By HARRY CUNNING

For a moment, Senator Harris looked up from his desk in the Senate chamber at the Speaker of the House. "What's the matter?" he asked.

"Nothing," said the Speaker. "Just a bit tired after all that talking.

"Well," continued the Senator, "I'm afraid I can't give you much time today. I have to prepare for the next debate.

"But," interjected the Speaker, "you have a few minutes left. Can't you wait a bit longer?"

"No," replied the Senator. "I have a lot of work to do.

The Speaker glanced at his watch and nodded. "Well, then," he said, "I'll leave you to it."

"Thank you," said the Senator. "I'll see you later.

Senator Harris stood up in the Senate chamber and looked around. "I don't understand," he said. "What's going on here?"

"What's the matter, Senator Harris?" asked the Speaker.

"I don't know," said the Senator. "I'm just not sure what I'm doing.

"Well," continued the Speaker, "you have a lot of work to do."

"But," interjected the Senator, "I have a lot of work to do."

"I know," said the Speaker. "But you have to keep in mind that you have a lot of work to do.

"Yes," agreed the Senator. "I have a lot of work to do."

"Then," said the Speaker, "get to work."

"Thank you," said the Senator. "I'll see you later.

The Green Beret Fiasco

The setback for the Green Beret movement came last month when a Senate committee defeated the bill. A Senator from Colorado killed the bill because of a possible conflict of interest on the part of one of the senators.

The recent setback for the Green Beret movement was a major disappointment to many who have been fighting for the program. The senator from Colorado is a strong supporter of the Green Beret program and has been a vocal advocate for its continued funding.

Undersea 'Ship' Lanes?

The US Navy wants to begin constructing underwater pipelines to transport goods between the US and Europe. The pipelines would be a major investment, but the Navy believes it would be worth it in the long run.

State Editors Say

State editors have come out in favor of the Green Beret program. They believe it is a worthy cause and should be supported.

HEALTH CARE BILL

The House of Representatives voted on the healthcare bill last week. The bill passed with a narrow margin, but it is still up in the air.

The Senate is expected to vote on the bill this week. It is unclear how the Senate will vote, but it is likely to be a close vote.

Walking Catfish Endangering Lakes

By RICH SOUTHWICK

A pair of walking catfish have been spotted in the ponds of the local park. This rare phenomenon has raised concerns among local wildlife enthusiasts. The walking catfish, known for their unusual ability to move across the water surface, are believed to have arrived from an area with a similar ecosystem. Conservationists are working to understand the impact of these fish on the local aquatic life and are taking steps to mitigate any potential harm.
