Rain, Cold Weather

Front Pushing Storm Clouds

A cold front which dashed hopes for the Buckeye to be flown in the world's arms, was accompanied by a general overcast of the sky throughout the state. The cool front, which passed through the state earlier in the week, caused the temperatures to drop below freezing in some areas.

Front, storm clouds were predicted to move in from the north by the National Weather Service in Newark. Lows for the weekend are expected to be in the upper 30s, with a high of around 40 degrees on Saturday.
