By DAVID CRAIGHEAD

Secretary of state John Rogers is disposed at present to uphold the validity of a constitutional initiative by petition process now being reviewed by a state district court. Rogers has not yet decided what he will do about the effort to 150,000 petition signatures that would make a referendum on the issue a reality. Sanitation Strike Talks Broken Off

Reactions to the recent breakdown of negotiations between the city and the sanitation workers union over the strike were mixed.

"It's a very sad development," said Mayor Brown. "We had hoped to resolve the issues through discussions, but the union refused to make any concessions." The mayor added that the city was exploring other options to maintain public services.

On the other hand, the union leader, Mr. Smith, said, "We were willing to compromise, but the city refused to meet us halfway. We can't continue to operate under these conditions." The union has vowed to continue the strike until their demands are met.

Negotiations had resumed earlier this week, but progress appeared slow. The union was demanding better working conditions and pay increases, while the city was seeking to maintain its budgetary constraints.

The strike has caused significant disruptions in the city, with waste pile-ups in various areas. The city has urged residents to use alternative disposal methods until a resolution can be reached.

"I'm looking forward to spending more time with my family and pursuing some new projects." Costello's career included hosting talk shows, news segments, and even a run in a Broadway play.

Draft Moves Unjust?

The draft has been a topic of discussion for the past few weeks, with some advocating for its abolition and others supporting its role in national defense.
