Senate Reformers Vote Church Business Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee voted Tuesday to pass the measure that would allow businesses to be taxed for advertising revenue, a move that could have implications for the future of the industry.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, would allow businesses to be taxed on advertising revenue, which is currently not taxable. The measure would also allow for the taxation of companies that have been in business for more than 30 years.

Cruz said the measure would help businesses to reduce their costs and increase their profits, but it would also help to balance the budget.

"This is a win-win for everyone," Cruz said. "It will help businesses reduce their costs and increase their profits, while also helping to balance the budget."

Do you know how many college athletes are there in the U.S.? Exactly, there are over 500,000 college athletes across the nation. This number is only going to increase in the coming years.

College athletics are a vital part of the college experience. They offer students the opportunity to develop physical, social, and emotional skills that will benefit them for the rest of their lives. However, the importance of college athletics goes beyond just the student-athlete experience. It is also important for the student body as a whole.

College athletics promote teamwork, leadership, and discipline. They also provide a platform for students to develop their skills in areas such as public speaking, event planning, and media relations.

In conclusion, college athletics are crucial to the overall college experience. They offer numerous benefits to students and the college community as a whole. It is important for colleges to continue to invest in their athletic programs to ensure that all students have the opportunity to participate and benefit from them.
