You'll have a hard time finding a wagon as easy to get into as a 1970 Chevrolet.

You may never have noticed it, but the side entry of some wagons can be a real pain. You may be the type who likes to parish your feet on the breeze of an open side window. But you'll find you soon have to straighten up for another reason — the wormy path to the seat. You have to bend way down to reach the seat. If you have passengers, it's even more of a problem. The Chevrolet has an easy way to solve the problem. You might find it a little hard to believe. Take a look for yourself.

On the outside, the 1970 Chevelle wagon is quite eye-catching. The front end is quite distinctive. Chevrolet designers spent a lot of time on the front end to make it more pointed and streamlined.

The side windows are quite large and they provide a good view of the road. The rear window is also quite large and it provides good visibility for the passengers in the back seat.

The interior of the 1970 Chevelle wagon is well designed and provides ample space for passengers. The seats are comfortable and provide good support. The center console is equipped with cup holders and a storage compartment.

The dashboard is quite simple and easy to read. The engine is powerful and provides good acceleration. The manual transmission is smooth and easy to shift.

Overall, the 1970 Chevelle wagon is a great option for those looking for a comfortable and stylish wagon.

Which Shall Saigon Be?

There are times when it appears the United States has a cold foot, acquiescing development Allen.

It was well to Laurence Binyon's words. "The storm comes; with a wave of its hand it sweeps the nation."

Last President's Day brought a storm in the U.S. The storm was not a natural one, and it was not a storm that could be easily handled by the government. It was a storm of uncertainty, a storm of doubt, a storm of fear.

Considering the political climate and the situation in Vietnam, the American government had to make a decision. And it had to make a decision quickly.

Would we continue to support the Vietnamese government, or would we withdraw our support? Would we continue to fight the war, or would we end it? Would we continue to send troops to Vietnam, or would we bring them home?

There is no easy answer to these questions. There is no easy way to solve the problems in Vietnam. But there is no better time to find the answers.

Even if the situation were to improve, we cannot rely on it to continue indefinitely. We must take action now, or face the consequences later.

Step Ahead In Divorce Law

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. signed a law Wednesday requiring the formal consent of both parents in a divorce action, but the bill will be subject to a referendum.

Gov. Brown signed the bill in response to a court decision that found the current law unconstitutional. The decision stated that the law was too difficult for parents to understand and was therefore unfair.

The new law will require both parents to sign a consent form, which must be filed with the court. The form must state that both parents agree to the divorce.

The consent form must be filed within 60 days of the filing of the divorce petition. If the form is not filed within that time, the case will be dismissed.

The new law will take effect on Jan. 1, 1970. It will apply to all divorce cases filed after that date.

Rosy Cheeks, Curly Lashes On 'In' List

In the fall of 1967, Rosy Cheeks and Curly Lashes were the in thing. The trend was so strong that even the most conservative women were seen wearing these styles. The look was perfect for the young, who were experimenting with their appearance and embracing the '60s style. The trend was so popular that it even made its way into fashion magazines and advertisements.

On the Campus Scene...
College Shirts Brighter, As Elegance Takes Over

The fall of 1967 was a time of change on college campuses. The young were pushing for more freedom and expression, and this was reflected in their clothing choices. College shirts, once reserved for formal occasions, were now being worn casually. The trend was so strong that it ignited a new fashion movement, with students designing their own shirts and creating a unique look that was both playful and elegant.

Basketful Of Sandwiches

The fall of 1967 was not only a time of change in fashion, but also in food. Basketful Of Sandwiches was a popular food trend that took the college campuses by storm. Students would gather in groups, with baskets of sandwiches, and have casual picnics. The trend was so popular that it even made its way into the local restaurants, with some even offering special baskets.

To The Village Shopping

The fall of 1967 was a time of change and experimentation. The Village Shopping was a popular destination for students who were looking for new trends and styles. The store was known for its wide selection of clothes and accessories, and its staff was always ready to help customers find the perfect look. The fall of 1967 was a time of change, and the Village Shopping was at the forefront of it.

SHOULD THEY CHANGE?

Neighbors Raise Brows At Family's 'Silliness'

In the fall of 1967, a family in the neighborhood was causing quite a stir. They had started dressing in a way that was considered 'silly' by the locals. The family's clothing choices were so unconventional that it caused quite a reaction. Some neighbors were concerned about the family's influence on the community, while others were simply amazed by their unique style.

Lake Hides Lunkers

By MARILYN REYNARD

Only one city apart can boast being part of a lake. That would be the Lake Stella Apartments, a luxurious and comfortable apartment complex near the lake. What do the lunkers on the lake do? How do people enjoy the lake? And what is it like to live in a city apartment with a lake in the back yard?

The apartment complex is located near the lake, and it is only necessary to walk down the street to get to the lake. The lake is large enough to accommodate a boat, and the lunkers are not a problem. The lunkers are not a problem because they are not considered a threat to safety.

Kubrick Honored

HOLLYWOOD — The London Times hailed the release in Britain of the 1969 Kubrick film, "Clockwork Orange," stating, "It is a movie that will last." The reviews were particularly glowing for the film’s depiction of a dystopian future and its exploration of themes like free will and the nature of evil. The Los Angeles Times agreed, calling it a "visionary" work that "challenges our assumptions about the nature of reality and the role of art in society." The film met with critical acclaim and continues to be celebrated today for its enduring themes and groundbreaking cinematography.

Adva Literary Joke?

High Court's Dissent Told

The Supreme Court's decision in a recent case has provoked a heated debate among legal scholars, with many calling for a dissent to be filed. In a recent opinion, the Court ruled on a matter of great significance, with implications for the future of constitutional law. However, some justices have expressed concern over the Court's decision and have indicated their intention to file a dissenting opinion. This move is significant, as it could signal a shift in the Court's stance on future cases and set the stage for further legal battles. The dissenting justices are expected to articulate their reasoning and offer a fresh perspective on the issue, potentially leading to a reevaluation of the Court's decision. This is an important moment in the history of the Court, and the future of constitutional law will depend on how these dissenting voices are heard and considered.

Alice, Obie Mendrow

NEW YORK (AP) - It all started on Thanksgiving, when folk singer Alice Donell and Obie Mendrow decided to buy a horse and set out to make music together. They bought their first horse, a stallion named "M彰显性", from a friend of Obie's. The horse had some issues, but they were determined to make it work. They started playing concerts around the area, and people loved their music. They continued to tour, and soon they became a popular duo.

In the film, Obie is shown as a devoted father who is always there for Alice. He is supportive and loving, and Alice is grateful for his presence. Scientists work to replace deadly DDT with new selective killer

By LESLIE LIEBER

-- For the last 25 years, childrens' nightmares in the Amazon basin have been during the night. For most of that time, the terrified children have been the victims of a deadly insecticide known as DDT.

DDT has been used to control the spread of malaria and yellow fever, but it has also had a devastating effect on the world's environment.

The use of DDT has been controversial since its discovery in the 1940s. Many people believe that it is too toxic and has been polluting the environment for too long.

Scientists have been working to develop a new insecticide that is less harmful to the environment.

One such insecticide is permethrin, a synthetic form of pyrethrin, a natural insecticide found in the flowers of the chrysanthemum.

Permethylpermethrin is a safer insecticide that is also effective against mosquitoes and other insects.

The use of permethylpermethrin has been studied extensively in many countries around the world.

In the United States, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has approved the use of permethylpermethrin for certain uses.

Scientists continue to study the effects of permethylpermethrin on the environment and on humans.

The use of permethylpermethrin is a step in the right direction towards developing a safer and more effective insecticide.

The "Year of the Quarterback"

By MICKEY HERSCOWITZ

There's always something new. The fifties were the age of Eisenhower, the sixties the age of the Sixties, the seventies the age of the Seventies. And now? The eighties, the age of the Quarterback.

It's the year of the quarterback. The man who has been called the "Quarterback of the Generation," the " Backbone of the Generation,

The "Quarterback of the Generation,"

The "Backbone of the Generation,"

The "Man of the Generation,"

The "Leader of the Generation,"

The "Savior of the Generation,"

It's a new era. It's a new age. It's a new Quarterback.

No bagging.

No bragging.

No hugging.

No sliding down.

No talking.

FINALLY, after 20 years, fresh-perked coffee you don't have to perk.

FINALLY, fresh-ground percolated coffee freeze-dried into concentrated form. And the most amazing part is it's 97% caffeine free. Add boiling water and the golden brown crystals turn back into the fresh-perked coffee they were formed from. Took 20 years to perfect. But it was worth it.

RAHMSTUDEL (Viennese Cream Tart)

Pastry:
- 2 cups flour
- 3/4 pound (at least) butter or margarine
- 6 tablespoons sour cream

Flake flour and sour cream into a bowl. With your hand, work in the butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add the sour cream, mixing until the dough is formed. Wrap in foil or waxed paper and chill 4 hours. (This is an easier substitute for the traditional Viennese method.)

Filling:
- 1 pound 1/4 (at least) butter
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 cup sour cream
- Chopped dates (optional)

Cream the butter and sugar in an electric mixer; if available, gradually add 1/2 cup of the sugar. Add the sour cream and beat until well mixed and fluffy. (Without an electric mixer, use a large bowl and a wooden spoon.) Stir in the sour cream. Beat the eggs until well mixed, then gradually beat in the remaining sugar until very stiff. Fold into the sour cream mixture. Mix in the dates lightly, if used.

Divide pastry in half and roll out. Line a deep 9-inch flan-like pie plate with half of it. Place the sour cream mixture into it and cover with the remaining pastry. Seal the edges.

Bake in a preheated 425°F oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 375°F and bake 10 minutes longer, or until the pastry is golden. Serve warm. Serve cold.

BEETTELSCHNEITZ (Poppy Seed Apfel Cake)

Pastry:
- 1 pound 1/4 (at least) butter
- 6 tablespoons sour cream
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 cup milk

Filling:
- 1 cup sugar

Dissolve the yeast in the warm water. Beat in the milk, add the sour cream, sugar, egg and salt, and beat well. Stir in the flour and beat until smooth, then fold in the beaten eggs. Mix in the flour, and beat until smooth. Cover in the refrigerator for 30 minutes. Heat the floor and be near a bowl in the sugar. Place the chocolate mixture into the floor, and the egg yolks, and continue beating until smooth. The dough should be sticky.

Sprinkle a clean board with a little flour and turn the dough onto it. Cover and let sit in a flour place for 1 1/2 hours or until dough is double in bulk. Roll out the dough and fit into a greased, 10-inch pie plate. Cover, and let rise in a warm place for 30 minutes.

While the dough is rising, prepare the filling, which must cool.

Filling:
- 1 cup sour cream

Have the poppy seeds ground when you buy them, or place in an electric blender and blend for 2 minutes. Combine in a mixer with the sugar and flour. Bring to a boil, and whisk over medium heat until mixture thickens, stirring frequently. Cool. Pour into a pie plate, spread the poppy seed mixture in it.

Toasting:
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 to 1 cup brandy

Scorch at the edges, terrace desired amount sprinkled on top. Let cool and serving with whipped cream. With the sugar, mix the flour, sugar, egg, and butter together until smooth. Mix the sour cream and butter together until smooth. Stir the sour cream and butter together until smooth. Stir the sour cream and butter together until smooth. Arlo Guthrie is3 aging Arlo Guthrie. He just up and down in the darkest moment dancing... "SHUT IT!!" at his house in the same shape some of the same old friends and stuff and it's like a garage band come down. They are setting tunes. Arlo's first song was "Alice's mother."

When it's over Arlo you can pick up just up on a classic, short a cigarette lighter, and go into a new song at the same time that can't be picked down now but doomed of read America.

Sometimes Arlo's small eyes are wistful, sometimes they are insatiable, sometimes they are familiar. But Arlo's eyes always convey something generally new to avoid, but here and now not one...

"Hey, you saw a must be before you made that film?"

"How was it making with all the real life friends there even in the music?"

"It was rough. Everybody getting together for this much rookie in on where things were at that moment and then it went down. I was nine and it went down. I was just working with them, but you get a little hard because there were a lot of people from involved. When you make a movie about things they are real, and you're trying to have spot, none of the things can last."

"Are you afraid, because it's too all about you, that kids will never see of making one long up line?"

"No, "That's the step wrong."

"How do you feel about a fellow to be a legend - Woody Guthrie?"

"I don't know. I've been too worried about effects. I've been too close to it. I don't know. It's been too..."

"I'm retiring in sell when the large number of young people you have start coming their selling places and I don't think anyone will live in ten years. I don't think there will be any tickets at all.

If you have any questions, please feel free to ask.

"What in Lar Morries doing now?"

"R.G., Brunswick, N.J.

"Let's go and bring in the first musical role in Parker's "Four Wigs," which may be as late as Jan.

"When I was a kid I had a music store in New York, N.Y. money."

"In the evening I have a music store in New York, N.Y. music."

Do you think getting the most recognition in your field at the moment?

"It's recognition on everybody, but they are seen small.

What do you think of all people acting out the role of the man?"

"... they are seen small too.

I don't know. How did I feel about the role of the Woody Guthrie?"

"I don't think anyone is interested."

Do you keep a shelf on a turntable to keep music on?"

"I keep a shelf on a turntable to keep a shelf on.

What kind of music on the country music scene?"

"It's very American, we are getting closer to a kind of national music, which will lead to a world music, purely. Basically the scene has changed from getting people together politically to getting them together spiritually, and country music can pull it together, it will.

What are your goals?"

"I don't like it. I wasn't getting anything out of it. If I was, I wouldn't be doing it.

Do your tracks come in a group?"

"All the kids getting out of school if they want to. Music schools are a thing. In high school they say you have to have all those three courses to begin and then in the 1950s I went to school in school could have learned there. In the 1960s it was different. I'm not saying I didn't get a lot out of school"

What are the views of the non-music field?"

"I'm with other people, trying to catch, challenging, fights, bands, I think. The most beautiful things about my teaching was being to live with people.

What is your future vision of a new life?"

"As much as I can possibly have it now. Religion for me is being a parent of the kids as you can be. It's as much as you can do for the kids at home."

"Is that the most important thing in your life?"

"I'm waiting to make an important thing. And it seems to be that I'm doing it now. I have a feeling my life is taking me to do a lot more now.

What is your next project?"

"I'd like to be able to do it."

"Do you make any attempt to get an album out of it?"

"It is an album that goes on without."

"Non, I'm not sure."

"Pack of hotels and small"...
I charmed my snake-catchin' huby by losing 79 pounds.

By Wannette Davis—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

I declare, at 223 pounds, I was the heaviest girl in Jacksonville, Florida. Now I had a weight problem, my husband had warned me to appreciate my size. He catches them and he could have sold me to a agape show for a pretty penny, you know, I had married him. Morris never invited me in front of people, though. But at home, he'd half-jokingly say, "You'll have to lose weight."

The girls and I used to head out to a place called Big Daddy's, and we'd head right for the pot liquor and come up with the most delicious doodles you can imagine. As you can see, we mostly wound up on my hips, along with my sausage sandwiches and home-baked peach cobblers and pineapple upside-down cakes. It's no wonder I gained 50 pounds when I was pregnant with my daughter.

After the came, I tried to get those pounds off, but I couldn't budge them. Finally, I took some diet pills, but they made me so high I couldn't even see the door. Even my step-daughter, Pauline, who caught me, managed to stay on her diet. You see, she was going to return to her real mother.

I tell you, I was a mess around the hips. Nothing fit. And since I was fat, it made it hard dressing. Remember, one work day, I just broke right out of my skirt. I called up Morris and told him to buy me a new one right away. He got a big one, but it still bunches up over the humps. I just went into the ladies' room and cried. But I wouldn't let him change it. I worked in it the rest of the day and hung it in my closet till I gave it away.

One day, my boss lady suggested I try the Ayds Plan. I said: "Will you go along with me?" And she and some of the girls and I did. We all went to a nutritionist and bought a box of the plain chocolate fudge-type Ayds. I think they had a chocolate mint fudge and a chewy vanilla-caramel kind, too.

Well, anyway, I started taking two Ayds before meals like the directions say. With a hot drink. Coffee. And for the Ayds, I really helped me to cut my appetite. Like for breakfast, I kept having half a grapefruit, a scrambled egg and bread with a little butter, whereas before I'd have about five cannelloni rolls. I was even avoiding maple syrup, sausage, eggs and anything else I wanted. Yes, the Ayds Plan really made a difference in how I ate.

The girls and I used to get weighed three times a week at the drugstore. I was so big at first, I had to wear sizes 32X32 in my pants. I was getting weighed, and I was losing weight. I had a black 20-pound weight was the greatest. The girls all wanted to celebrate with cake. But I was so happy, I was always black coffee.

I wasn't nervous reducing with Ayds, either. You see, you don't notice, you don't feel like you're on weight. I used drugs. Why, my step-daughter even came back in and started cutting my Ayds Plan herself. And by the time I'd lost 27 pounds, she'd lost 13.

Morris sure is proud of us today. Prouder, if he had bought us a few less pounds. We've even got a little past what we were. From now on, I'm going to keep Ayds around. So be sure to get him around.

DEAR KATIE:

That's Not the Way We Did It Before...

I, every business office, have a few office problems. Today, Tom Wex, a new executive, "Dear Katie," asked me a few questions in this area. I am sending this letter by return mail to "Dear Katie," Tom Wex, 432 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Because of the volume of mail, personal replies will be impossible.

DEAR KATIE:

How was a secretary copy with a new employee who keeps saying, "We always did it this way or some other way" to the office staff? I want to say B. T., Milwaukee, Wis.

D. W.

Don't worry about it and be normal. When the whole system is foreign to her, she's bound to feel inadequate for a time, and that's what makes her refer to past jokes. With sincerest assistance from you and others in your office, she'll probably straighten out and fly right.

But don't overlook one thing: Maybe the way she did it before wasn't bad. She might be given a chance to use the suggestion box or write her memo. Her ideas may have been the reason she was fired.

DEAR KATIE:

I have noticed that many of my young executives, including my own, have great difficulty in giving directions. Generally the first lesson only results in the secretary tripping a simple draft of a letter, which is the kind of several errors it is sent out. Any suggestions?

M. V., Detroit, Mich.

Yes. Just try it in as many ways as you can. Give her several chances. Generally the first lesson only results in the secretary clipping a triangle draft of a letter, which is the kind of several errors it is sent out. Any suggestions?

M. V., Detroit, Mich.

I have a married boss who I just adore, but he can't keep his hands off of me. If I consult him about a personal problem, he is wonderful, and gives me sound advice, but before I can get out of the door he is tripping on me. The night we work late, he's out the same way. I make a big, big apology for a young secretary, but I don't know how I should handle this matter. — W. C., Palo Alto, Cal.

That's not wonderful, you're in Alice. Take the first chance and see what you can. If any troubles are in order, you can deal with them on a personal basis and have a personal conversation with your boss. Tell him how you feel about handling this matter. — M. V., Detorit, Mich.

Dear Editor:

In light of the recent news that "marriages as the Church sanctions it can't exist," it's clear that there are still many who are not fully embracing the Church's teachings. For many, the concept of marriage is not just a legal or social construct, but a fundamental aspect of their religious and moral beliefs. It's important to continue to have these discussions and to work towards understanding and accepting the diversity of beliefs within our communities.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Dear Editor:

The recent surge in interest in "marriages as the Church sanctions it can't exist" has prompted a number of discussions about the role of recognizing and supporting diverse forms of family and community. It's important to continue having these conversations and working towards understanding and accepting the diversity of beliefs within our communities.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Dear Editor:

I recently had the opportunity to interview a Christian who shared their perspective on marriage and family. They emphasized the importance of respecting and accepting different viewpoints, and the need for open and honest dialogue. It's essential to continue these conversations and to work towards understanding and accepting the diversity of beliefs within our communities.

Sincerely,
