To Lead March
Rights Leader Arrives In City

By BRIGIT CLARK

Calling upon what he called the "waving formation of civil rights marchers" that have been going on all over the nation, John Lewis, the 27-year-old black lawyer who has led several "freedom rides" into the Deep South, arrived in Oklahoma City Sunday night to lend his support to the Oklahoma march.

A quiet—almost solemn—crowd of 600 people gathered at the Oklahoma City Civic Center to hear the civil rights leader speak. Speaking to the throng, Mr. Lewis said he expected the Oklahoma March on March 21 to be even larger than the one held in Washington last week.

"The right thing to do," he told the audience, "is to go on and on and on until the black man is free."

The march, which originated in Chicago, is scheduled to end here in March. It has been led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Mr. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis said that the black man must stand up for his rights and fight for them. "I want to see the day when a black man can walk down the street without being harried," he said.

Teenage Drivers Need Guidelines From Parents

Between Parent And Teenager — Part XVIII

To of OH, drivers lowest. A recent study showed that 85% of teenage drivers are involved in at least one accident per year. This percentage is significantly higher than that of adult drivers. One of the main reasons for this is the lack of experience and skill behind the wheel.

The Oklahoma City Police Department has implemented several guidelines to help parents and teenagers navigate the challenges of driving. These guidelines include:

1. Establish Rules and Boundaries: Clearly define the expectations and rules for driving, including curfews, the number of passengers allowed, and the type of vehicle.

2. Provide Training: Consider enrolling them in a driving school or arranging for professional driving lessons.

3. Regular Check-ins: Regularly discuss their driving habits, the challenges they face, and any concerns you may have.

4. Role Model: Set a good example by driving safely and responsibly.

5. Be Patient: Remember that learning to drive is a process, and it takes time to become proficient.

If you or your child are interested in the guidelines provided by the Oklahoma City Police Department, you can contact them at 405-297-6830.
