Indian Summer's Icumen In

Fruity cherries blossom is passed with sunlight, probably the last time in the near future. These cherries have a chance to change with the Cherry blossoms and many others before winter comes. Cherries are a popular fruit in Oklahoma and are known for their sweet and juicy flavor.

Does Thieu Want THE Bomb?

Thieu, the President of South Vietnam, said his nation should be able to handle its own defense without outside help. The Associated Press reported that Thieu made the comments during a meeting with U.S. officials in Washington.

NEW YORK — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam told the United States that his nation should handle its own defense without outside help. But the Associated Press reported that Thieu made the comments during a meeting with U.S. officials in Washington.

Thieu, in answering whether he thought President Nixon should continue to send military aid, said the problem was not how to stop the war but how to help the South Vietnamese build a government that could handle its own defense;

Fraidy-Hole Fine In Peace, War

By DAVID CROUSE

If you should choose, Oklahoma probably would have few problems with better protection than most other Americans, it appears.

The state is already one of the most heavily militarized states in the country, with a large number of military installations and bases located within its borders. It has also been the site of several recent high-profile incidents, including a shooting at a military base in 2017 and a bombing at a military training facility in 2018.

The state's military installations, including the Tinker Air Force Base and the Fort Sill Army Base, are well-protected and have extensive security measures in place. The state also has a strong law enforcement presence, with police and sheriff's departments that are well-equipped and well-trained.

Despite these measures, the state is still not immune to violence. In 2019, a shooting at the Tinker Air Force Base left four people dead and several others injured. The state has also been the site of several other recent high-profile incidents, including a shooting at a military base in 2017 and a bombing at a military training facility in 2018.

Howell Turns On Lights For Knights

Monsignor Keough turned on the light after a series of bomb threats against Catholic schools in Los Angeles, he said. The threat prompted the reinstatement of the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic fraternal organization.

First of all, Howell has nothing to do with the Knights of Columbus, the school principal, Monsignor Keough, said. The threat was not a bomb but rather a prank, he added.

The school's principal, Monsignor Keough, said he was notified of the prank by a student who heard about it from a friend. The student said the prank was a joke and not meant to be taken seriously.

The Knights of Columbus, a Catholic fraternal organization, has been reinstated at Monsignor Keough High School.

OCAC Develops Three-Way Knot

OCAC, the Oklahoma City Area Chambers of Commerce, has developed a three-way knot called the "OCAC Knot." The knot is a modification of the traditional three-in-hand knot and is designed to be easier to tie and more secure.

The OCAC Knot is tied by passing the end of the rope through the loop of the rope and pulling it through the loop one more time. The knot is then tightened by pulling the end of the rope tightly.
