There's A Tank In Mizzou's Tiger

By ROB RODRICK

COLUMBIA, Mo. — The Missouri tailback is back in Mizzou's backfield, and the Tigers' offense is humming again. Last year's 38-10 loss to Oklahoma was a wake-up call for the Tigers, who are now 4-1 and have a legitimate shot at the Big Eight championship.

The key to Missouri's success has been the return of tailback Joe Looney, who missed most of last season with a knee injury. Looney has been a consistent runner and has helped the Tigers average 310 yards per game.

Missouri tailback Joe Looney does his thing on a quiet night, but was hardly noticed on this occasion.

Missouri coach Larry Smith was happy with his team's performance, saying, "We were able to get some early momentum and keep it going throughout the game. We were able to control the game and not let OU get too many chances. We were able to dominate the game and get the win."

Airmen With 'Gas' Jazz Due

On a number of occasions during the season, the Airmen with the band have worked with various organizations and entertained audiences on radio and television. Their latest engagement was at Oklahoma City's convention center where they put on a jazz concert for the attendees. The audience was captivated by the Airmen's lively performance and the music that filled the room. The Airmen's reputation as a lively and talented band continues to grow, and they are eagerly awaited by fans across the state.

The Eyes Have It In Dance

Elizabeth Harwood, director of the Airmen's Dance Troupe, announced a new dance that the group will be performing at their upcoming concert. The dance is called "The Eyes Have It," and it is a modern take on a classic ballroom move. The dance is a fast-paced and energetic piece that features intricate footwork and smooth movements. The Airmen will be performing the dance at their concert on Saturday night. The Eyes Have It promises to be a crowd-pleaser and will showcase the Airmen's talent and hard work.

Briton To Add Arias To Symphony's Fare

Alvin Briton, a well-known tenor, will be joining the Oklahoma City Symphony Orchestra in their upcoming performance. Briton will be singing arias from some of the most beloved operas, including "O Mio Babbino Caro" from Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi" and "Un bel di vedremo" from Puccini's "La Bohème." Briton's powerful voice and expressive delivery will surely captivate the audience, making this performance one of the highlights of the season.

A suffragette play and the perfect partner were the main elements that propelled the play. The play was written by John Smith, who had just returned from his latest diplomatic mission in Europe. The play was directed by Jane Doe, who had recently established her own production company.

The play was shown in New York City and received critical acclaim. The cast was led by John Smith, who played the role of a suffragette, and Jane Doe, who played the role of the perfect partner. The play was a success, and Smith and Doe decided to continue their partnership.

The play was then taken to London, where it was received with equal success. Smith and Doe continued to tour the play, and their partnership became more and more successful.

One of the highlights of the play was the scene where Smith and Doe had a passionate conversation about the suffragette movement. The scene was so powerful that it brought tears to the eyes of the audience.

The play was a great success, and Smith and Doe decided to continue their partnership. They went on to write and direct many more plays, and their partnership became one of the most successful in the history of the theatre.

Sundance’ Enlivens Town

Paul Newman, alias Butch Cassidy

At the turn of the century, an outlaw named Butch Cassidy roamed the American West, leaving a legacy of notorious bandits and outlaws. His exploits included thefts, murder, and robberies, making him one of the most famous outlaws in American history. However, there is a lesser-known side to Butch Cassidy’s legacy, as he was also a master of culinary arts.

As a young man, Butch Cassidy moved to the frontier town of Sundance, Wyoming, where he began honing his skills as a chef. He opened a restaurant called the “Canyon Club,” which quickly became the talk of the town. The menu featured a variety of dishes, from fried chicken and steak to seafood and pasta.

Butch Cassidy’s cooking skills were not limited to the restaurant. He also used his culinary expertise to prepare food for his bandit gang, which included members such as Robert LeRoy Parker (the Sundance Kid) and Harvey Logan (the Pike). The group’s reputation as outlaws was enhanced by the fact that they were skilled in many areas, including cooking.

In addition to his cooking skills, Butch Cassidy was known for his charming personality and good looks. He was often seen in the town square, dressed in his signature black coat and hat, holding a glass of whiskey. His popularity in Sundance was so great that he was even courted by a local businesswoman named Etta Place.

Butch Cassidy’s legacy as a chef and outlaw continues to this day, as his story is told in many books and movies. His impact on the American West and the culinary world will long be remembered.

What Your Shopping Habits Tell About You

Always looking for a bargain, even if you don't need the product? Always first to own a new item? This reveals the real you, say psychologists.

By JOHN E. GIBSON

How much can you tell about a person's character just by watching the way he shops?

Psychologists who have studied the connection between shopping habits and personality differ in their answers. To make your observations with that of the experts, you'll need a bit of knowledge about some hitchhikers of the behavioral world.

1. If you are among the first to buy new products, to wear or use new styles, you have a good imagination, a generous disposition, and are creative-minded.

2. People who buy things they don't need simply because they are new are likely to be economical.

3. If, when shopping for clothes, a person always prefers the "best" of the colors, he's likely to be an elitist.

4. People who are always buying paint brushes usually have guilty conscience.

5. People who remove comparison labels from the head and allow the colors to be used as quickly as they can are likely to be artistic.

6. If you are a man, using baby powder or other shaving-cream bats for shaving, you are much more likely to be a libidinous person.

7. People who use shaving cream are much more likely to be artistic and creative-minded.

8. People who use shaving cream are much more likely to be artistic and creative-minded.

9. People who use shaving cream are much more likely to be artistic and creative-minded.

Why We Must Colonize the Moon

By ISAAC ASIMOV

Author of "Science Fiction and Fantasy" and "The Earth Is Full of Secrets"

Copyright 1963 by Family Weekly Publications Inc.

Family Weekly, November 9, 1963

A noted science writer foresees great technological benefits as well as far-reaching space explorations, tells why we must colonize the Moon.

The President of the United States announced that for the first time, man would walk on the Moon before the end of the year.

President Kennedy was quite right, and so were the politicians. All the world’s peoples will watch the Moon landings, and will have much to gain from them.

What is the big deal about the Moon? What is the Moon good for? What is the Moon worth? Who will benefit from the Moon? How will the Moon change human life?

The Moon is our nearest neighbor, the closest planet to Earth. It is a world that has been there for billions of years, and it is a world that we can explore.

When we first started to explore the Moon, we were not sure what we would find. We were not sure if there was life on the Moon. But we were sure that there was something interesting there.

The Moon is a world of its own, a place where we can learn about the universe. It is a place where we can learn about the history of the Earth. It is a place where we can learn about the history of the human race.

The Moon is a world of opportunity. It is a world where we can learn about the future. It is a world where we can learn about the possibilities of the universe.

The Moon is a world of adventure. It is a world where we can learn about the unknown. It is a world where we can learn about the mysteries of the universe.

Jules Jürgensen,
7,258,204,800 reasons why it should be your next watch.

A lot of watches tell the time (for awhile). But they don’t tell the truth.
And the truth is that unless a timepiece is made like a Jules Jürgensen, it’s not really made to last.
We’ve been makers of fine watches and chronometers since 1730. Our Swiss artisans would never turn in their eyepieces without turning a movement without jewel bearings.

Every part is triple-checked before it goes into the case. And double-checked after it’s in. We spend a lot of time with our watches. So you can spend a lot of time with them.

That’s all we’ve been thinking about for 280 years. Which, as we time it, comes to seven billion, two hundred and fifty eight million, two hundred and four thousand and eight hundred seconds.
How to Produce an Exciting TV Show—Ask the Kids

On Monday, educational stations will air "Sesame Street," a children's show by an Emmy winner who traded Madison Ave. expertise for Lollipop Lane's.

The Most Fascinating People I've Photographed

By PHILIPPE HALSMAN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Philippe Halsman stands high among the world's premier photographers. A master of the visual, he uses his camera as paintbrush and canvas. His portraits of famous people constitute a collection of the foremost names in science, music, film, art, theater, politics—virtually every important field of human endeavor.

Photographs by Halsman have appeared on more than 200 Life magazine covers, as well as Look, Paris Match, and countless other publications.

For Fidelity Wealth, he has selected 11 of the most memorable photo subjects ever to pose for him, and (in collaboration with Francesca and Leslie Stahl) narrated the incident, conversations, and impressions of those moments he has shared with the most celebrated men and women of our time.

My portrait of mathematical genius Albert Einstein was made on a U.S. postage stamp. I once asked him why he never wore socks, and with mathematical logic, he replied, "If you wear socks, your feet eventually make a hole in them. So I stopped wearing socks."

This was the third time I photographed Richard Nixon. It was not before his Inauguration and the day of his 60th birthday. I had brought him a Cartier box as a gift and learned that he'd already removed several bullets. "That's all right," he said. "A President can always count on his Life for charity after wearing them a few times. My last Life, for instance, brought police.

Eleanor Roosevelt did six months after I took this picture. She was very alert as we discussed current topics, yet in some sentences she eventually would doze off, then a woman on stage and carry on if nothing happened. I found she had great beautiful with the presence of time, and I tried to record it.

A few years ago, my daughter absolutely called a teen-age girl to talk at a movie. Please photograph her. She's 16, well metered this before, so I did. The girl was Mia Farrow. Her parents didn't know what she was doing. [Japanese Doll] Has she changed? She has. However, she was almost a model at 11, and there she said she accepted last sibling.

Several years ago, I got into a serious discussion of acting with Elizabeth Taylor. I had a dinner date and found myself in the embarrassing position of getting rid of her. "Sorry, I had you so long." I asked. She replied, "Oh, I have no idea. Everyone assumes glamorous girls are always very shy—no usually. I'm just all about.

Sports figures are occasionally shot—just I found Joe Namath of the New York Jets charming. He had heard the stupid idea that I refused to repeat it until my wife let, "I never tell stories in the presence of a lady," he said. They later he concluded, "You're not taking pictures. I hear you're the Namath of photographers?"
