Drafter's Plea "Go Unanswered"

"I'd try to kill myself again if I knew how," said Paul R. Gruber, 23, of Oklahoma City, who was drafted into the army last year.

The "I'd Try to Kill Myself Again" draft story was published in the Oklahoma Journal on July 15, 1928. The story highlights the struggles of a young man who was drafted into the army and his desire to find a way to escape. The article was written by journalist and editor John H. Whelpley. The Oklahoma Journal was a newspaper published in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, from 1928 to 1930. The paper was known for its investigative reporting and coverage of local news and events. The article is a reflection of the social and political climate of the time, offering a glimpse into the experiences of young men during the Great Depression and the impact of the draft on their lives.

Discovering Child On Heroin Shatters Family

The world of drugs can be as battered as a neglected house and as inviting as a warm, well-furnished one. There are many arguments over drugs. The one that matters most: How do we find peace and joy in life?

The report of a 15-year-old boy's almost total withdrawal from life is a warning to all. He was found unconscious and his eyes bulging with heroin. When he was taken to the hospital, he had to be resuscitated. The doctors were not surprised when his parents were shocked. They had been told that he was taking drugs, but they had never seen him in that state.

Beckett Says Modern Police
Still Needs Citizens’ Help

When the word terrorism entered the nation’s vocabulary in the wake of the September 11, 2001, attacks, police agencies across the country realized that their traditional roles were becoming inadequate in the face of new threats.

Readers are encouraged to stay informed and to support their local police departments by being aware of the issues and helping to keep their community safe.

Soft Fleischmann's Margarine Presents:
"You Bought
The Gold Boy?"

Yes, the gold box, because you know what the doctors say.

They say not to eat
too many saturated fats.
And Soft Fleischmann's Margarine
is real low in saturated fats.
It's made from 100% corn oil.

That's right.
100% corn oil. And I say nothing but 100% corn oil for my Harold and his father, Harold.

Soft Fleischmann's Margarine... in the gold box.

Don't throw that paint brush out!

See the continuing saga of Harold's mother on TV and look for the gold box in your supermarket.

Chief Bailey Not Giving Up On White Case

By ERNEST

Miami City Police Chief W.B. Bailey is always on the lookout for more clues to the mystery surrounding the incident that occurred last week. Bailey, in a statement, said that he has been closely monitoring the case and will not give up until every possible lead has been exhausted.

"This is a very important case," Bailey said. "I have a team of detectives working around the clock to find out what happened. We have a lot of evidence to work with, but we need more time to analyze it.

"We have some strong leads," Bailey added. "But we can't release any information until we have more concrete evidence. We will not give up until we have solved this mystery.

"I promise the people of Miami City that we will find the truth," Bailey concluded. "We are working tirelessly to uncover the facts and bring justice to those involved."

NASCACalling The Shots

All through the Bulletin's issue devoted exclusively to an "Assessment of Man on the Moon," the theme of realistic investigation underlines all of the other sections entitled to "The Man Who Made the Moon," "The Man Who Drove the Rocket," and "The Man Who Designed the Spacecraft." The new book by Captain G. W. "Bud" Yeager, "Air Force Test Pilot," is reviewed. The book does not live up to its promise that the author may have made, but it is a readable story of Yeager's experiences in the test pilot field.

UNDER A NEW MANAGING EDITOR, Richard W. Lewis, Senior Deputy Editor of the Bulletin, is the new managing editor. The Bulletin has become essentially a professional magazine for the aerospace community, with a new format that will better serve its readership. The publication is called "Science Today" on the cover.

Ever since the success of Apollo 8 in December, this definitive issue with articles by the famous Lenard, Sidney Frankel, and Editor Randell C. Rice has been anticipated. The Bulletin now presents a comprehensive overview of space exploration, from the "man on the moon" to the "man in space" to the "man on the earth."
