hands of the government. What is needed is more efficient and more productive service by the postal workers supported by the American people.

IRA TATE Washington, D.C.

DEAR EDITOR:
Thanks a million for the free advice about the postal service. It's about time someone monitored the actions of the public instead of blaming the postal employee every time!

LARRY PARISO Riverside, N.Y.

DEAR EDITOR:
Too long I have put off writing to you of my appreciation of Times Week. Your planning, "For a Better America," is absolutely carried out in the content of this little magazine. Time and again I have resolved to commu-nicate to you and your staff for making so much creative and interesting material into such a simple thing. The real art—as well as labor!

MRS. LOUIS THOMAS Richmond, Va.

DEAR EDITOR:
I think you've missed the point of the first paragraph. It's not about the times, but the way we live. The government is the one that makes the decisions, and the POA is merely a tool in the hands of the government. What is needed is more efficient and more productive service by the postal workers supported by the American people.
