RED SHELL CAMP; GUNS IN CAMBODIA

WASHINGTON — Vietnamese troops on the offensive on Sunday took advantage of the high ground to shell Binh Phuoc Province, in South Vietnam, with 120 mm rockets. The area was the scene of heavy fighting and had been a hotbed of Communist activity. The Vietnamese claimed to have inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy and to have captured a large number of prisoners. The area was being cleared of mines by the Vietnamese forces.

Nixons Share Feed With 200 Old Folks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Mrs. Nixon shared Thanksgiving turkey in the White House on Thursday, the day before the nation observed Thanksgiving Day. The turkey was roasted in the kitchen at the White House and served to the president and his family and guests. The Nixon family was joined by a number of guests, including the president's son, Tricia, and her husband, David Eisenhower.

Indian Invaders Of Alcatraz
Feast, Greet Sooner Guests

The second full moon after the start of the month known as Thewards, which takes place during the summer season, is observed as a day of feasting by the Native American community in the region of Alcatraz Island. This traditional event, which dates back to the 19th century, is celebrated with a gathering of Native American tribes from various parts of the United States. The feast is typically held on the island, where participants come together to share food, music, and dance. The celebration is an opportunity for members of the community to reconnect with their cultural heritage and celebrate their shared history.

Racing The ASEP

One of the Apollo 15 crew pilots an Apollo Lunar Module. The pilot in the front seat is the pilot-headd pilot, the pilot in the rear seat is the commander, and the pilot in the middle is the astronaut. The MPLS (Manned Lunar Module Simulator) is a large, fully functional, and realistic simulation of the Apollo Lunar Module used for training and testing.

God of Thanks

The sentinal photo shows the Apollo 15 crew members standing around their spacecraft. The spacecraft is a large, sleek, and futuristic-looking vehicle, with the crew members wearing their space suits. The crew members appear to be discussing their upcoming mission.

Inspecting Surveyor

The second photo shows the Apollo 15 crew members inspecting the Surveyor spacecraft. The spacecraft is a small, cylindrical, and metallic object, and the crew members are examining it closely. The spacecraft is likely a probe sent by NASA to explore the Moon's surface.

Astronaut At Work

The final photo shows an astronaut working in space. The astronaut is wearing a space suit and is holding a tool, likely a screwdriver or a wrench. The astronaut appears to be working on a panel or a piece of equipment.

New Moon Rocks Different In Color

The article discusses how the new Moon rocks are different in color from the old Moon rocks. The article mentions that the new Moon rocks are more colorful and have a more diverse range of colors than the old Moon rocks.

Congressmen Manipulate Regulatory Agencies

WASHINGTON — The regulatory agencies are supposed to protect the public from airlines accidents, dangerous drugs, and related environmental and economic risks, but they are also subject to political pressures and can be manipulated to benefit specific interests. If these agencies fail, the cost to the public can be significant.

For example, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has been criticized for mishandling safety inspections and allowing dangerous practices to continue. The FAA has been accused of being too lenient in its enforcement of safety regulations, which has led to several accidents and fatalities.

Similarly, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has been criticized for approving drugs that are later found to be dangerous. In some cases, the FDA has approved drugs that were later found to cause serious health problems or even death.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has also been criticized for its handling of recent financial scandals. The SEC has been accused of failing to adequately investigate and punish companies that engaged in fraudulent practices.

In all cases, the regulatory agencies are supposed to protect the public by enforcing regulations and ensuring safety. However, these agencies can also be influenced by political pressure and the demands of powerful interests. As a result, the public can be left vulnerable to risks and hazards.

IF THESE PUBLIC-PRIVE RISKS CAN BE MANIPULATED, THEN THE LIMITS OF OUR REGULATORY SYSTEMS AND THE ABILITIES OF THE AGENCIES TO PROTECT THE PUBLIC ARE QUESTIONED. THE EFFICACY OF THESE AGENCIES TO PREVENT OR CONFRONT SUCH RISKS IS IN QUESTION.
