Harris Acting ‘As Senator’

At the intersection of political intrigue and its impact on public policy, the recent actions of Senator Harris have raised eyebrows. Harris, known for his steadfast advocacy on issues of public interest, has been spotted engaging in discussions that suggest a shift in his usual approach to governance. This shift has led to speculation about the potential implications for legislation currently on the docket.

Atheist

In a recent development, a prominent atheist group has announced its endorsement of a bill that aims to separate church and state. This move has sparked both support and controversy, reflecting the diverse perspectives on religious freedoms.

Fair Skies Due Today

On the horizon, the fair skies due today offer a glimmer of hope for those involved in the aviation industry. With the recent improvements in safety and the anticipation of increased travel, the sector looks poised for a promising future.

Train Fall Kills Man

Tragedy struck on the railway tracks as a train fell, claiming a life. The incident, which occurred under unclear circumstances, underscores the importance of safety protocols in the transportation sector.

Finch Urges Softer Research Limitations

The debate over research limitations continues to unfold, with insects advocating for a more lenient approach. Finch, a key figure in this discussion, has expressed concerns about the potential negative impact of stringent restrictions on scientific progress.

Students To Hear Importer

In an effort to engage students with the realities of import trade, an importer has agreed to speak at an upcoming event. This initiative aims to bridge the gap between academic theories and practical applications in the industry.

Primed, Ready For War?

At a time when the world is on the brink of another world war, it is imperative that we prepare ourselves mentally and emotionally for the realities of war. This is not to say that we should be complacent and accept war as a inevitability, but rather that we should be prepared to face it if it comes.

Nearly 80% of the American people believe in the necessity of preparedness for war. However, only a small percentage are actually prepared in a practical sense. This is a disturbing fact, as it shows that we are not taking the possible outcome of war seriously.

In the event of war, the government will have to take control of all aspects of our lives. This includes the distribution of food, water, and other essentials. It is therefore important that we are prepared to take advantage of these resources in the event of war.

Another important aspect of war preparedness is the military. We must ensure that we have a strong and capable military to defend our country and our interests.

What's Good For Ailing Cities

In today's world, we are faced with many challenges that require us to make difficult decisions. One of the most important decisions we face is how to improve the health of our cities.

Cities are facing a variety of problems, including poverty, crime, and pollution. In order to address these issues, we need to make decisions that will benefit the city as a whole.

One solution to these problems is to invest in infrastructure. This includes things like roads, bridges, and public transportation. By improving these areas, we can make our cities more livable and attractive to businesses.

Another important aspect of city planning is to ensure that we have adequate housing. This means making sure that we have enough affordable housing for everyone who needs it.

Justice Or Public Relations?

In today's society, we are faced with many challenges that require us to make difficult decisions. One of the most important decisions we face is how to ensure that we have a fair and just legal system.

The legal system is a crucial part of any society, as it helps to ensure that everyone is treated fairly. However, there are many challenges that we face in trying to ensure that our legal system is fair.

One of the biggest challenges we face is the issue of public opinion. Many people have strong opinions about the legal system, and these opinions can often influence the way that cases are handled.

Another challenge we face is the issue of resources. The legal system is an expensive one, and we need to ensure that we have the resources we need to make sure that it works properly.

Billy Graham

ABERDEEN - Bill Graham, the Bible teacher, and the President of the World Council of Churches, has been named a Nobel Peace Prize laureate.

Bill Graham was chosen for his work in promoting world peace and his efforts to bring people of different faiths together. He has worked tirelessly to promote understanding and cooperation between religions, and his efforts have been widely recognized.

Graham has been a vocal advocate for peace and has spoken out against violence and war. His work has been recognized with numerous awards, including the Nobel Peace Prize.

Jimmy Stewart Will Never Retire

By RICHARD SCHALLER

HOLLYWOOD — Jimmy Stewart has no plans to hang up his acting boots any time soon.

"I plan to work as long as I can," he said during a recent interview with THE OKLAHOMAN. "I enjoy acting, and I think I have some good years left in me."

Stewart, 82, is currently filming "The Bridges of Madison County," co-starring Meryl Streep. The film is scheduled for release in 2015.

"I'm looking forward to working with Meryl," Stewart said. "She's a great actress, and I think we'll have a good time together."

Godfrey "Turns" White

By RICHARD SCHALLER

HOLLYWOOD — Godfrey "Turns" White, a character from the upcoming film "The Bridges of Madison County," has been causing quite a stir on set.

"He's a bit of a wild card," said fellow cast member Meryl Streep. "But he adds a lot of energy to the film."

The character of Godfrey "Turns" White is played by actor Geoffrey Rush, who also stars in "The King's Speech." Rush has been praised for his performance in that film, which was nominated for Best Actor at the 2011 Academy Awards.

High Costs Dampen Broadway Show Biz

By JOHN O'BRIEN

NEW YORK (N.Y.) -

It won't be until next week at the Palace that audiences will see the curtain go up for the opening of "Blind." The musical, which has been on hold for months due to production delays, is finally set to debut on Broadway.

"Blind" is a story of love and loss set in the 1920s. The show features an all-star cast, including Broadway veterans and emerging talent.

"We're really excited to bring this story to life," said producer John Smith. "We've worked hard to create a show that not only entertains but also inspires."

However, the high costs associated with mounting a Broadway production have caused some concern among industry insiders. "Blind" is estimated to cost over $10 million to produce, and many are wondering if the show will recoup its investment.

"I think it's a bit of a gamble," said one industry expert. "But sometimes you have to take risks to bring something unique to the stage."

Despite the concerns, "Blind" is expected to open to critical acclaim and is already generating buzz among theater-goers.

Time Halts At Columbus’ First Stop

By CHARLES CHAMPIEN

SAN FRANCISCO (N.Y.) -

Time has come to a standstill as the"Time" at Columbus' first stop. The iconic newspaper has been delivered to the city's famous landmark, but the clock is now frozen in time.

"It's a bit of a surreal experience," said a local resident. "I feel like I've been transported back in time."" Time's legacy continues as the newspaper makes its way to other major cities across the country. The next stop on its journey is Los Angeles.

Football Game Without A Band?

Would you believe it if we told you there would be no band at this year's football game? That's right, no marching band, no pep band, no anything. The school administration has decided to forgo the tradition in order to save money.

"We understand the importance of the band," said principal John Doe. "But we simply can't afford it this year."

Some students are upset by the decision, saying it takes away from the game's excitement.

"It's just not the same without the band," said one student. "I don't know if I'll even bother coming to the game now."" The game will go on as scheduled, but it will be a much quieter affair.

Bob Hatches Next Movie

Bob Hatcher is in Los Angeles working on his next project. He's been busy shooting scenes for the film, which is set in the 1950s.

"I've always wanted to do a film set in the '50s," said Hatcher. "It's a really interesting time period."" The movie features an all-star cast and is expected to be released next year.

"Ultra" Steps Out Of Underground

"Ultra" has stepped out of the shadows and into the spotlight. The underground music scene has been a staple of the city for years, but now "Ultra" is ready to take it to the next level.

"We've been preparing for this moment for a long time," said the band's lead singer. "We're ready to show the world what we're made of."" Ultra has released a new album and is planning a tour to promote it.

"I think they're really onto something," said one music critic. "I can't wait to see what they have in store for us."

Death Row Is Crowded with Waiting Men

By BURLINGTON WOLFE

On April 15, 1975, a former teen-ager, Aaron Mitchell, was picked up in a roulette game in a Los Angeles bar and was charged with murder. Two and one-half years later, he was convicted of murder and sentenced to death by an all-white jury.

The case for the prosecution was made by the district attorney, who argued that Mitchell had killed another man in a barroom dispute. The defense, led by a young lawyer, contended that Mitchell had been coerced into confessing to the crime.

The trial ended with a hung jury, and the case was retried. This time, the jury found Mitchell guilty of murder and sentenced him to death. The retrial was lengthy and controversial, with many questions raised about the fairness of the proceedings.

The case of Mitchell is just one of many that have been handled in the California courts since the 1960s, when the state began to use the death penalty. Since then, the number of people on death row has grown significantly, and the system has been the subject of much scrutiny.

According to the California Department of Corrections, there are currently 321 people on death row in California. This is the highest number ever, and it is a reflection of the state's tough stance on crime.

The death penalty is popular in California, and polls show that most people support it. However, there are also many who argue that the system is flawed and that innocent people may be wrongly sentenced to death.

The case of Mitchell is one such example. His defense argued that he had been coerced into confessing to the crime, and that he was not the actual murderer. Despite this, he was sentenced to death.

The case has been appealed, and the outcome is uncertain. However, it is clear that the death penalty is a controversial issue in California, and that it will continue to be a topic of discussion for many years to come.

Cool Kyle

Kyle Johnson, senior at his home town, Bob Dylan's voice channel from a portable stereo. A small, but dedicated fan, he made enough pull-up's and push-up's to buy a new stereo. The stereo was an MP3 player with a large library of Bob Dylan albums. He listened to Dylan while doing his homework and when he was free to enjoy the music.

Kyle's parents, influenced by Dylan's music, encouraged him to explore different musical styles.

"Bob Dylan is my go-to artist," Kyle said. "His music has a way of transporting me to different places and times."

Kyle's favorite album is "Like a Rolling Stone," which he says captures the essence of Dylan's music and lyrics.

Kyle's interest in music has extended beyond listening to records. He is a member of a local band and has performed at several local venues.

Kyle's interest in music has also led him to explore different aspects of the music industry. He has worked on recording projects and has written music for local bands.

Kyle's passion for music has not only enriched his personal life, but has also impacted his academic and social life. He has been an active member of the school's music club and has participated in various music-related events.

Kyle's dedication to his passion for music is evident in his daily life. He listens to music on his MP3 player while doing homework, during free time, and even while exercising. His dedication to Dylan's music is not only a reflection of his musical tastes, but also a testament to his commitment to pursuing his passion.

Kyle's deep appreciation for Dylan's music has inspired him to learn more about the artist and his work. He has read books about Dylan's life and music and has attended concerts whenever possible.

Kyle's passion for music has not only brought him joy, but has also provided him with a sense of community and belonging. He has met other music enthusiasts through his involvement in various music-related events and has formed lasting friendships with like-minded individuals.

Kyle's story is a reminder of the power of music to connect people and enrich their lives. His dedication to his passion for music is a testament to the fact that pursuing our interests can bring us joy and fulfillment.

In Laurens, I learned simple household skills—folding napkins, setting a table, dusting. She showed me how to do chores. She taught me to make simple but delicious meals. She showed me how to organize and clean a room. I was surprised by the exercises for washing hands. They are tested steps for this process. In retrospect, I can see that this was teaching a child to "Go and wash your hands" isn't enough.

Two of my sons in elementary school have apparently cut the program in two steps: (1) Wash hands after under water, and (2) Drain hands on table. Laurens now goes through the complete step-by-step cycle of activity — stand on a mat at sink, roll up sleeves, place hands in water, rub soap off hands, rinse soap off, place hands on pottery plate, rub each soap patch over back of hands, rinse hands, rinse soap off, dry hands on towel, dry hands on towel, hang towel on rack. Now that the process covers more easily, she has offered to teach it to her brothers.

The sections on dressing, drawing, coloring, and other creative activities encourage spontaneity and self-expression. "Always allow your child's creativity to be free. Accept his or her ideas, for what he says is a cat, then it's a cat, regardless of what you may look like to you."

Dear Katte:

Errands for the Boss?

In every business office there are everyday problems. "Dear Katte" is aimed at answering readers' questions in this area. Letters should be addressed to DEAR KATTE, 45th Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Because of the volume of mail, personal replies will be impossible.

Dear Katte,

I am executive assistant in asking his secretary to perform some personal duties—for instance, buying gifts for his family or friends. Should his secretary agree to do so?

—E.G.S., Dallas, Tex.

If both of his legs are broken and he can't hear on the telephone, yes, he is justified in asking his secretary to shop for him. They should see this as a service that they are being offered.

As to whether she should agree or not, that depends on what duties are outlined to her originally, or how she happens to feel about participating in such personal assignments.

Dear Katte,

I am in my thirties and have two children who are almost ready for college. I should like to return to the business world to help my husband budget their college tuition. How do you suggest I go about this before my marriage? How can I brush up on shorthand and typing to get a good job?

—C.L.S., Santa Ana, Calif.

The world needs you! If you're a bit rusty technically, here's a chance for you. Consider the future of your marriage. How can I brush up on shorthand and typing to get a good job?

Dear Katte,

Every time I see my husband's wife she looks at my clothes as though she just couldn't believe them. She never says anything, but I can tell. My skirts are a lot shorter than hers, but after all, I'm in my twenties and she's around forty. It's gotten so when she looks me with his "looks," I'd like to go hide. What can I do?

How about hiding? What you do about it depends on how valuable her opinion is to you. I haven't seen you, but unless you're one of five women in the whole country who look meilleur in miniskirts, I'd suggest you lower your horizons a bit. You've bound to look better in an office than way, no matter what the boss's wife thinks.

Hunting the Great Boar

"I aimed at where the boar's spine should be, lowered 4 inches to allow for standing hair, and spucked."" - By JOIE McGRAL

Joie McGrail is a former editor of "Sportsman's Digest," where he was accustomed to "white gloves and elegant restaurants" before he started a sporting goods manufacturer Bill McGrail ten years ago. "He put in a guns in one of my hands, and a real and well in the other," he said.

The McGrails have co-authored a book, "The Great Boar," published this month, about their hunting and fishing exploits, which culminates in the catch. This article and the Roman Boar are both from the book.

A bear hunt is for men. But an antelope hunt is for women. For my daughter, the skills and instincts of hunting after stoves, waterproof, and snugly gear, during the course of several decades, my husband Bill decided to take me to the Smoky Mountains in North Carolina for a bear hunt. It was an interesting experience from the start.

The factory had built the guns of choice for a company's bear hunt. The same one-piece rifle for both. I was anxious to try it.

The antelope horn and hunter would encounter a bear every few miles, every few steps. The roar of the trees would be the only sound. In the end, we might have only 10 yards—two or three seconds—to place our shot before the animal was on top of us.

We flew south on a Sunday morning and then drove south. The lodge was in the mountains, two fast-moving, dirty hours from the nearest town, through a heavily wooded mountain.

After dinner at the lodge we gathered for a briefing on the next day's hunt. We would leave at 6 a.m. and drive to the area we had chosen. Once there we would be an area of about 500 yards. We would be divided into two groups of 25 people each. Each person would be assigned one of the areas as a specific area. Each area would be assigned to one of the hunters.

After the hunt the bear was brought to the area we had chosen. Once there we would be divided into two groups of 25 people each. Each person would be assigned one of the areas as a specific area. Each area would be assigned to one of the hunters.

When the huntsman picked up a trail he was in, and we were to be in our position within our area according to the directions provided. We would then be instructed to follow the trail through the area. We would be divided into two groups of 25 people each. Each person would be assigned one of the areas as a specific area. Each area would be assigned to one of the hunters.

You can now learn a foreign language the quick­est, most natural way in the world ... the way people learn it abroad. You listen to dozens of real­spoken conversations ... at foreign cafes, shops, homes, offices, places of entertainment. Then you actually converse yourself as though you were there. Without leaving your own easy chair!

While your ear becomes familiar with the spoken word, your eye learns to recognize the printed word. It's amazing how quickly this new method teaches you to speak the language with confi­dence ... to read easily anything from a menu or road­sign to a newspaper or book. Just as quickly as you learn to write the lan­guage ... from a personal or business letter to a lengthy report, with the same fluency and style you'd achieve if you were brought up abroad.

How is it done?

LaSalle has combined the newest techniques of high­speed audio­visual instruction to make lan­guage study a pleasure instead of a chore. And it has added the helpfulness of individual instruc­tion in your own home. For the first time, you can learn a foreign language in the depth re­quired to make it a real personal asset.

You can do it all in your spare time. Any time you feel fit to yourself. In privacy and comfort. You record special speaking assignments for your instructor on tape. He listens to it and returns it with his spoken comments for you to hear. (LaSalle supplies the recorder, "snap­in" cartridges, microphone and all you need. You can prac­tice on these tapes all you want — play back to hear how you sound — compare and correct until you're perfect.)

Meanwhile you develop your reading skills and become accustomed to the actual use of grammar as you go along. You actually read a novel from a famous foreign play in its original language — and learn to understand every line. Expanding yourself in writing is stressed throughout the course, so you can correspond with foreign friends and business associates — in their language! You get regular written as­signments, which are carefully reviewed by your instructor and returned to you with helpful comment. You learn with amazing ease.

The total effect is like being in a class of one — there’s a faster way to learn a language. A leading language authority has described the LaSalle course as the most complete and most practical ever devised for home study.

LaSalle Extension University is the famed correspondence institution with experience in teaching over 1,500,000 adults by mail. Your language study will therefore be in good hands.

Dear Sir:

I agree with Margaret Mead on one point: women shouldn't have weapons. Neither should men.

In "The Natural Ferocity of Female," Dr. Mead seems to suggest that the age-old custom of not giving women any "real" weapons is meant to protect them from the natural ferocity that can't be controlled. But how can men be sure that women can't pass on this "true" ferocity and thereby be a danger to the group? I can't imagine a society where women wasn't so stereotyped as to be capable of this kind of thing. They had every reason for not giving weapons to women.

Because, as far as I'm concerned, the family, they usually look to their family. The family system tells them how the military system of men will protect the children. The family tells them how women have been true in the past. So I think it's tough to do it. You zest get much of the society. But they have a long way to go.

DEAR EDITOR:

I would appreciate very much if you could tell me where and how I might obtain a reprint of that marvelous print with Dr. Mead's article. I would love to have a large color reprint of this woman and her two children that she can frame and hang.

DEAR MR. EDDIE:

The illustration for "The Natural Ferocity of Women" is from an 1890 engraving entitled "The Nine Ages," by French artist, H. Lecoq. It was reprinted as an engraving by Cartier & Co., publishers in Philadelphia, and is also used in "Woman's History" by the American Antiquarian Society. It is available through the American Antiquarian Society's Reprint Department, by letter or from Cartier & Co., publishers. It is also available from the Pennsylvania Museum of American Art in Philadelphia.

DEAR EDITOR:

I think your cover photograph of Whistler's Mother to be not only in poor taste, but a perversion of fine art.

J. F. PHELPS ALLEN, N.D.

DEAR EDITOR:

I was very much interested in the cover photo, Menard/Beaver's version of "Whistler's Mother." I would like very much to have a reproduction of it. I am interested in reproduction.

P. WILSON, D.C.

Photos of this photograph must be made up from the original transparency and not from the rough Menard/Beaver's studio is at 133 West 23rd St., N.Y. 11, N.Y. 51.
