'Doomsday' Commune Set Up Near City

BY BRUCE DANCE

SAN ANTONIO — From this city to the sun-warmed desert town near El Paso, the Children of God can now ride and daydream in peace.

The group, which once called this town their home, have moved to a new location in a secluded spot near El Paso.

The Children of God, a religious cult, have been in the news recently due to their unusual beliefs and practices.

In the new location, they plan to continue their spiritual practices and avoid any conflicts with local authorities.

Bible Class

Joseph Redford, who is 70 years old, has been a member of the Children of God for over 20 years. He is now teaching a Bible class at the new location.

Hall Terms Bonds Vital

BY HARRY K CLEY

Gov. David Hall had a verbal challenge of his own Saturday when he was asked to be a donor to the School Bond vote.

Gov. Hall urged support for the school bond plan in the Oklahoma Senate. He said the bond would be a vital part of the school system's financial stability.

Hall also speaking at the June 1972 rally in Oklahoma City, praised the education system and said it was important to support the bond.

Hall's remarks came during a rally held by the Oklahoma Education Association and the National Education Association to support the school bond.

Girl Gets a Parade

BY ELIZABETH MILLER

In a ceremony in the city of the running gait of God and the understanding house of a unison nation, the small town of the Children of God in Oklahoma City was given a parade.

The Children of God are a religious cult that has been in the news recently due to their unusual beliefs and practices.

In the ceremony, they were given a parade as a token of appreciation for their contribution to the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Redford, who were among the participants, said they were happy to be a part of the event.

They said the Children of God have always been a part of the community and they are proud to be a part of this special occasion.

Flight To White Districts Hit

VIRGINIA SCHOOL MERGED

BY ELIZABETH MILLER

Washington, D.C. — The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that the public school system in Virginia must be merged with the school system in the white district.

The court's decision is a major victory for civil rights activists who have been fighting for desegregation in schools for decades.

The court ruled that the public school system in Virginia must be merged with the school system in the white district to create a single, unified system.

The ruling is expected to have a significant impact on the future of education in Virginia, as well as other states that continue to struggle with segregation in schools.

Sooner Soldier Freed By Czechs

Miami, Fla. — The U.S. government has freed a soldier who was captured by the Czechs.

The soldier, who was held for several months, was released last week in a prisoner exchange.

The soldier's release is a significant victory for American families who have been waiting for their loved ones to be freed.

It is the latest in a series of prisoner exchanges that have taken place in recent months.

U.S. Pushing For Higher Malta Rent

Washington, D.C. — The U.S. government is pushing for higher rent in Malta.

The government has been working with the Maltese government to negotiate a new rent agreement.

The new agreement is expected to increase the rent for government employees.

The government is also working with the Maltese government to increase the number of government employees in Malta.

Lousiana Gulfus Claims 4

MISSISSIPPI LA. — Two white-factioned slums and two Negro slums were killed by a single gun in a firefight at a Baptist church in this town.

The dead were identified as the two white-factioned and the two Negro slums.

The Baptist church was converted into a makeshift hospital for the wounded.

Hughes Disnial A Lie?

New York, N.Y. — The U.S. government has released a report that disputes the allegations made by Hughes Disnial.

The report states that there is insufficient evidence to support the allegations made by Hughes Disnial.

Hughes Disnial claimed that the U.S. government was involved in a conspiracy to cover up the murder of the slain U.S. congresswoman.

The report was released by the Department of Justice.

The Justice Department said that the allegations made by Hughes Disnial lacked sufficient evidence to support her claims.

Nixon Now Storming Export Barriers

The Wall Street Journal, January 17, 1977

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Paul F. O'Keefe

President Nixon is moving to curb exports of money, oil, and other key assets in an effort to reduce the nation's trade deficit. The measures include a freeze on the dollar, a 25% surcharge on all imports, and a 10% cut in the government's international travel budget. The administration is also calling for a 10% cut in the foreign aid budget.

The surcharge on imports is designed to raise $3 billion annually and is expected to slow the rate of growth of imports. The freeze on the dollar is intended to help curb capital outflows, and the 10% cut in the foreign aid budget is expected to save $500 million.

The measures are part of a broader strategy to reduce the trade deficit, which has been increasing rapidly in recent years. The administration is also considering other measures, such as increasing tariffs and restrictions on imports, to further reduce the deficit.

The measures are expected to be controversial, and some economists argue that they could lead to a slowdown in economic growth. However, the administration is determined to take action to reduce the trade deficit, which it sees as a threat to the nation's economic stability.

'72 Should Be Year Of Recovery

By ARTHUR M. SCHULTZ

In the eight years of the '70s, which bring to mind the stock market crash and the oil crisis, one thing that has been neglected is the importance of recovering. The country is facing a serious problem in the '70s, but it is also facing a challenge. The economy is not as strong as it could be, but it is not as weak as it was in the '70s. The government is not as interventionist as it was in the '70s, but it is not as laissez-faire as it was in the '70s. The political system is not as corrupt as it was in the '70s, but it is not as democratic as it was in the '70s.

Big Businessmen See A Bright '72

By WAYNE J. MILLER

Big business is bracing for a bright '72. The record year for the nation's economy was 1969, when the gross national product grew by 4.9 percent. In 1970, the growth rate slowed to 2.5 percent. In 1971, the rate of growth was only 1.0 percent. The outlook for 1972 is much brighter. The business leaders believe that the economy will grow by 5.0 percent in 1972.

Brokers Could Hardly Wait For '72

By Philip Currier

Special Correspondent

NEW YORK—As the Park Place Prudential-the firm that began it all—celebrates its 37th birthday this month, brok-er activity is rising to unprecedented levels. This week, the number of transactions exceeds 100,000 per day, and it is expected to reach 110,000 per day by the end of the year.

The rise in activity is due to a number of factors: the shortage of inventory, the low interest rates, and the increased investor confidence.

The shortage of inventory is caused by the high demand for housing. With interest rates at record lows, buyers are willing to pay more for homes. This has led to an increase in prices, which further reduces the supply of inventory.

The low interest rates have made it more attractive for people to buy homes. In addition, the increased investor confidence has led to more buyers entering the market.

The rise in activity has also led to an increase in prices. According to the National Association of Realtors, the median price of a home in the United States increased by 7% in the fourth quarter of 2022 compared to the same time last year.

Phase II Rules Confusing To Many

By James E. Davies Jr.

WASHINGTON—Branch of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, the latest phase of the phase II rules, which are intended to reduce the amount of cash held by banks, is causing confusion for many banks.

The new rules require banks to hold a certain amount of cash in reserve, which can affect their ability to lend.
This has led to concerns among banks about how to balance their need to hold cash with their need to make loans.

The rules are complicated and require banks to consider a number of factors when calculating how much cash they should hold. This has led to confusion among banks about how to apply the rules.

The rules are intended to reduce the amount of cash held by banks, which can help reduce inflation. However, the confusion among banks about how to apply the rules has led to concerns about how effective they will be.

Additionally, the rules are likely to affect small banks more than large banks. Smaller banks are more likely to have liquidity problems, which can make it difficult for them to comply with the rules.

Overall, the phase II rules are causing confusion for many banks, and it remains to be seen how effective they will be in reducing the amount of cash held by banks.

Does Dow Jones Know Who'll Win?

By George Snider

Does Dow Jones know which of 20 presidential candidates will emerge from the Democratic primaries and emerge as the nominee? It may not seem like a serious question, but readers of The Wall Street Journal and The New York Times can be sure that if it were put to them, the question would be answered with confidence.

In fact, the question of which candidate will win the nomination may be easier to answer than the question of which candidate will win the general election. The primary system is designed to select the nominee, and the candidates who win the primaries are likely to be the ones who will win the general election.

However, the question of which candidate will win the general election is more complex. The candidates who win the primaries are likely to be the ones who will win the general election, but there are other factors that can influence the outcome. For example, the current political climate, the economy, and the candidates' ability to run a successful campaign can all influence the outcome.

In conclusion, it is difficult to say which candidate will win the nomination or the general election. However, it is clear that the candidates who win the primaries are likely to be the ones who will win the general election.
Bethany Bank Plans Expansion

The First National Bank of Bethany has acquired an additional 11-year lease on office space at its current location, 114 S. Main St. The expanding organization, the Fourth National Bank Co., which will occupy the new space, has not yet announced its plans for the rebuilding of the old bank.
